'IKE' CALLS FOR 'SECURITY WALL'

Further Thaw In Pay Freeze Is Announced

Merit, Service Wage Increases May Be Granted

Retail Coal Dealers May Boost Prices

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The government tonight unfroze wages and salaries of millions of workers to perimt pay hikes for merit and length of service.

However, the Wage Stabilization Board said employers can't raise prices to offset pay increases they may grant under the new regulation.

Another government order gave retail coal dealers permission to moost their prices as much as 25 cents on soft coal and 90 cents on anthracite tomorrow. This passes along the increase allowed to producers yesterday to pay for wage raises given John L. Lewis' miners.

Officials have said they expected the actual increase to be less than 90 and 25 cents because of coal's competitive position with other fuels.

Doubts Meat Ceilings Hold

Meanwhile, a former OPA official told Congress he doubts the present ceilings on meat prices will hold in view of great demand.

The witness, J. Kenneth Galgraith, onetime deputy director of the Office of Price Administration, said that even if the meat prices held, the attempt to meet demand would be a heavy drain on feed supplies.

Rising feed prices would in turn force up prices of milk, poultry and eggs, Galbraith said.

Meat prices were frozen along with most other prices at current levels a week ago.

Galbraith said the key dangers to wage-price stability were in a relatively few items—food, basic clothing and rent. "None of these later is now securely controlled," he said.

Galbraith appeared before the Senate-House Economic Committee which is conducting roundtable discussions on inflation problems.

Must Follow Pattern

Tonight's wage order relaxed the general wage freeze which was clamped on last week.

The wage board specified however the increases must follow "established patterns" in effect in 1950. Officials further stressed the thaw in the freeze will not permit general across-the-board pay hikes.

Clark Kerr, a member of the nine-man wage board, described the action as "an interim one."

He said the order was designed to permit "day to day pay adjustments" in the country's industrial production picture.

He estimated that millions of workers—virtually all of the hourly wage earners in the country—will be affected by the relaxation.

Records Tumble As East Shivers

[By The Associated Press]

Millions of Americans shivered Friday under a frigid wave that smashed long-standing cold records in some areas. The death toll rose to 169.

Sharp cold punished most of the nation but the hardest blows landed on the Midwest and Kentucky.

The 35 below zero at Greensburg was the lowest ever officially recorded in Indiana. It was two degrees under the previous bottom, a -33 reached at La Fayette in 1887.

But there was brisk competition for the low spots on the weather's totem pole.

The mass of cold air that had enveloped the middle of the nation moved to the East. Rising temperatures were forecast for the winter-weary Midwest.

Meantime, the cold, and the snow and sleet storms that struck earlier in the week slowed the pace of daily activity in many sections.

Hundreds of schools either were locked or attended by small classes fruit crop losses mounted.

The extreme cold forced some natural gas companies to cut down the flow of gas to big industrial customers. Some factories closed. Reasons for the curtailment were the increased demand and pipe line leaks.

Aide To Truman Influenced RFC, Senate Is Told

Committee Reports Abuses By Directors

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—A White House aide was named by the Senate Banking Committee today as one of a group which "exercised influence" over the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, multi-billion dollar government lending agency.

The committee declared in an official report to the Senate that three of the five RFC directors "seriously abused" the corporation's authority by submitting to improper outside influence in the making of huge federal loans.

The report named the directors as Walter L. Dunham, William E. Willett and C. Edward Rowe. It mode no mention of the other two members, Chairman W. Elmer Harber and Walter Cosgriff.

Deny Any Wrongdoing

While the report declared flatly that the three directors it named had abused the RFC's authority, it emphasized that the committee "expressed no opinion as to the propriety of the activities of the other individuals named in this report and makes no charges against these individuals."

The report told of testimony that Donald Dawson, who advises President Truman on personnel matters, "tried to dominate the RFC" and had a great deal of success.

Dawson could not be reached for comment. He is due back Monday from a trip to Brazil.

11-Month Investigation

The Banking Committee, which twice has blocked Senate confirmation of President Truman's nominations of the five directors, said it has evidence of White House intervention in RFC affairs, and of influence by others.

In an accompanying statement, Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), acting chairman of the committee, said the RFC is infected with "institutional dry rot." He demanded that Congress abolish the board and place a single administrator at the head of RFC.

Fulbright headed an 11-month investigation of RFC for the Banking Committee, and is author of legislation to force a shakeup of RFC management and broad reforms of its policies.

Truman's Plans For Big Tax Hike Draw GOP Fire

President Asks Quick $10 Billion Increase

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman called today for a quick $10,000,000,000 tax increase and alerted Congress for still another increase later this year.

His program aroused instant and sharp Republican criticism.

Mr. Truman recommended these immediate additions to the tax load:

Individual income taxpayers, $4,000,000,000; corporations, $3,000,000,000, and excise (sales) taxes, $3,000,000,000.

These increases, if adopted, would raise the total federal tax take to an estimated $64,200,000,000. The largest amount of taxes collected in any one year thus far was $43,000,000,000 in wartime 1945.

That budget tentatively calls for spending $71,600,000,000 in the next fiscal year beginning July 1. It admittedly is subject to change, depending on the swiftness with which the country can start turning out the vast quantities of military supplies and equipment needed to build up the defenses of the United States and its allies.

Thus it appeared that the next tax boosting request will call for a very substantial amount — perhaps $6,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 — to achieve the President's aim of a pay-as-we-go preparedness program.

Mr. Truman, however, mentioned no figure in this connection.

Even before the tax message went to Capitol Hill, Sen. Byrd (D-Va) had declared a single $10,000,000,000 tax boost would be enough if proper economy was exercised in passing on the Truman spending program.

In his special message, Mr. Truman presented little more than the bare girders of the new tax structure he proposed. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder is to fill in the details when the House Ways and Means Committee starts hearings Monday.

The President said the personal income tax is and should remain "the mainstay of our federal tax system." He declared small taxpayers, as well as big, must shoulder an increase, because the bulk of the personal income in this country is received by persons in the $2,000-$10,000 brackets.

In about his only specific recommendation, he said the present $600 exemption allowed taxpayers for themselves and each dependent should be retained.

6 Shapely WAVEs Working At SHAPE

PARIS, Feb. 2 (AP)—Six shapely WAVEs went to work at SHAPE today, the Navy's contribution to General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's secretarial staff.

The WAVEs, plus four Navy enlisted yeomen, were assigned to duty here by the Department of Defense. They joined 33 WACs (Women's Army Corps) already assigned to the headquarters of Gen. Eisenhower's Atlantic pact army headquarters. Only a dozen or so of the WACs are permanently stationed in the headquarters. The others are on temporary duty from Germany.

Ten WAFs (Women's Air Force) are due in about two weeks.

Jeritza To Return

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP) — Maria Jeritza, who won fame for her blonde beauty as well as her singing, will return to the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House Feb. 22 for the first time in 19 years.

The dramatic soprano, now 62, will appear as Rosalinda in Johann Strauss's "Fledermaus." The performance is for the benefit of the $750,000 fund the metropolitan is raising to meet increased expenses.

Ham Radio Operators Keep Trains Running In South

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 2 (AP)—Amateur radio operators — or "hams" as they are called—kept trains rolling and communications open today while Dixie lay paralyzed under the century's severest sheath of ice and snow.

"The hams kept the Illinois Central running," declared Superintendent S. J. Massey, Jr., of the New Orleans to Chicago Railroad. "They were our only contact with the outside world."

The hams handled all of the I. C.'s communications, relaying departure times and keeping each station advised on where the trains were and their probable arrival time up the road.

Hams help for the I. C. was the most extensive because that road serves the area worst hit by the storm, but the Southern, Frisco, Texas Pacific, Southern Pacific and Gulf, Mobile and Ohio received assistance too.

Airline schedules, cancelled during the peak of the storm, resumed after skies cleared. Bus lines remained icebound except for short stretches of cleared highways.

Allied Shells Halt Small Red Counterblows

Weather, Terrain Slow U. N. Advance

TOKYO, Saturday, Feb. 3 (AP)—Night-long Allied artillery fire broke up small Chinese Red counterattacks last night on the frigid Western Korean war front where United Nations troops Friday scored gains of more than two miles.

The temperature dropped to 25 below zero after a thaw. It was the coldest it had been since the start of the nine-day-old U. N. offensive, which has gained 20 miles.

A dispatch from AP Correspondent Jim Becker said parachute-borne flares kept the front north of Suwon lighted while thousands of shells burst among the masses of Chinese troops. Suwon is 17 air miles south of Seoul, the fallen capital of Republican Korea.

Heavy fog and rugged terrain hampered the cautiously-advancing Allies Friday. One tank-led spearhead pushed to undisclosed points north of Anyang, eight miles south of Seoul.

Becker said the Chinese managed attacks at two points. One was 10 miles northwest of Suwon, the other about eight miles north of Suwon.

In one attack, the Reds gained a small hill occupied by Turkish troops the last two days.

The attack then shifted to the east and was broken up by U. S. troops, the Eighth Army said.

The Allied positions eight miles north of Suwon were under Red mortar, machine gun and small arms fire from dusk until dawn.

Showing signs of life after two nights of comparative quiet, the Chinese tried to mount small counterattacks at several points, Becker reported. But Allied 105 and 155 millimeter howitzers smashed the counterattacks before the Reds could get their attacks under way.

The announced purpose of the Allied push in the west is to drive the enemy from all his positions south of the Han River, which flows through Seoul.

"Unusually large numbers" of enemy vehicles were on the move throughout North Korea Friday night, U. S. Fifth Air Force pilots reported. The traffic, they reported, was abnormally heavy along the east coast. Most of the traffic was headed south.

Chinese and North Korean troops facing the U. N. spearhead north of Anyang retreated amid a spatter of small-arms fire.

Elsewhere along the Korean front, there was little enemy contact. The Reds seemed to be pulling back from the Allied artillery and aerial attacks which had claimed more than 9,000 Communist casualties since the offensive began Jan. 25.

Chou Blasts U. S., U. N. Resolution

TOKYO, Saturday, Feb. 3 (AP) — Communist China's Premier said today the "United States government and its accomplices" want war and have "blocked the path to a peaceful settlement in Korea."

Chou En-Lai's statement came in a Peiping radio broadcast giving Red China's first official reaction to the United Nations resolution branding his country an aggressor in the Korean war. The broadcast was monitored in Tokyo.

The No. 2 man of Communist China declared his regime "will absolutely pay no attention to a U. N. "good offices" committee proposed in the resolution to help bring the conflict to an end.

The Premier, who also is the foreign minister, said the resolution "in a most naked way proves to the peace-loving people of the world that the United States government and its accomplices want not peace but war and that they have blocked the path to a peaceful settlement."

School Bus Driver Pulls Off Road, Dies

MONROE, Mich., Feb. 2 (AP) — A school bus driver carrying a load of youngsters to their classes pulled over to the side of the road today and died of a heart attack.

The driver, Edward Billmaier, 58, Ida, Mich., was taking the pupils to the Ida Rural Agricultural School.

He slowed the bus and told the 10 passengers:

"I'm going to pull over and put my head down for a minute."

He brought the bus to a halt and died.

Cugie's Wife Gives Deposition

Mrs. Lorraine Cugat, wife of Bandleader Xavier Cugat, is questioned by Attorney S. S. Hahn while giving a deposition at Los Angeles yesterday regarding what she saw when she found Cugat in a Chicago hotel room with Singer Abbe Lane. Hahn, representing Miss Lane, wanted Mrs. Cugat to produce photographs which she says show Miss Lane "naked as a jaybird," but Mrs. Cugat said they were in safekeeping outside the state.

Government Applies Both Legal Action, Persuasion In Effort To End Rail Tieup

By The Associated Press

The government applied both legal action and persuasion Friday in an effort to end the switchmen's "sick call" strike that is progressively paralyzing the nation's rail service and crippling industrial production.

The White House said the work stoppage is "directly injuring our national security" and that "the American people can tolerate no other outcome" than a return to work.

Saying he was speaking for President Truman, Joseph Short, presidential press secretary, told reporters that the switchmen "cannot be justified in preventing the flow of food and fuel for our people and supplies for our soldiers."

Government Asks Strikers' Names

In Chicago, leaders of the key union in the walkout, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, were summoned into federal court on a contempt citation. The contempt citations stem from a similar "sick call" walkout of switchmen at the height of the Christmas mailing rush in mid-December.

The government took steps at the contempt hearing to obtain the names of every switchman who took part in the December walkout, in its effort to prove that the work stoppage was a concerted action and not the result of sickness.

These are the highlights of the fourth day of the strike:

1—Rail links betwen major cities of the nation were breaking apart. Twenty five major through trains from New York to the West and five New York-Florida trains were cancelled.

Combat Rations Start Moving

2—The Army Quartermaster Depot in Chicago reported 250,000 combat rations for American troops in Korea began moving out after a three-day delay. Supervisory personnel handled the switching. The depot said 1,300,000 special winter gloves, earmarked for Korea, were delayed.

3—The number of industrial and mine workers made idle by the strike shot well above 150,000. Some 116,000 automobile workers alone were idle across the country. Mining, steel, radio, and television production have been hit.

4—The Railway Express Agency extended the express embargo it imposed Wednesday. It stopped immediately the movement of express to and from many points within the 14 state area hardest hit by the strike.

Colder-Than-Usual February Is Seen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) —The Weather Bureau said today February likely will be colder than usual in most sections of the country.

"The 30-day outlook for the month of February calls for temperatures averaging below normal in all parts of the country except for near to above normal in the extreme Southwest, New England, and Florida.

"Precipitation is expected to exceed normal from the Mississippi eastward to the Atlantic Coast."

Fourth A-Blast Causes Damage

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Feb. 2 (AP)—The fourth atom blast in a week shook Las Vegas like an earthquake today.

Concussion was the heaviest yet, and a big window in a furniture store shattered under the strain. One witness said other windows "bulged in and out like balloons. I thought they were all going to go."

The man in the street wondered out loud what the Russians think about it all.

Boomed a booted cattleman: "They've only shot off one, haven't they? Look at us, four in a week."

"Pretty expensive,' 'a poker dealer put in, "but I'm sure it's worth it."

Some citizens thought today's shock was about as much rocking as the city could take without extensive damage. Even the city's low buildings were jarred, and a four-story hotel trembled violently.

Commented a farmer: "If it gets much stronger it will do a lot of damage. It might knock some of the old buildings down."

The white flash, quickly turning to orange and finally fading in a reddish yellow core, came at 5:49 a. m. (Pacific Standard Time.) It took six minutes for the concussion to reach here, putting the distance at roughly 75 miles.

Official Admits Deal With Red China 'Bad'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—A government official acknowledged today the United States made "a bad deal" last May when it agreed to send cotton to Red China in exchange for soybeans.

He was L. C. Holmes, secretary to the Commodity Credit Corporation Board, the agency that handles the government's buying and selling of surplus farm products. He appeared before a Senate Commerce Subcommittee looking into trade with Red China and other Communist-controlled nations.

Holmes said at the time the deal was made, cotton in this country was in excess of "known and foreseeable' requirements and it was felt desirable to move CCC-held cotton into the world trade.

No New Decision To Stop At 38th, Gross Declares

U. N. Command Stands Firm On Its Terms

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 2 (AP) — Ambassador Ernest A. Gross, deputy United States delegate to the United Nations, said tonight there has been no new decision to stop the United Nations armies at the 38th parallel. He said the United Nations command is standing firm on its terms for a cease-fire laid down to a U.N. cease-fire group in December.

Gross commented to newsmen on reports from Washington that a decision had been made there to halt the U. N. armies at the 38th parallel in order to create an atmosphere for peaceful settlement. It was the first definite statement from any source since the report was received last night here and produced a furore at U. N.

The comment was taken in informed circles here to mean that the unified command still has authority to do what it considers best in fighting aggression in Korea.

Some U. N. delegates unofficially expressed their support for the idea, and it was known tonight they still favor a temporary halt somewhere in mid-Korea.

The Americans here pointed to the terms of the cease-fire as stated to the cease-fire group by Gross and Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenberger, representing the unified command. The second paragraph of these terms, known to have been drawn up by the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, stated that there shall be established a demilitarized area across Korea approximately 20 miles in depth with the southern limit following generally the line of the 38th parallel.

This still stands as the minimum condition the unified command would accept in any cease-fire arrangement, the Americans said.

48 More Casualties

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 48 additional Korean casualties. The casualty list (No. 216) included five killed or died of wounds, 24 wounded, two missing in action and 17 injured in accidents.

Doctor Gives Boston Quads 'Wonderful Chance' To Live

BOSTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Four babies were born today to a policeman's wife who had "bought clothes for one" and by their first night feeding tonight were a famous four with a "wonderful chance."

The rare quadruple birth of two boys and two girls—occurring only once in 512,000 births and listed only once before in century-old Massachusetts records—dazzled and delighted the Robert J. Allens.

Allen, 41, is six feet two and a patrolman who takes home $53.03-a-week. The boys at headquarters said he is known as the "Deacon" because "he's so easy going and quiet."

His wife, Helen, 31, and 110 pounds, was awake and chipper shortly after the arrivals of her tiny youngsters. They kept this schedule:

Karen Elizabeth, one pound, four ounces 7:11 a. m. (EST); Robert, Jr., three pounds, three ounces 7:15 a. m.; Timothy, two pounds, three ounces 7:20 a. m.; Kathleen, two pounds, eight ounces, 7:25 a. m.

At Children's Hospital where the infants were rushed to incubators after their birth at small Audubon Hospital a short distance away, Dr. Stewart H. Clifford was as enthused as Dad Allen.

The tots have "a wonderful chance," said Dr. Clifford. "Barring accidents, three are in wonderful shape; one had a little rocky time and has to get that lung open." Kathleen, he explained, has a condition which is keeping her lungs from operating at full efficiency.

But he said he expected that to clear up shortly.

Urges Nation To 'Seize Lead' In Erecting It

U. S. Must Help Man European Fortress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower tonight called on Americans to "seize the lead" in building across Europe" a wall of security for the free world behind which free institutions can live."

"That wall," he said, "must be maintained until Communist imperialism dies of its own inherent evils."

It will take troops— "transfer to Europe of American military units supreme commander of the North Atlantic defense forces sought to de-emphasize this controversial subject.

"Our major and special contribution should be in the field of munitions and equipment," he declared; It is Europes "most immediate need" for building their armies.

Disagrees With Hoover

"The European nations must, of course, produce and maintain the great bulk of the land forces necessary to their defense, he added.

In his address, broadcast to the nation, Eisenhower counselled:

"The arrival in Europe of new American land and air units, though modest in protective influence by themselves, will certainly produce added confidence and accelerate the production of military force throughout the member nations."

Eisenhower took direct issue with arguments advanced by former President Herbert Hoover and others that the United States should concentrate on defending the Western Hemisphere, the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and important islands. Hoover has said that Europe should build its own barrier against Russian aggression.

Eisenhower, without mentioning Hoover or any one else by name, said it would be "utter hopelessness" to abandon the North Atlantic Treaty and by ourselves try to build "a separate fortress against threatening aggression."

If Western Europe should fall, Southeastern Asia probably would soon be lost; materials needed for American existence likely would be shut off in various regions of the world, he added.

European Morale Up

Eisenhower pictured European morale leaping forward with every advance in the defense buildup.

"By no means," he commented, "do I believe that we Americans can support the world militarily or economically. In our own interest, we must insist on a working partnership with every nation making the common security its task of first priority."

Earlier, on Capitol Hill Eisenhower urged the dispatch soon of more fighting units to Europe. No number was specified.

One unit sent now will be worth two or three later in the vast rearmament effort because of the physical and psychological factors involved, the North Atlantic military leader said.

5,300 Frostbite Cases Among GIs

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—There were 5,300 frostbite cases among U. S. troops in Korea through December, the Army's Surgeon General reported today.

The Army reported 2,800 such casualties and the Navy and Marine Corps 2,500, Maj. Gen. R. W. Bliss told a news conference.

Bliss said the extent of American weather casualties in Korea "had been greatly exaggerated." He said that 566 of the Army's most serious frostbite cases had been returned to the United States and that only 1,275 of the total Army weather patients had been considered sufficiently serious to warrant transfer from Korea to hospitals in Japan or the United States.

The Surgeon General said that between 10 and 20 per cent of the Army frostbite patients in U. S. Army hospitals had required varying degrees of amputation.

Two U. S. Mustangs, "Spotter" Shot Down

U. S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Saturday, Feb. 3 (AP)— Three U. S. Mustang fighters and a light spotter plane were shot down by ground fire in Korea yesterday, the Fifth Air Force said today.

The three Mustang pilots were presumed lost, a communique said. The two crewmen of the spotter plane were rescued by a helicopter of the Third Air Rescue Squadron.

Records Tumble As East Shivers

[By The Associated Press]

Millions of Americans shivered Friday under a frigid wave that smashed long-standing cold records in some areas. The death toll rose to 169.

Sharp cold punished most of the nation but the hardest blows landed on the Midwest and Kentucky.

The 35 below zero at Greensburg was the lowest ever officially recorded in Indiana. It was two degrees under the previous bottom, a -33 reached at La Fayette in 1887.

But there was brisk competition for the low spots on the weather's totem pole.

The mass of cold air that had enveloped the middle of the nation moved to the East. Rising temperatures were forecast for the winter-weary Midwest.

Meantime, the cold, and the snow and sleet storms that struck earlier in the week slowed the pace of daily activity in many sections.

Hundreds of schools either were locked or attended by small classes fruit crop losses mounted.

The extreme cold forced some natural gas companies to cut down the flow of gas to big industrial customers. Some factories closed. Reasons for the curtailment were the increased demand and pipe line leaks.

Ham Radio Operators Keep Trains Running In South

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 2 (AP)—Amateur radio operators — or "hams" as they are called—kept trains rolling and communications open today while Dixie lay paralyzed under the century's severest sheath of ice and snow.

"The hams kept the Illinois Central running," declared Superintendent S. J. Massey, Jr., of the New Orleans to Chicago Railroad. "They were our only contact with the outside world."

The hams handled all of the I. C.'s communications, relaying departure times and keeping each station advised on where the trains were and their probable arrival time up the road.

Hams help for the I. C. was the most extensive because that road serves the area worst hit by the storm, but the Southern, Frisco, Texas Pacific, Southern Pacific and Gulf, Mobile and Ohio received assistance too.

Airline schedules, cancelled during the peak of the storm, resumed after skies cleared. Bus lines remained icebound except for short stretches of cleared highways.

Allied Shells Halt Small Red Counterblows

Weather, Terrain Slow U. N. Advance

TOKYO, Saturday, Feb. 3 (AP)—Night-long Allied artillery fire broke up small Chinese Red counterattacks last night on the frigid Western Korean war front where United Nations troops Friday scored gains of more than two miles.

The temperature dropped to 25 below zero after a thaw. It was the coldest it had been since the start of the nine-day-old U. N. offensive, which has gained 20 miles.

A dispatch from AP Correspondent Jim Becker said parachute-borne flares kept the front north of Suwon lighted while thousands of shells burst among the masses of Chinese troops. Suwon is 17 air miles south of Seoul, the fallen capital of Republican Korea.

Heavy fog and rugged terrain hampered the cautiously-advancing Allies Friday. One tank-led spearhead pushed to undisclosed points north of Anyang, eight miles south of Seoul.

Becker said the Chinese managed attacks at two points. One was 10 miles northwest of Suwon, the other about eight miles north of Suwon.

In one attack, the Reds gained a small hill occupied by Turkish troops the last two days.

The attack then shifted to the east and was broken up by U. S. troops, the Eighth Army said.

The Allied positions eight miles north of Suwon were under Red mortar, machine gun and small arms fire from dusk until dawn.

Showing signs of life after two nights of comparative quiet, the Chinese tried to mount small counterattacks at several points, Becker reported. But Allied 105 and 155 millimeter howitzers smashed the counterattacks before the Reds could get their attacks under way.

The announced purpose of the Allied push in the west is to drive the enemy from all his positions south of the Han River, which flows through Seoul.

"Unusually large numbers" of enemy vehicles were on the move throughout North Korea Friday night, U. S. Fifth Air Force pilots reported. The traffic, they reported, was abnormally heavy along the east coast. Most of the traffic was headed south.

Chinese and North Korean troops facing the U. N. spearhead north of Anyang retreated amid a spatter of small-arms fire.

Elsewhere along the Korean front, there was little enemy contact. The Reds seemed to be pulling back from the Allied artillery and aerial attacks which had claimed more than 9,000 Communist casualties since the offensive began Jan. 25.

Chou Blasts U. S., U. N. Resolution

TOKYO, Saturday, Feb. 3 (AP) — Communist China's Premier said today the "United States government and its accomplices" want war and have "blocked the path to a peaceful settlement in Korea."

Chou En-Lai's statement came in a Peiping radio broadcast giving Red China's first official reaction to the United Nations resolution branding his country an aggressor in the Korean war. The broadcast was monitored in Tokyo.

The No. 2 man of Communist China declared his regime "will absolutely pay no attention to a U. N. "good offices" committee proposed in the resolution to help bring the conflict to an end.

The Premier, who also is the foreign minister, said the resolution "in a most naked way proves to the peace-loving people of the world that the United States government and its accomplices want not peace but war and that they have blocked the path to a peaceful settlement."

School Bus Driver Pulls Off Road, Dies

MONROE, Mich., Feb. 2 (AP) — A school bus driver carrying a load of youngsters to their classes pulled over to the side of the road today and died of a heart attack.

He slowed the bus and told the 10 passengers:

"I'm going to pull over and put my head down for a minute."

He brought the bus to a halt and died.

Government Applies Both Legal Action, Persuasion In Effort To End Rail Tieup

By The Associated Press

The government applied both legal action and persuasion Friday in an effort to end the switchmen's "sick call" strike that is progressively paralyzing the nation's rail service and crippling industrial production.

The White House said the work stoppage is "directly injuring our national security" and that "the American people can tolerate no other outcome" than a return to work.

Saying he was speaking for President Truman, Joseph Short, presidential press secretary, told reporters that the switchmen "cannot be justified in preventing the flow of food and fuel for our people and supplies for our soldiers."

Government Asks Strikers' Names

In Chicago, leaders of the key union in the walkout, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, were summoned into federal court on a contempt citation. The contempt citations stem from a similar "sick call" walkout of switchmen at the height of the Christmas mailing rush in mid-December.

The government took steps at the contempt hearing to obtain the names of every switchman who took part in the December walkout, in its effort to prove that the work stoppage was a concerted action and not the result of sickness.

These are the highlights of the fourth day of the strike:

1—Rail links betwen major cities of the nation were breaking apart. Twenty five major through trains from New York to the West and five New York-Florida trains were cancelled.

Combat Rations Start Moving

2—The Army Quartermaster Depot in Chicago reported 250,000 combat rations for American troops in Korea began moving out after a three-day delay. Supervisory personnel handled the switching. The depot said 1,300,000 special winter gloves, earmarked for Korea, were delayed.

3—The number of industrial and mine workers made idle by the strike shot well above 150,000. Some 116,000 automobile workers alone were idle across the country. Mining, steel, radio, and television production have been hit.

4—The Railway Express Agency extended the express embargo it imposed Wednesday. It stopped immediately the movement of express to and from many points within the 14 state area hardest hit by the strike.

Colder-Than-Usual February Is Seen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) —The Weather Bureau said today February likely will be colder than usual in most sections of the country.

"The 30-day outlook for the month of February calls for temperatures averaging below normal in all parts of the country except for near to above normal in the extreme Southwest, New England, and Florida.

"Precipitation is expected to exceed normal from the Mississippi eastward to the Atlantic Coast."

Fourth A-Blast Causes Damage

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Feb. 2 (AP)—The fourth atom blast in a week shook Las Vegas like an earthquake today.

Concussion was the heaviest yet, and a big window in a furniture store shattered under the strain. One witness said other windows "bulged in and out like balloons. I thought they were all going to go."

The man in the street wondered out loud what the Russians think about it all.

Boomed a booted cattleman: "They've only shot off one, haven't they? Look at us, four in a week."

"Pretty expensive,' 'a poker dealer put in, "but I'm sure it's worth it."

Some citizens thought today's shock was about as much rocking as the city could take without extensive damage. Even the city's low buildings were jarred, and a four-story hotel trembled violently.

Commented a farmer: "If it gets much stronger it will do a lot of damage. It might knock some of the old buildings down."

The white flash, quickly turning to orange and finally fading in a reddish yellow core, came at 5:49 a. m. (Pacific Standard Time.) It took six minutes for the concussion to reach here, putting the distance at roughly 75 miles.

Official Admits Deal With Red China 'Bad'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—A government official acknowledged today the United States made "a bad deal" last May when it agreed to send cotton to Red China in exchange for soybeans.

He was L. C. Holmes, secretary to the Commodity Credit Corporation Board, the agency that handles the government's buying and selling of surplus farm products. He appeared before a Senate Commerce Subcommittee looking into trade with Red China and other Communist-controlled nations.

Holmes said at the time the deal was made, cotton in this country was in excess of "known and foreseeable' requirements and it was felt desirable to move CCC-held cotton into the world trade.

No New Decision To Stop At 38th, Gross Declares

U. N. Command Stands Firm On Its Terms

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 2 (AP) — Ambassador Ernest A. Gross, deputy United States delegate to the United Nations, said tonight there has been no new decision to stop the United Nations armies at the 38th parallel. He said the United Nations command is standing firm on its terms for a cease-fire laid down to a U.N. cease-fire group in December.

Gross commented to newsmen on reports from Washington that a decision had been made there to halt the U. N. armies at the 38th parallel in order to create an atmosphere for peaceful settlement. It was the first definite statement from any source since the report was received last night here and produced a furore at U. N.

The comment was taken in informed circles here to mean that the unified command still has authority to do what it considers best in fighting aggression in Korea.

Some U. N. delegates unofficially expressed their support for the idea, and it was known tonight they still favor a temporary halt somewhere in mid-Korea.

The Americans here pointed to the terms of the cease-fire as stated to the cease-fire group by Gross and Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenberger, representing the unified command. The second paragraph of these terms, known to have been drawn up by the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, stated that there shall be established a demilitarized area across Korea approximately 20 miles in depth with the southern limit following generally the line of the 38th parallel.

This still stands as the minimum condition the unified command would accept in any cease-fire arrangement, the Americans said.

48 More Casualties

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 48 additional Korean casualties. The casualty list (No. 216) included five killed or died of wounds, 24 wounded, two missing in action and 17 injured in accidents.

Doctor Gives Boston Quads 'Wonderful Chance' To Live

BOSTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Four babies were born today to a policeman's wife who had "bought clothes for one" and by their first night feeding tonight were a famous four with a "wonderful chance."

The rare quadruple birth of two boys and two girls—occurring only once in 512,000 births and listed only once before in century-old Massachusetts records—dazzled and delighted the Robert J. Allens.

Allen, 41, is six feet two and a patrolman who takes home $53.03-a-week. The boys at headquarters said he is known as the "Deacon" because "he's so easy going and quiet."

His wife, Helen, 31, and 110 pounds, was awake and chipper shortly after the arrivals of her tiny youngsters. They kept this schedule:

Karen Elizabeth, one pound, four ounces 7:11 a. m. (EST); Robert, Jr., three pounds, three ounces 7:15 a. m.; Timothy, two pounds, three ounces 7:20 a. m.; Kathleen, two pounds, eight ounces, 7:25 a. m.

At Children's Hospital where the infants were rushed to incubators after their birth at small Audubon Hospital a short distance away, Dr. Stewart H. Clifford was as enthused as Dad Allen.

The tots have "a wonderful chance," said Dr. Clifford. "Barring accidents, three are in wonderful shape; one had a little rocky time and has to get that lung open." Kathleen, he explained, has a condition which is keeping her lungs from operating at full efficiency.

But he said he expected that to clear up shortly.

Urges Nation To 'Seize Lead' In Erecting It

U. S. Must Help Man European Fortress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower tonight called on Americans to "seize the lead" in building across Europe" a wall of security for the free world behind which free institutions can live."

"That wall," he said, "must be maintained until Communist imperialism dies of its own inherent evils."

It will take troops— "transfer to Europe of American military units supreme commander of the North Atlantic defense forces sought to de-emphasize this controversial subject.

"Our major and special contribution should be in the field of munitions and equipment," he declared; It is Europes "most immediate need" for building their armies.

Disagrees With Hoover

"The European nations must, of course, produce and maintain the great bulk of the land forces necessary to their defense, he added.

In his address, broadcast to the nation, Eisenhower counselled:

"The arrival in Europe of new American land and air units, though modest in protective influence by themselves, will certainly produce added confidence and accelerate the production of military force throughout the member nations."

Eisenhower took direct issue with arguments advanced by former President Herbert Hoover and others that the United States should concentrate on defending the Western Hemisphere, the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and important islands. Hoover has said that Europe should build its own barrier against Russian aggression.

Eisenhower, without mentioning Hoover or any one else by name, said it would be "utter hopelessness" to abandon the North Atlantic Treaty and by ourselves try to build "a separate fortress against threatening aggression."

If Western Europe should fall, Southeastern Asia probably would soon be lost; materials needed for American existence likely would be shut off in various regions of the world, he added.

European Morale Up

Eisenhower pictured European morale leaping forward with every advance in the defense buildup.

"By no means," he commented, "do I believe that we Americans can support the world militarily or economically. In our own interest, we must insist on a working partnership with every nation making the common security its task of first priority."

Earlier, on Capitol Hill Eisenhower urged the dispatch soon of more fighting units to Europe. No number was specified.

One unit sent now will be worth two or three later in the vast rearmament effort because of the physical and psychological factors involved, the North Atlantic military leader said.

5,300 Frostbite Cases Among GIs

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—There were 5,300 frostbite cases among U. S. troops in Korea through December, the Army's Surgeon General reported today.

The Army reported 2,800 such casualties and the Navy and Marine Corps 2,500, Maj. Gen. R. W. Bliss told a news conference.

Bliss said the extent of American weather casualties in Korea "had been greatly exaggerated." He said that 566 of the Army's most serious frostbite cases had been returned to the United States and that only 1,275 of the total Army weather patients had been considered sufficiently serious to warrant transfer from Korea to hospitals in Japan or the United States.

The Surgeon General said that between 10 and 20 per cent of the Army frostbite patients in U. S. Army hospitals had required varying degrees of amputation.

Two U. S. Mustangs, "Spotter" Shot Down

U. S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Saturday, Feb. 3 (AP)— Three U. S. Mustang fighters and a light spotter plane were shot down by ground fire in Korea yesterday, the Fifth Air Force said today.

The three Mustang pilots were presumed lost, a communique said. The two crewmen of the spotter plane were rescued by a helicopter of the Third Air Rescue Squadron.

'IKE' CALLS FOR 'SECURITY WALL'

Further Thaw In Pay Freeze Is Announced

Merit, Service Wage Increases May Be Granted

Retail Coal Dealers May Boost Prices

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The government tonight unfroze wages and salaries of millions of workers to perimt pay hikes for merit and length of service.

However, the Wage Stabilization Board said employers can't raise prices to offset pay increases they may grant under the new regulation.

Another government order gave retail coal dealers permission to moost their prices as much as 25 cents on soft coal and 90 cents on anthracite tomorrow. This passes along the increase allowed to producers yesterday to pay for wage raises given John L. Lewis' miners.

Officials have said they expected the actual increase to be less than 90 and 25 cents because of coal's competitive position with other fuels.

Doubts Meat Ceilings Hold

Meanwhile, a former OPA official told Congress he doubts the present ceilings on meat prices will hold in view of great demand.

The witness, J. Kenneth Galgraith, onetime deputy director of the Office of Price Administration, said that even if the meat prices held, the attempt to meet demand would be a heavy drain on feed supplies.

Rising feed prices would in turn force up prices of milk, poultry and eggs, Galbraith said.

Meat prices were frozen along with most other prices at current levels a week ago.

Galbraith said the key dangers to wage-price stability were in a relatively few items—food, basic clothing and rent. "None of these later is now securely controlled," he said.

Galbraith appeared before the Senate-House Economic Committee which is conducting roundtable discussions on inflation problems.

Must Follow Pattern

Tonight's wage order relaxed the general wage freeze which was clamped on last week.

The wage board specified however the increases must follow "established patterns" in effect in 1950. Officials further stressed the thaw in the freeze will not permit general across-the-board pay hikes.

Clark Kerr, a member of the nine-man wage board, described the action as "an interim one."

He said the order was designed to permit "day to day pay adjustments" in the country's industrial production picture.

He estimated that millions of workers—virtually all of the hourly wage earners in the country—will be affected by the relaxation.

CRITICIZED—In a report to Congress yesterday, the Senate Banking Committee accused the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of political favoritism and mismanagement in making of multi-million dollar loans. Among board members singled out for criticism was William E. Willett (above). (AP Wirephoto)

Aide To Truman Influenced RFC, Senate Is Told

Committee Reports Abuses By Directors

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—A White House aide was named by the Senate Banking Committee today as one of a group which "exercised influence" over the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, multi-billion dollar government lending agency.

The committee declared in an official report to the Senate that three of the five RFC directors "seriously abused" the corporation's authority by submitting to improper outside influence in the making of huge federal loans.

The report named the directors as Walter L. Dunham, William E. Willett and C. Edward Rowe. It mode no mention of the other two members, Chairman W. Elmer Harber and Walter Cosgriff.

Deny Any Wrongdoing

While the report declared flatly that the three directors it named had abused the RFC's authority, it emphasized that the committee "expressed no opinion as to the propriety of the activities of the other individuals named in this report and makes no charges against these individuals."

The report told of testimony that Donald Dawson, who advises President Truman on personnel matters, "tried to dominate the RFC" and had a great deal of success.

Dawson could not be reached for comment. He is due back Monday from a trip to Brazil.

11-Month Investigation

The Banking Committee, which twice has blocked Senate confirmation of President Truman's nominations of the five directors, said it has evidence of White House intervention in RFC affairs, and of influence by others.

In an accompanying statement, Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), acting chairman of the committee, said the RFC is infected with "institutional dry rot." He demanded that Congress abolish the board and place a single administrator at the head of RFC.

Fulbright headed an 11-month investigation of RFC for the Banking Committee, and is author of legislation to force a shakeup of RFC management and broad reforms of its policies.

Truman's Plans For Big Tax Hike Draw GOP Fire

President Asks Quick $10 Billion Increase

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman called today for a quick $10,000,000,000 tax increase and alerted Congress for still another increase later this year.

His program aroused insiant and sharp Republican criticism.

Mr. Truman recommended these immediate additions to the tax load:

Individual income taxpayers, $4,000,000,000; corporations, $3,000,000,000, and excise (sales) taxes, $3,000,000,000.

These increases, if adopted, would raise the total federal tax take to an estimated $64,200,000,000. The largest amount of taxes collected in any one year thus far was $43,000,000,000 in wartime 1945.

That budget tentatively calls for spending $71,600,000,000 in the next fiscal year beginning July 1. It admittedly is subject to change, depending on the swiftness with which the country can start turning out the vast quantities of military supplies and equipment needed to build up the defenses of the United States and its allies.

Thus it appeared that the next tax boosting request will call for a very substantial amount — perhaps $6,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 — to achieve the President's aim of a pay-as-we-go preparedness program.

Mr. Truman, however, mentioned no figure in this connection.

Even before the tax message went to Capitol Hill, Sen. Byrd (D-Va) had declared a single $10,000,000,000 tax boost would be enough if proper economy was exercised in passing on the Truman spending program.

In his special message, Mr. Truman presented little more than the bare girders of the new tax structure he proposed. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder is to fill in the details when the House Ways and Means Committee starts hearings Monday.

The President said the personal income tax is and should remain "the mainstay of our federal tax system." He declared small taxpayers, as well as big, must shoulder an increase, because the bulk of the personal income in this country is received by persons in the $2,000-$10,000 brackets.

In about his only specific recommendation, he said the present $600 exemption allowed taxpayers for themselves and each dependent should be retained.

6 Shapely WAVEs Working At SHAPE

PARIS, Feb. 2 (AP)—Six shapely WAVEs went to work at SHAPE today, the Navy's contribution to General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's secretarial staff.

The WAVEs, plus four Navy enlisted yeomen, were assigned to duty here by the Department of Defense. They joined 33 WACs (Women's Army Corps) already assigned to the headquarters of Gen. Eisenhower's Atlantic pact army headquarters. Only a dozen or so of the WACs are permanently stationed in the headquarters. The others are on temporary duty from Germany.

Ten WAFs (Women's Air Force) are due in about two weeks.

Concussion was the heaviest yet, and a big window in a furniture store shattered under the strain. One witness said other windows "bulged in and out like balloons. I thought they were all going to go."

The man in the street wondered out loud what the Russians think about it all.

Boomed a booted cattleman: "They've only shot off one, haven't they? Look at us, four in a week."

"Pretty expensive,' 'a poker dealer put in, "but I'm sure it's worth it."

Some citizens thought today's shock was about as much rocking as the city could take without extensive damage. Even the city's low buildings were jarred, and a four-story hotel trembled violently.

Commented a farmer: "If it gets much stronger it will do a lot of damage. It might knock some of the old buildings down."

The white flash, quickly turning to orange and finally fading in a reddish yellow core, came at 5:49 a. m. (Pacific Standard Time.) It took six minutes for the concussion to reach here, putting the distance at roughly 75 miles.

Official Admits Deal With Red China 'Bad'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—A government official acknowledged today the United States made "a bad deal" last May when it agreed to send cotton to Red China in exchange for soybeans.

He was L. C. Holmes, secretary to the Commodity Credit Corporation Board, the agency that handles the government's buying and selling of surplus farm products. He appeared before a Senate Commerce Subcommittee looking into trade with Red China and other Communist-controlled nations.

Holmes said at the time the deal was made, cotton in this country was in excess of "known and foreseeable' requirements and it was felt desirable to move CCC-held cotton into the world trade.

No New Decision To Stop At 38th, Gross Declares

U. N. Command Stands Firm On Its Terms

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 2 (AP) — Ambassador Ernest A. Gross, deputy United States delegate to the United Nations, said tonight there has been no new decision to stop the United Nations armies at the 38th parallel. He said the United Nations command is standing firm on its terms for a cease-fire laid down to a U.N. cease-fire group in December.

Gross commented to newsmen on reports from Washington that a decision had been made there to halt the U. N. armies at the 38th parallel in order to create an atmosphere for peaceful settlement. It was the first definite statement from any source since the report was received last night here and produced a furore at U. N.

The comment was taken in informed circles here to mean that the unified command still has authority to do what it considers best in fighting aggression in Korea.

Some U. N. delegates unofficially expressed their support for the idea, and it was known tonight they still favor a temporary halt somewhere in mid-Korea.

The Americans here pointed to the terms of the cease-fire as stated to the cease-fire group by Gross and Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenberger, representing the unified command. The second paragraph of these terms, known to have been drawn up by the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, stated that there shall be established a demilitarized area across Korea approximately 20 miles in depth with the southern limit following generally the line of the 38th parallel.

This still stands as the minimum condition the unified command would accept in any cease-fire arrangement, the Americans said.

48 More Casualties

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 48 additional Korean casualties. The casualty list (No. 216) included five killed or died of wounds, 24 wounded, two missing in action and 17 injured in accidents.

Urges Nation To 'Seize Lead' In Erecting It

U. S. Must Help Man European Fortress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower tonight called on Americans to "seize the lead" in building across Europe" a wall of security for the free world behind which free institutions can live."

"That wall," he said, "must be maintained until Communist imperialism dies of its own inherent evils."

It will take troops— "transfer to Europe of American military units supreme commander of the North Atlantic defense forces sought to de-emphasize this controversial subject.

"Our major and special contribution should be in the field of munitions and equipment," he declared; It is Europes "most immediate need" for building their armies.

Disagrees With Hoover

"The European nations must, of course, produce and maintain the great bulk of the land forces necessary to their defense, he added.

In his address, broadcast to the nation, Eisenhower counselled:

"The arrival in Europe of new American land and air units, though modest in protective influence by themselves, will certainly produce added confidence and accelerate the production of military force throughout the member nations."

Eisenhower took direct issue with arguments advanced by former President Herbert Hoover and others that the United States should concentrate on defending the Western Hemisphere, the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and important islands. Hoover has said that Europe should build its own barrier against Russian aggression.

Eisenhower, without mentioning Hoover or any one else by name, said it would be "utter hopelessness" to abandon the North Atlantic Treaty and by ourselves try to build "a separate fortress against threatening aggression."

If Western Europe should fall, Southeastern Asia probably would soon be lost; materials needed for American existence likely would be shut off in various regions of the world, he added.

European Morale Up

Eisenhower pictured European morale leaping forward with every advance in the defense buildup.

"By no means," he commented, "do I believe that we Americans can support the world militarily or economically. In our own interest, we must insist on a working partnership with every nation making the common security its task of first priority."

Earlier, on Capitol Hill Eisenhower urged the dispatch soon of more fighting units to Europe. No number was specified.

One unit sent now will be worth two or three later in the vast rearmament effort because of the physical and psychological factors involved, the North Atlantic military leader said.

5,300 Frostbite Cases Among Gls

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—There were 5,300 frostbite cases among U. S. troops in Korea through December, the Army's Surgeon General reported today.

The Army reported 2,800 such casualties and the Navy and Marine Corps 2,500, Maj. Gen. R. W. Bliss told a news conference.

Bliss said the extent of American weather casualties in Korea "had been greatly exaggerated." He said that 566 of the Army's most serious frostbite cases had been returned to the United States and that only 1,275 of the total Army weather patients had been considered sufficiently serious to warrant transfer from Korea to hospitals in Japan or the United States.

The Surgeon General said that between 10 and 20 per cent of the Army frostbite patients in U. S. Army hospitals had required varying degrees of amputation.

Two U. S. Mustangs, "Spotter" Shot Down

U. S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Saturday, Feb. 3 (AP)— Three U. S. Mustang fighters and a light spotter plane were shot down by ground fire in Korea yesterday, the Fifth Air Force said today.

The three Mustang pilots were presumed lost, a communique said. The two crewmen of the spotter plane were rescued by a helicopter of the Third Air Rescue Squadron.

More Turks To Korea

ANKARA, Turkey, Feb. 2 (AP)—Turkey decided tonight to send an additional 600 troops to reinforce its brigade fighting with United Nations forces in Korea.

Ham Radio Operators Keep Trains Running In South

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 2 (AP)—Amateur radio operators — or "hams" as they are called—kept trains rolling and communications open today while Dixie lay paralyzed under the century's severest sheath of ice and snow.

"The hams kept the Illinois Central running," declared Superintendent S. J. Massey, Jr., of the New Orleans to Chicago Railroad. "They were our only contact with the outside world."

The hams handled all of the I. C.'s communications, relaying departure times and keeping each station advised on where the trains were and their probable arrival time up the road.

Hams help for the I. C. was the most extensive because that road serves the area worst hit by the storm, but the Southern, Frisco, Texas Pacific, Southern Pacific and Gulf, Mobile and Ohio received assistance too.

Airline schedules, cancelled during the peak of the storm, resumed after skies cleared. Bus lines remained icebound except for short stretches of cleared highways.

Doctor Gives Boston Quads 'Wonderful Chance' To Live

BOSTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Four babies were born today to a policeman's wife who had "bought clothes for one" and by their first night feeding tonight were a famous four with a "wonderful chance."

The rare quadruple birth of two boys and two girls—occurring only once in 512,000 births and listed only once before in century-old Massachusetts records—dazzled and delighted the Robert J. Allens.

Allen, 41, is six feet two and a patrolman who takes home $53.03-a-week. The boys at headquarters said he is known as the "Deacon" because "he's so easy going and quiet."

His wife, Helen, 31, and 110 pounds, was awake and chipper shortly after the arrivals of her tiny youngsters. They kept this schedule:

Karen Elizabeth, one pound, four ounces 7:11 a. m. (EST); Robert, Jr., three pounds, three ounces 7:15 a. m.; Timothy, two pounds, three ounces 7:20 a. m.; Kathleen, two pounds, eight ounces, 7:25 a. m.

At Children's Hospital where the infants were rushed to incubators after their birth at small Audubon Hospital a short distance away, Dr. Stewart H. Clifford was as enthused as Dad Allen.

The tots have "a wonderful chance," said Dr. Clifford. "Barring accidents, three are in wonderful shape; one had a little rocky time and has to get that lung open." Kathleen, he explained, has a condition which is keeping her lungs from operating at full efficiency.

But he said he expected that to clear up shortly.

Bill Authorizing Camp Ritchie's Sale Hits Snag

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 2 (AP) — Sen. Phoebus (R-Somerset) today forced the Senate to defer a move to allow the state's top spending agency to do what it pleases with proceeds from the sale of Camp Ritchie.

Amendments to a bill authorizing sale of the camp would lift restrictions on how the Board of Public Works could spend the money. They would have been taken up today had not Phoebus asked that they "lay over." Under Senate rules, the request automatically postponed consideration until the Legislature convenes again Monday night.

The Ritchie bill would authorize the state to sell the old National Guard camp in Washington County to the federal government. As originally drawn, proceeds would be used to buy other land and erect new buildings for the national guard. The legislature would have to pass a law before the Board of Public Works could spend any funds left over.

Amendments accepted by the Senate Finance Committee were written after discussions between the Governor and Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general. They would allow the Board of Public Works to decide how much should be set aside for the state's "organized militia" and how much for other purposes.

Both Senate and House adjourned for the week after quiet sessions.

Ranking Democrats disclosed that party leaders from throughout the state will get together here Monday night in an effort to divide Maryland into seven congressional districts.

The state now has six districts, but is entitled to another on the basis of 1950 census figures. Without a realignment, the new representative would be chosen at-large in 1952.

360,000 Visited Italy

ROME, Feb. 2 (AP) — More than 360,000 Americans visited Italy during the 1950 Holy Year, the Italian news agency Ari said today.

ICE SEALS DOOR—The ice skates might be in order but the bathing suit seems somewhat out of place as Miss Beverly Smith does her bit to add to the beauty of this ice formation at Shreveport, La. Truck Blast Damage To Houses Is $125,000

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Feb. 2 (AP)—Damage to houses alone from a truckload of dynamite that blew up was estimated to at $125,000.

The estimate was made by a local contractor. Sixteen houses were damaged and four of them made uninhabitable, he said.

One person was killed and nine hurt in the explosion early yesterday morning. Two women, Mrs. S. L. Cobb and Mrs. William Bates, widow of the man killed, still are in the General Hospital here.

A representative of the Red Cross in Washington arrived today to assist those routed from their homes.

Fairchild Union Votes To Continue Walkout

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Feb. 2 (AP)—Union officials reported that 94 per cent of members at a meeting voted by secret ballot today to continue their strike against the Fairchild aircraft plant.

"This vote gives the lie to the company-sponsored propaganda that the Fairchild workers are not solidly behind the demands," said E. T. Michael, president of the local of the United Auto Workers (CIO).

He reported that 2,144 attending a mass meeting voted to reject a company offer of 15 cents more pay an hour. There were 141 voting to accept the offer, the union official said.

Way To Heart Not Through Stomach

PASADENA, Calif., Feb. 2 (AP) — The way to a man's heart may be through his stomach but not the heart of Ernie Primm, 49-year-old wealthy gambler.

Primm testified in court today that pork chops finally wrecked his marriage.

In a contested divorce suit yet unfinished, Primm said his pretty wife, Josephine, 37, once had the cook prepare pork chops. He protested because of doctor's orders to avoid fried foods.

He quoted his wife:

"I'm getting sick and tired of your complaining all the time. The children and I like pork chops. If you don't, you can go someplace else."

Primm said he did.

Man's Body Is Found

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2 (AP) — The burned body of an unidentified man was found early today in the ruins of a boxcar which had been destroyed by fire on a Maryland and Pennsylvania Railroad siding near here.

Officers said the man was about 40 years old and wore an old suit and frayed overcoat.

Remington Case May Reach Jury Early Next Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Prosecution testimony neared its end today in the perjury trial of William W. Remington, accused of falsely denying he was ever a Communist.

One last government rebuttal witness will be called Monday, it was announced before the trial adjourned for the weekend.

Defense rebuttal witnesses have yet to be heard, including one described as "very important" by defense attorneys, but the case against the former Commerce Department economist is expected to go to the jury early next week.

Remington's divorced wife and other witnesses have sworn he was a Communist.

Today, a government rebuttal witness said Remington tried to get him to join the Communist Party years ago when they both worked for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Rudolph F. Bertrand said that in the spring of 1937 Remington spent nearly an hour trying to convince him "the Communist Party would be an appropriate place in which to work."

"I was sort of surprised," Bertrand recounted, "and I bitterly disagreed with him and told him that my concept of the Communist Party was that my interests differed widely from theirs."

Bertrand said he isn't now and never has been a Communist.

Now deputy director of the U. S. High Commissioner's office of labor relations in Frankfurt, Germany, Bertrand was brought here to testify.

Weeping Mother Buries U. S. Ace

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 2 (AP)—An Italian immigrant mother sobbed with joy seven years ago when they told her that her 23-year-old son had shot down three more German planes and become America's then ace of aces.

"Oh, God blass my boy," said Mrs. Pasquale Gentile, of Piqua, O., on an April day of 1944. Then, almost pleadingly, she asked, "Oh, can't my boy come home?"

Today, her lips formed the same words, "God bless my boy." But these were not yesteryear's sobs of joy.

Today she was burying her 30-year-old son, Maj. Dominic Salvatore Gentile—known to a nation of hero-worshippers as "Don"—a man who accounted for 26 Nazi planes in World War Two.

After surviving more than 300 missions as a Royal Air Force and U. S. Army Air Force pilot, Maj. Gentile died Sunday in a jet trainer plane crash near Washington, D. C. He died a captain, but his name was listed among the majors of the Air Force before his body was laid to rest today.

4 Negroes Die For Orgy-Rape

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 2 (AP) — The first four of seven Martinsville negroes condemned for the orgy-rape of a white woman were electrocuted here today while a clamor for clemency continued for three others scheduled to die Monday.

In an atmosphere of guarded quiet the negroes were put to death in the even space of an hour. Immediately before they died, a white man went to the chair for murder in the rape-slaying of a white schoolgirl.

There was no sign near the old prison of the demonstrations, rallies and vigils that have marked the efforts of sympathizers here for the past three days.

The execution adhered rigidly to schedule.

The white man, George Thomas Hailey, 27, Halifax County, Va., was the first to go. It took only six or seven minutes.

Then at 15 minute intervals, the four negroes died for their abuse two years ago of Mrs. Ruby Stroud Floyd, 32, wife of a Martinsville department store manager, in a shanty town sector of Martinsville. They were:

Joe Henry Hampton, 22; Howard Lee Hairston, 21; Booker T. Millner, 22, and Frank L. Hairston, 21.

Md. Newsmen Hear Educator

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2 (AP) — An educator and an Associated Press bureau chief told Maryland newspapermen today that their readers are more interested in what directly affects them than in sensational, impersonal news.

The views were expressed at a joint meeting of the Maryland Press Association, composed of weekly publications, and the Chesapeake Association of the Associated Press.

J. Montgomery Curtis, associate director of the American Press Institute at Columbia University, spoke at a luncheon gathering of the weekly and daily newspaper representatives.

Max Fullerton, chief of the Baltimore bureau of the Associated Press, spoke at an afternoon session.

Curtis said newspapers carried enough weather forecast information and stories on freak weather conditions. But they fail to provide adequate coverage on how weather conditions affect the daily lives of their readers, he added.

Research at Columbia had shown that readers also were particularly interested in stories dealing with sleep, children, health and living at home, Curtis said.

In his afternoon talk, Fullerton said the "mission of the newspaper today" includes the interpretation of government actions and regulations in terms of how they affect day-to-day life.

Alabama Convict Whips Are Burned

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 2 (AP) — A kerosene-fed fire touched off by Gov. Gordon Persons today destroyed 30 heavy leather straps once used to beat convicts who displeased Alabama prison officials.

It was the Governor's way of illustrating "the last relic of brute force and barbarism is a thing of the past in the prison system of Alabama."

One of his first official acts was to order the use of the lash abolished.

Italian Premier Will Meet Truman In U. S.

ROME, Feb. 2 (AP)—Premier Alcide De Gasperi will meet President Truman in the United States before the end of February, it was reported in official circles tonight.

PLEASE CONSERVE GAS!

Due to the unusual severe cold weather in the Louisiana-Texas area, all major pipelines have been unable to maintain the supply of Natural Gas to this area. Cold weather here has further aggravated the situation. Major industries have cut their use of gas to an absolute minimum. The Gas Company is now asking everyone to reduce his use of gas by closing off spare rooms, reducing temperature, or by any other possible means during this period of extreme cold weather.

Bill Authorizing Camp Ritchie's Sale Hits Snag

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 2 (AP) — Sen. Phoebus (R-Somerset) today forced the Senate to defer a move to allow the state's top spending agency to do what it pleases with proceeds from the sale of Camp Ritchie.

Amendments to a bill authorizing sale of the camp would lift restrictions on how the Board of Public Works could spend the money. They would have been taken up today had not Phoebus asked that they "lay over." Under Senate rules, the request automatically postponed consideration until the Legislature convenes again Monday night.

The Ritchie bill would authorize the state to sell the old National Guard camp in Washington County to the federal government. As originally drawn, proceeds would be used to buy other land and erect new buildings for the national guard. The legislature would have to pass a law before the Board of Public Works could spend any funds left over.

Amendments accepted by the Senate Finance Committee were written after discussions between the Governor and Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general. They would allow the Board of Public Works to decide how much should be set aside for the state's "organized militia" and how much for other purposes.

Both Senate and House adjourned for the week after quiet sessions.

Ranking Democrats disclosed that party leaders from throughout the state will get together here Monday night in an effort to divide Maryland into seven congressional districts.

The state now has six districts, but is entitled to another on the basis of 1950 census figures. Without a realignment, the new representative would be chosen at-large in 1952.

ICE SEALS DOOR—The ice skates might be in order but the bathing suit seems somewhat out of place as Miss Beverly Smith does her bit to add to the beauty of this ice formation at Shreveport, La. An overflowing water tower spilled out onto the front of this house during zero temperature, lowest in 50 years, completely sealing the front door and hanging long cicles from the roof.

Truck Blast Damage To Houses Is $125,000

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Feb. 2 (AP)—Damage to houses alone from a truckload of dynamite that blew up was estimated to at $125,000.

The estimate was made by a local contractor. Sixteen houses were damaged and four of them made uninhabitable, he said.

One person was killed and nine hurt in the explosion early yesterday morning. Two women, Mrs. S. L. Cobb and Mrs. William Bates, widow of the man killed, still are in the General Hospital here.

A representative of the Red Cross in Washington arrived today to assist those routed from their homes.

Fairchild Union Votes To Continue Walkout

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Feb. 2 (AP)—Union officials reported that 94 per cent of members at a meeting voted by secret ballot today to continue their strike against the Fairchild aircraft plant.

"This vote gives the lie to the company-sponsored propaganda that the Fairchild workers are not solidly behind the demands," said E. T. Michael, president of the local of the United Auto Workers (CIO).

He reported that 2,144 attending a mass meeting voted to reject a company offer of 15 cents more pay an hour. There were 141 voting to accept the offer, the union official said.

Way To Heart Not Through Stomach

PASADENA, Calif., Feb. 2 (AP) — The way to a man's heart may be through his stomach but not the heart of Ernie Primm, 49-year-old wealthy gambler.

Primm testified in court today that pork chops finally wrecked his marriage.

In a contested divorce suit yet unfinished, Primm said his pretty wife, Josephine, 37, once had the cook prepare pork chops. He protested because of doctor's orders to avoid fried foods.

He quoted his wife:

"I'm getting sick and tired of your complaining all the time. The children and I like pork chops. If you don't, you can go someplace else."

Primm said he did.

Man's Body Is Found

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2 (AP) — The burned body of an unidentified man was found early today in the ruins of a boxcar which had been destroyed by fire on a Maryland and Pennsylvania Railroad siding near here.

Officers said the man was about 40 years old and wore an old suit and frayed overcoat.

Remington Case May Reach Jury Early Next Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Prosecution testimony neared its end today in the perjury trial of William W. Remington, accused of falsely denying he was ever a Communist.

One last government rebuttal witness will be called Monday, it was announced before the trial adjourned for the weekend.

Defense rebuttal witnesses have yet to be heard, including one described as "very important" by defense attorneys, but the case against the former Commerce Department economist is expected to go to the jury early next week.

Remington's divorced wife and other witnesses have sworn he was a Communist.

Today, a government rebuttal witness said Remington tried to get him to join the Communist Party years ago when they both worked for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Rudolph F. Bertrand said that in the spring of 1937 Remington spent nearly an hour trying to convince him "the Communist Party would be an appropriate place in which to work."

"I was sort of surprised," Bertrand recounted, "and I bitterly disagreed with him and told him that my concept of the Communist Party was that my interests differed widely from theirs."

Bertrand said he isn't now and never has been a Communist.

Now deputy director of the U. S. High Commissioner's office of labor relations in Frankfurt, Germany, Bertrand was brought here to testify.

Weeping Mother Buries U. S. Ace

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 2 (AP)—An Italian immigrant mother sobbed with joy seven years ago when they told her that her 23-year-old son had shot down three more German planes and become America's then ace of aces.

"Oh, God blass my boy," said Mrs. Pasquale Gentile, of Piqua, O., on an April day of 1944. Then, almost pleadingly, she asked, "Oh, can't my boy come home?"

Today, her lips formed the same words, "God bless my boy." But these were not yesteryear's sobs of joy.

Today she was burying her 30-year-old son, Maj. Dominic Salvatore Gentile—known to a nation of hero-worshippers as "Don"—a man who accounted for 26 Nazi planes in World War Two.

After surviving more than 300 missions as a Royal Air Force and U. S. Army Air Force pilot, Maj. Gentile died Sunday in a jet trainer plane crash near Washington, D. C. He died a captain, but his name was listed among the majors of the Air Force before his body was laid to rest today.

GROUNDHOG SEES SHADOW—A groundhog, shivering in 19 below zero temperature, unmistakably saw its shadow in Milwaukee yesterday. Taking official notice of the incident, supposed to indicate six more weeks of winter weather, were, left to right, Ignatius Zielinski, Harold Phelan, and Tait Clifford, of the Milwaukee Groundhog Club.

4 Negroes Die For Orgy-Rape

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 2 (AP) — The first four of seven Martinsville negroes condemned for the orgy-rape of a white woman were electrocuted here today while a clamor for clemency continued for three others scheduled to die Monday.

In an atmosphere of guarded quiet the negroes were put to death in the even space of an hour. Immediately before they died, a white man went to the chair for murder in the rape-slaying of a white schoolgirl.

There was no sign near the old prison of the demonstrations, rallies and vigils that have marked the efforts of sympathizers here for the past three days.

The execution adhered rigidly to schedule.

The white man, George Thomas Hailey, 27, Halifax County, Va., was the first to go. It took only six or seven minutes.

Then at 15 minute intervals, the four negroes died for their abuse two years ago of Mrs. Ruby Stroud Floyd, 32, wife of a Martinsville department store manager, in a shanty town sector of Martinsville. They were:

Joe Henry Hampton, 22; Howard Lee Hairston, 21; Booker T. Milliner, 22, and Frank L. Hairston, 21.

Md. Newsmen Hear Educator

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2 (AP) — An educator and an Associated Press bureau chief told Maryland newspapermen today that their readers are more interested in what directly affects them than in sensational, impersonal news.

The views were expressed at a joint meeting of the Maryland Press Association, composed of weekly publications, and the Chesapeake Association of the Associated Press.

J. Montgomery Curtis, associate director of the American Press Institute at Columbia University, spoke at a luncheon gathering of the weekly and daily newspaper representatives.

Max Fullerton, chief of the Baltimore bureau of the Associated Press, spoke at an afternoon session.

Curtis said newspapers carried enough weather forecast information and stories on freak weather conditions. But they fail to provide adequate coverage on how weather conditions affect the daily lives of their readers, he added.

Research at Columbia had shown that readers also were particularly interested in stories dealing with sleep, children, health and living at home, Curtis said.

In his afternoon talk, Fullerton said the "mission of the newspaper today" includes the interpretation of government actions and regulations in terms of how they affect day-to-day life.

Alabama Convict Whips Are Burned

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 2 (AP) — A kerosene-fed fire touched off by Gov. Gordon Persons today destroyed 30 heavy leather straps once used to beat convicts who displeased Alabama prison officials.

It was the Governor's way of illustrating "the last relic of brute force and barbarism is a thing of the past in the prison system of Alabama."

One of his first official acts was to order the use of the lash abolished.

Seven Protest Discharge From County Infirmary

Seek Reinstatement By Commissioners

Seven employes at the County Infirmary appeared before the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday with an attorney to protest their discharge by Earl Grim, infirmary superintendent.

Edward J. Ryan, attorney for the group, was the spokesman.

He told the board that the employes had been notified by letter of their discharge with the reason given that their work was unsatisfactory. Ryan said that his clients felt that a two-week notice should have been given and that the exact reasons for their discharge should have been listed.

Included in the group are six women and one man. All except the man, who is an orderly, and a registered nurse, are practical nurses at the infirmary. All have over a year's service and one of the practical nurses has been employed in that capacity four years.

It was also pointed out by Ryan that the discharged employes could "hardly get another job in view of the letter of discharge which they had received." He also questioned whether a registered nurse, who has completed training in a graduate nursing school and passed the state examinations, could be termed unsatisfactory by Grim as he has only been in charge at the institution one month.

Ryan said that the discharges should be reconsidered and asked the board to recommend to Grim that the personnel be rehired for a one month testing period.

Commissioner William H. Lemmert said that Grim had been invested with full authority at the institution and that the board's first interest was the patients at the infirmary.

Commissioner James Orr said that a report on the discharges would be requested of Grim.

Several women in the group charge that personal animosity of the head nurse against them was responsible for the discharges.

Divide And Conquer

Occasionally some commentator on the international scene observes that the aim of some of the Communist maneuvering appears to be the division of the non-Communist nations. Of course this is so. The "divide and conquer" technique was brought to perfection by Hitler, but he neither invented nor ended the device. It always has been the way of an ambitious nation, faced with an alliance of opposed nations, to attempt to weaken or break the opposing alliance.

That is still the way of an ambitious nation. In the Conference of Foreign Ministers, in the United Nations, and through whatever other means appeared likely to serve, Russia has tirelessly tried to find and magnify differences among the Western powers. From the first moment that Red Chinese leaders could take time off from their conquest of China to think about international politics, they have shown skill at exploiting the points of difference between American and British interests in the Far East. They still show that skill, and now have a more involved set of alliances on which to employ it.

The technique can be used by our side, too. We have already tried it, with some success, in the encouragement given to the Tito regime of Yugoslavia in its quarrel with the Cominform. With the Voice of America and other propaganda instruments we probe for other cracks between Russia and its European satellites.

In the Far East, on the other hand, little visible effort has been made to weaken the Communist alliances. On the contrary our dealings with Red China have generally tended to drive the Peiping regime closer to Moscow. Much effort has been spent in fighting Communists in Indochina, but not much in attempting to split them away from Peiping and Moscow.

We need to pursue our own policies carefully to guard against the exploitation of differences with our allies. We need also to watch more closely for chances to divide our opponents.

What you don't know never hurts you, we have heard. We hope that holds for the spot on the income tax form labeled: "Do not write in these spaces."

Price Of Freedom

The American people can find needed courage to face the present difficult situation by again reviewing the early history of the nation. In December, 1776, Washington's ragged regiments were camped on the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware River, without shelter, some shoeless, with little food. They had retreated across New Jersey in the face of a superior British force. The Army lacked everything needed to win a war, including weapons and disciplined soldiers.

There had been many desertions, the country was demoralized and divided, money was worthless. The British held New York City, Long Island and most of New Jersey. It was a beaten army which stood listening to the words of Thomas Paine, one of its members.

"These are times which try men's souls," he told his comrads. "The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country . . . Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered, yet we have this consolation that the harder the conflict the more glorious the triumph.

"Heaven knows how to set a proper price upon its goods, and it would be strange, indeed, if so celestial an article as freedom should not be highly rated."

The rest is history. Washington led his soldiers across an ice-choked river in that Christmas night in 1776 to victory and a free nation was made secure. It is this same nation which today faces a test to determine whether its people are sunshine patriots, or have retained the courage and patriotism which brought it into being.

Will OPA, with its initials changed, smell less odorous?

Party Peace In England

"England does not love coalitions." This utterance by a veteran observer of the political scene was made in the middle of the nineteenth century, when a coalition tried, not very successfully, to fight the Crimean war against Russia. The saying has been quoted ever since, yet in their two great crises of this century, the two world wars, the British deemed it desirable to associate all the leading parties with the conduct of the war.

In 1915 the Liberal administration of Herbert H. Asquith brought in several prominent Conservatives, including Arthur Balfour who had been prime minister in the last Tory administration. Under Asquith first and later under Lloyd George the coaltion lasted until 1922, when the Conservatives revolted and put in a government entirely from their own party.

Winston Churchill headed a coalition all through his premiership. A prominent member was the present Labor prime minister, Clement Attlee.

Now coalition talk is heard again. The difficulties are partly personal and partly relating to policy. Churchill and Attlee would both be unwilling to occupy the second place. On the political side, coalition would mean shelving of the steel nationalization proposal, dear to Labor's heart. Also Attlee is not free to choose his colleagues as he pleases. He is pledged to consult the party organization, which only in the direst straits would consent to put Conservatives in offices which Labor men might fill.

Probably the time is not yet ripe for another coalition. If war came, coalition would come with it but otherwise it is not likely to be adopted.

Novelists' Good Deeds

The novels of Charles Dickens and their social and economic effects are to be studied in a course, open to the public, at New York University. This may be the first such course in any American higher institution, though naturally the many courses in English literature or the history of the novel have included Dickens and his achievements in their subject matter. The New York study will apparently be more extensive.

The story with a moral is apt to be the least successful form of literary art. Not so with Dickens. Few writers and few statesmen have remedied as many abuses as did he. Imprisonment for debt, the law's delays and the cruel treatment of children at unsupervised boarding schools all received stunning blows from his pen. In many cases these blows were mortal.

Of American writers only Harriett Beecher Stowe in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been as decisively beneficial to an oppressed class. It is still too early to decide the effect of John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath," with its bitter portrayal of the plight of the itinerant farm worker.

Such writers show that the novel may be an act of public service as well as a work of art.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Correction Of Heart Defects

A CHILD who is born with a heart defect should not have his activities restricted unnecessarily. The majority will discover their limitations as soon as they become active. As a result they are likely to refrain from running upstairs or down the hall if it makes them short of breath or fatigued. Nature is kind in this respect.

Some infants who are born with this type of handicap, however, have all they can do to survive because the heart has difficulty pumping blood thru the body. The skin often is blue, hence the term "blue baby." This cyanosis occurs when the venous blood mixes with the arterial blood before it has had a chance to be purified by the lungs. Consequently, all the blood is darker than usual. These youngsters are likely to be short of breath in addition to the change in complexion. Some are comfortable only when they stoop over from a squatting position; others are bothered when lying flat or after exercise. At the other extreme are cases where the defect is so mild it causes little or no trouble; the lesion usually is found accidentally in a routine examination.

Every day more progress is being made in the surgical treatment of these congenital conditions. There is nothing more dramatic than to watch the before and after scenes. Many little ones are helped to such an extent that on leaving the hospital they do not look like the same children who entered. The color is better and they are able to breathe without straining every muscle in the chest and neck. In the few years that surgery has been possible new operations have been devised and now at least six anomalies are amenable to this form of treatment. Furthermore, so many cases have been operated upon that many surgeons are seasoned in this procedure. Most of the hazards have been removed, thus adding to the safety of the maneuver.

Surgery makes the congenital cardiac victim more comfortable but many other measures are available to prolong life. Most children with disorders of this nature are sensible about overexertion and too much restriction is likely to make them unhappy. On the other hand, group activities and competitive games must be omitted if they lead to overfatigue. Infection also is a secret enemy. Colds can be minimized especially thru the winter and spring months. The physician should be called immediately whenever a respiratory infection develops because these attacks demand vigorous treatment with the sulfonamides or antibiotics.

The wonder drugs also are utilized in case of tonsillectomy or tooth extraction. They are given the day before and for two or three days thereafter to eliminate any stray germs that might have been released in the operation. There always is a possibility that these microorganisms will attack the pumping organ because of its weakened condition. In the past this complication (subacute bacterial endocarditis) invariably was fatal but nowadays at least 85 per cent of the sufferers can be saved.

It is wise also to avoid extremes of heat and cold because poor circulation usually co-exists with congenital heart disease. Children should stay indoors in inclement weather or be taken south in the winter months and north in the summer time.

MOUNTAIN VACATION

F. T. writes: I'm going to Colorado on vacation and have heard about Rocky mountain ticks. How can they be avoided?

REPLY

By protecting the lower extremities with slacks or breeches and high shoes. Refrain from sitting on or walking in tall grass. The best plan is to use one of the proved insect repellents. Some can be sprayed or daubed on the shoes or cuffs; others may be applied directly to the skin, especially of the legs. The bite of a tick carrying the Rocky mountain spotted fever organism is not as serious as it was in the past because we have remedies against the disease.

Underworld Partners Refuse To Divulge Source Of Income; Internal Revenue Lacks Time And Personnel To Make Thorough Investigations

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The two men who rule the Chicago underworld today are Tony Accardo and Jack Guzik. Not only have they taken over the vast and profitable domain of Al Capone along the shores of Lake Michigan, but they have spread out into the lush crime fields of Florida and California.

Four years ago Accardo and Guzik, long operating informally as a team, legalized their partnership and notified the government that for the year of 1946 they had earned a total of $130,000.

The source of this profit they listed merely as "other income," which poses an obvious problem for Uncle Sam's tax collectors. Internal Revenue solved it that year by writing the following notation at the bottom of Guzik's and Accardo's tax return:

"The partners refused to divulge the source of this income. Insomuch as the partnership reports a substantial amount, the correctness of which is impossible to check, it is opined that further investigation is impracticable. — (signed) Ned Klein, Revenue Agent."

This was about the best Agent Klein could do under the circumstances. However, if Secretary of the Treasury Snyder wanted to set up a special tax squad to watch the big racketeers, and if Congress wanted to give him the money for this, the effect would be:

1. To bring considerably more revenue into the treasury.
2. To hamper if not drive the hoodlums out of business.

For no hoodlum can operate when he knows that Internal Revenue men are breathing down his neck every minute, not only watching his operations but checking on his so-called business deductions.

Protection Payoffs

The latter is the Achilles' heel of the underworld. For the chief business deductions of the hoodlums arep rotection money paid to police and local politicians. This is not a legal business deduction under the tax laws, and by watching this, Revenue Agents not only can help clean up city politics but help drive the hoodlums out of business.

To illustrate, let's take a closer look at the profits of Jack Guzik, No. 2 inheritor of the old Al Capone rackets. Last year Guzik and Accardo reported an income of $278,667.89 from the Erie and Buffalo Co., which happens to be a policy wheel. This was operated by Caesar and Leo Benvenuti up until 1947, when their home was bombed.

The reason their home was bombed was fairly obvious. They were making too much money. So the Guzik-Accardo crowd decided profits should be shared. They muscled in.

Income-tax returns at this point make it fairly clear as to what happened. After the 1947 bombing, Sam Pardy and Tom Manno took over the policy wheel, leaving only small commissions for the two Benvenuti brothers. The real money went to the two men who muscled in, and the Erie and Buffalo Company's tax return under Pardy and Manno shows $278,667,89 paid as "salaries, fees and commissions for A. J. Accardo."

Profitable Partnership

Accardo then split this with Guzik, giving the latter $134,207.54. Along with this revenue, Guzik listed in his 1949 tax return an additional $25,500 which he attributed simply to "miscellaneous various sources." He also deducted $6,803.32 for contributions though he didn't list them by name, which is against regulations.

In 1948 Guzik simple reported a nice, round income of $100,000 which he attributed to "various sources." This left Internal Revenue Agents with the problem of making a long, exhaustive investigation; and, lacking both time and personnel, nothing further was done.

In 1947, things weren't quite so lush for the Chicago lord of the underworld. He listed a profit of only $51,000, though in 1946 he made $65,000 from his partnership with Accardo plus another $7,500 of "various income."

Guzik's income was somewhat similar in the war years. In 1944, for instance, he claimed a total income of only $16,000, while in 1943 he listed $8,080 from "wagering," $2,500 from "football," $6,000 from "miscellaneous sources," and $4,000 from "Dome." This is the name of a night club licensed in the name of Guzik's brother-in-law. There was no explanation as to how Guzik made his money from "football."

Presumably Guzik ought to be careful about his income tax now, for he was sentenced to five years for tax evasion in 1930. This was in the Hoover Administration, when the treasury was a lot tougher on gangsters than they are today. The treasury at that time claimed that Guzik, then business manager for the Capone Syndicate, netted $1,000,000 during the years 1927-28-29, and owed the government $250,000. He got five years in Leavenworth, plus a fine of $17,500.

Guzik has also served other minor jail sentences for larceny and bootlegging, was arrested in New York in connection with the murder of Jake Ingle, but released. He is not a member of the Mafia, though associated with Mafia leaders.

Rearming The South

The South is getting so many defense projects that northern congressmen have been kidding their colleagues about the danger of a new civil war.

It happened when Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia was delivering a closed-door report on proposed Air Force projects — practically every one of them below the Mason-Dixon line. Finally, Congressmen Gary Clemente of New York interrupted.

"Mr. Chairman," he said, "the list you are reading gives me pause. There is this for Tennessee, that for Alabama, and, of course, Texas is never forgotten.

"In addition, I see by the newspapers that the new H-bomb project is slated for South Carolina, while the Atom-bomb plant is located in North Carolina. Am I to be led to believe that the south is rearming?"

Chairman Vinson of Georgia informed the New Yorker that another civil war is not in the offing.

Each Of Services Needs Additional Specialization

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Unity of the armed services in the field has always been good, but unity in Washington is only now being accomplished.

Unity of spirit and cooperation, however, doesn't mean that "unification" as such has been found practicable. For the exact opposite is true. Much duplication on the transportation and supply side, of course, has been eliminated, but the fact remains that each of the three armed services today needs even more instead of less specialization.

The latest development, not yet publicized very much, reveals that the Army and the U. S. Air Force are coming to a much more sensible understanding of what one needs from the other than they have had since the close of World War II.

Thus, officers of the Air Force in Korea are frankly acknowledging in their written reports that the Marine Corps system of close air support for ground troops is far superior to that which the Air Force has been using. Just as the U. S. Army during World War II learned from Marine Corps officers some of the fine points of amphibious warfare, in which the Marines are specialists, so is the Marine Corps system of directing the fire of airplanes from the ground, as used in Korea, likely to become the accepted method for the U. S. Air Force.

There should be no "I told you so" recrimination now, for the Marines ought to be proud to have helped, though their leaders no doubt will not soon forgive the efforts made a few years ago to take away from the Marine Corps its own special aviation units.

What experience in Korea teaches is that the Army must have an important influence in deciding the best way to handle ground-air units. In fact, its interest is bound to be superior to that of the Air Force. Passage by the House of Representatives the other day of the bill which provides a separate tactical air command in the Air Force, as differentiated from the Strategic Air Command, is a long step forward and in line with what the Navy and subsequently the House Armed Services Committee urged during and after the famous B-36 hearings in 1949.

But there are other steps yet to be taken. The Army must have greater control of the Air Forces that are working closely with ground units. This does not necessarily mean that the Army must have its own air force but it does mean it must have continuous control and close liaison so that, for all practical purposes, the tactical air forces are adjuncts of ground operations.

Another significant development is the passage by the House of Representatives of the bill authorizing a large flush-deck aircraft carrier. This will not be ready for three years, but action anticipates that day when America will be using large floating bases of this kind for strategy threats in all the seven seas. When there were relatively few atom bombs, the U. S. Force demanded the right to be the only service to drop them as a part of strategic warfare. Now, however, there are enough bombs available for more than one service and some are in smaller sizes, permitting the use of atomic energy in the guided-missile program from both ships and land as a form of artillery support. This means that, while the primary role of the Air Force remains strategic bombings, certain supplementary forms of effective bombing of targets are included in the role of the Navy — which, incidentally, is what a broad reading of the Key West agreement between the armed services really contemplated in the first place.

Hence the Navy is developing its aircraft carriers for use in areas where land bases are not available and for the protection of amphibious landings, while the U. S. Air Force is now giving both tactical air and strategic air separate attention, and the three armed services are planning future operations with the A-bomb as a part of their respective tactics. So, while we do not have a single force operationally — which is what some people mistakenly believe "unification" to be — we do have a single force in spirit and each service retains, as it should, the opportunity to specialize and at-

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

Salute To Eisenhower

WASHINGTON

ONE OF THE striking features of this phase of President Truman's national leadership (perhaps resulting from a certain lack of self-confidence) is the immense independent authority the President has recently conferred on chosen individuals.

No single American official in the past has ever wielded such power over the domestic economy as has been given, by formal directive, to Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson. Equally, no other American, even including Secretaries of State, has had quite the power to make or break this country's foreign relations that has been conferred, again by formal directive, on General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower. By Eisenhower, the Western alliance is to stand or fall.

The first thing to note about this bold experiment is its effect on the man himself. It seems a reasonable guess that in the years from the end of the war until his selection as Supreme European Commander, Gen. Eisenhower suffered from a deep, and in some ways a weakening inner conflict.

A Public Figure

On the one hand, he has deeply ingrained in him the old American Army tradition, so often and so firmly expounded by his great model, George C. Marshall, that men in uniform have no place or part in politics. Anyone who knows Eisenhower at all, knows that the notion of exchanging his oak-leaved cap for a campaigner's sombrero inspires him with genuine moral horror. On the other hand, he is a public man, in the best sense of the word, from the soles of his feet to the hair on his head; he is still young and vigorous, and he visibly does not relish the quiet pursuits of a retired officer.

Take these contrary impulses. Note that all sorts of people, to serve their own purposes, engaged in a sort of perpetual cooch dance, to tempt Eisenhower to forget his prejudice against politics and to enter public life. It is easy to see how conflicting feelings must have pulled him in different directions, and how this inner conflict was reflected in a sort of uncertainty of action and expression.

All that ended instantly and automatically, however, the day that Eisenhower was called back into uniform and given the hardest assignment any American general has ever had. A man who knows him well has remarked, "He seemed to grow a foot, overnight."

Faith And Determination

The impact of this altered Eisenhower, determined, self-denying, strengthened by the highest sense of mission, was first felt here in Washington. In this poisonous city, it is too easy to forget the greatness and the promise of America. Without any phony talk, by doing no more than voice his own faith and determination, Eisenhower measurably alter the Washington atmosphere even before his departure for Europe. In that short interval, the mood grew up here that is indicated by the almost disproportionate importance attached to Eisenhower's report on his journey.

Of his journey itself, much has already been written. Even so however, the remarkable character of Gen. Eisenhower's achievement in Europe is still not fully understood. It is hard to believe that any man, traveling at top speed from capital to capital, successively confronted in every capital with a whole series of intensely delicate questions, could have managed to avoid any mistake of emphasis or statement at any time and in any place. But it is the unanimous report that Eisenhower managed to do precisely this.

It is even harder to believe that any American, going out to represent this country in a low ebb of faith in American leadership, could universally inspire new hope and faith and energy of effort among our allies. Yet it is also the unanimous report that Eisenhower accomplished this remarkable and vital feat.

Treads Right Path

There is acute danger, of course, in the tendency, both here and abroad, to transform Gen. Eisenhower into a sort of military father-image. Most of the really disagreeable work is yet to be done. The Congress here must take action on Eisenhower's recommendations. Equally, the allied governments must put into practice their promises to him, to speed up and increase their contributions to Western defense. His influence may help to get these things done; but even he cannot make them any pleasanter to do.

Then too, as the Western defense builds up, he will have to settle all sorts of thorny conflicts of national strategic interest. And all the while, he will be menaced by Soviet moves to forestall and defeat his great but long delayed effort. In short, he has just entered the woods; and it will be a very long time before he is out of them again. Yet it is a cause for hope, and for Americans, a cause for pride, that in his first steps Gen. Eisenhower has marked the right path so clearly and followed it so firmly and well.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Yalta Legend

THE "PHILADELPHIA Bulletin," by entitling an editorial, "The Yalta Legend," got itself into a minor controversy. For Yalta is a fact, not a legend; it has already cost us perhaps as many as 60,000 casualties in Korea, besides forcing upon us preparatory mobilization for a general war.

In a footnote to a reader's protest, the editor clarifies his views, which come down to what might be called "The law of necessity." He says:

". . .The United States was free to suggest what Russia ought to do in this territory; but unless this country was then, before the Nazi war was over, prepared to break with Russia, we could not enforce our idea."

That is a good starting point for a discussion of "The law of necessity," which is an application of a very old rule of thumb that the pleasantest way out of a dilemma is the easiest way. It is a temporary relief from pressure by principles of morality. It eases the conscience somewhat.

Gangster parlance terms it the alibi, in the sense that if an action cannot be explained, it can be explained away. Little boys do it all the time — and generals of losing armies are often like little boys: They do what necessity seems to dictate and then try to wriggle out of it. The successful wriggler is a great strategist; the unsuccessful, a great disappointment.

The Yalta conference met in February, 1945 when the United States was the most powerful nation on earth. At that conference, Mr. Roosevelt handed the baton of power to Soviet Russia, and we have been a diminishing power since. The price we exacted from Soviet Russia was that the Russians should cease to be neutral in our war with Japan.

The moral issue was whether in a global war, in which the United States had come to the aid of Russia to the tune of $11,000,000,000, to mention only money and not lives, Russia had any justification for remaining neutral in any phase of the war. The argument against Russia having a second front was equally good against the United States having a second front.

After concessions had been made at Yalta, where hundreds of millions of human beings were sold into subjection and slavery, Russia did not enter that war until Japan was defeated and pleading for peace. V-J Day was August 15, 1945; Russia entered the Far Eastern War on August 8, 1945. And note that the date of Hiroshima was August 6, 1945. In a word, Russia entered that war two days after the atom bomb was hurled at Japan and seven days before the termination of that war.

To say, as the editor of the "Philadelphia Bulletin" does: ". . . It is now generally conceded that it was the military advisers in this country who pressed Roosevelt to do almost anything to get Russia into that war. They thought it necessary. We now know it wasn't." is insufficient. How many lives have been lost because these generals did not know the facts of life. To say, as this editor does: ". . .But all this is hindsight," is begging the question.

Actually, important persons and unimportant ones, like myself, did call attention to the errors that were being made. Herbert Hoover, Hugh Gibson, William C. Bullitt, Joseph P. Kennedy, Charles Lindbergh and a host of others, from 1938 to this very day, have been calling attention to the dangers of unprincipled conduct, but they were smeared by the very people who now slough off the errors and call wisdom, hindsight.

I do not believe that the general statement that Roosevelt acted as he did at Yalta because of his military advisers is true. I think that he acted as he did because he wanted to act that way and that political generals fell in with his views.

Present at Yalta, as military advisers to President Roosevelt, were: Admiral William D. Leahy, General George C. Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King, Lieutenant General Brenon B. Somervell, Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, Vice Admiral Charles M. Cooke, Jr., Major General John R. Deane, Major General John E. Hull, Major General Laurence S. Kuter.

Are they responsible?

Also present were Harry Hopkins and Alger Hiss. Were they as responsible as the generals and admirals? It would be interesting to know the whole truth.

Divide And Conquer

Occasionally some commentator on the international scene observes that the aim of some of the Communist maneuvering appears to be the division of the non-Communist nations. Of course this is so. The "divide and conquer" technique was brought to perfection by Hitler, but he neither invented nor ended the device. It always has been the way of an ambitious nation, faced with an alliance of opposed nations, to attempt to weaken or break the opposing alliance.

That is still the way of an ambitious nation. In the Conference of Foreign Ministers, in the United Nations, and through whatever other means appeared likely to serve, Russia has tirelessly tried to find and magnify differences among the Western powers. From the first moment that Red Chinese leaders could take time off from their conquest of China to think about international politics, they have shown skill at exploiting the points of difference between American and British interests in the Far East. They still show that skill, and now have a more involved set of alliances on which to employ it.

The technique can be used by our side, too. We have already tried it, with some success, in the encouragement given to the Tito regime of Yugoslavia in its quarrel with the Cominform. With the Voice of America and other propaganda instruments we probe for other cracks between Russia and its European satellites.

In the Far East, on the other hand, little visible effort has been made to weaken the Communist alliances. On the contrary our dealings with Red China have generally tended to drive the Peiping regime closer to Moscow. Much effort has been spent in fighting Communists in Indochina, but not much in attempting to split them away from Peiping and Moscow.

We need to pursue our own policies carefully to guard against the exploitation of differences with our allies. We need also to watch more closely for chances to divide our opponents.

What you don't know never hurts you, we have heard. We hope that holds for the spot on the income tax form labeled: "Do not write in these spaces."

Price Of Freedom

The American people can find needed courage to face the present difficult situation by again reviewing the early history of the nation. In December, 1776, Washington's ragged regiments were camped on the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware River, without shelter, some shoeless, with little food. They had retreated across New Jersey in the face of a superior British force. The Army lacked everything needed to win a war, including weapons and disciplined soldiers.

There had been many desertions, the country was demoralized and divided, money was worthless. The British held New York City, Long Island and most of New Jersey. It was a beaten army which stood listening to the words of Thomas Paine, one of its members.

"These are times which try men's souls," he told his comrads. "The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country . . . Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered, yet we have this consolation that the harder the conflict the more glorious the triumph.

"Heaven knows how to set a proper price upon its goods, and it would be strange, indeed, if so celestial an article as freedom should not be highly rated."

The rest is history. Washington led his soldiers across an ice-choked river in that Christmas night in 1776 to victory and a free nation was made secure. It is this same nation which today faces a test to determine whether its people are sunshine patriots, or have retained the courage and patriotism which brought it into being.

Will OPA, with its initials changed, smell less odorous?

Party Peace In England

"England does not love coalitions." This utterance by a veteran observer of the political scene was made in the middle of the nineteenth century, when a coalition tried, not very successfully, to fight the Crimean war against Russia. The saying has been quoted ever since, yet in their two great crises of this century, the two world wars, the British deemed it desirable to associate all the leading parties with the conduct of the war.

In 1915 the Liberal administration of Herbert H. Asquith brought in several prominent Conservatives, including Arthur Balfour who had been prime minister in the last Tory administration. Under Asquith first and later under Lloyd George the coaltion lasted until 1922, when the Conservatives revolted and put in a government entirely from their own party.

Winston Churchill headed a coalition all through his premiership. A prominent member was the present Labor prime minister, Clement Attlee.

Now coalition talk is heard again. The difficulties are partly personal and partly relating to policy. Churchill and Attlee would both be unwilling to occupy the second place. On the political side, coalition would mean shelving of the steel nationalization proposal, dear to Labor's heart. Also Attlee is not free to choose his colleagues as he pleases. He is pledged to consult the party organization, which only in the direst straits would consent to put Conservatives in offices which Labor men might fill.

Probably the time is not yet ripe for another coalition. If war came, coalition would come with it but otherwise it is not likely to be adopted.

Novelists' Good Deeds

The novels of Charles Dickens and their social and economic effects are to be studied in a course, open to the public, at New York University. This may be the first such course in any American higher institution, though naturally the many courses in English literature or the history of the novel have included Dickens and his achievements in their subject matter. The New York study will apparently be more extensive.

The story with a moral is apt to be the least successful form of literary art. Not so with Dickens. Few writers and few statesmen have remedied as many abuses as did he. Imprisonment for debt, the law's delays and the cruel treatment of children at unsupervised boarding schools all received stunning blows from his pen. In many cases these blows were mortal.

Of American writers only Harriett Beecher Stowe in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been as decisively beneficial to an oppressed class. It is still too early to decide the effect of John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath," with its bitter portrayal of the plight of the itinerant farm worker.

Such writers show that the novel may be an act of public service as well as a work of art.

Correction Of Heart Defects

A CHILD who is born with a heart defect should not have his activities restricted unnecessarily. The majority will discover their limitations as soon as they become active. As a result they are likely to refrain from running upstairs or down the hall if it makes them short of breath or fatigued. Nature is kind in this respect.

Some infants who are born with this type of handicap, however, have all they can do to survive because the heart has difficulty pumping blood thru the body. The skin often is blue, hence the term "blue baby." This cyanosis occurs when the venous blood mixes with the arterial blood before it has had a chance to be purified by the lungs. Consequently, all the blood is darker than usual. These youngsters are likely to be short of breath in addition to the change in complexion. Some are comfortable only when they stoop over from a squatting position; others are bothered when lying flat or after exercise. At the other extreme are cases where the defect is so mild it causes little or no trouble; the lesion usually is found accidentally in a routine examination.

Every day more progress is being made in the surgical treatment of these congenital conditions. There is nothing more dramatic than to watch the before and after scenes. Many little ones are helped to such an extent that on leaving the hospital they do not look like the same children who entered. The color is better and they are able to breathe without straining every muscle in the chest and neck. In the few years that surgery has been possible new operations have been devised and now at least six anomalies are amenable to this form of treatment. Furthermore, so many cases have been operated upon that many surgeons are seasoned in this procedure. Most of the hazards have been removed, thus adding to the safety of the maneuver.

Surgery makes the congenital cardiac victim more comfortable but many other measures are available to prolong life. Most children with disorders of this nature are sensible about overexertion and too much restriction is likely to make them unhappy. On the other hand, group activities and competitive games must be omitted if they lead to overfatigue. Infection also is a secret enemy. Colds can be minimized especially thru the winter and spring months. The physician should be called immediately whenever a respiratory infection develops because these attacks demand vigorous treatment with the sulfonamides or antibiotics.

The wonder drugs also are utilized in case of tonsillectomy or tooth extraction. They are given the day before and for two or three days thereafter to eliminate any stray germs that might have been released in the operation. There always is a possibility that these microorganisms will attack the pumping organ because of its weakened condition. In the past this complication (subacute bacterial endocarditis) invariably was fatal but nowadays at least 85 per cent of the sufferers can be saved.

It is wise also to avoid extremes of heat and cold because poor circulation usually co-exists with congenital heart disease. Children should stay indoors in inclement weather or be taken south in the winter months and north in the summer time.

MOUNTAIN VACATION

F. T. writes: I'm going to Colorado on vacation and have heard about Rocky mountain ticks. How can they be avoided?

REPLY

By protecting the lower extremities with slacks or breeches and high shoes. Refrain from sitting on or walking in tall grass. The best plan is to use one of the proved insect repellents. Some can be sprayed or daubed on the shoes or cuffs; others may be applied directly to the skin, especially of the legs. The bite of a tick carrying the Rocky mountain spotted fever organism is not as serious as it was in the past because we have remedies against the disease.

Underworld Partners Refuse To Divulge Source Of Income; Internal Revenue Lacks Time And Personnel To Make Thorough Investigations

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The two men who rule the Chicago underworld today are Tony Accardo and Jack Guzik. Not only have they taken over the vast and profitable domain of Al Capone along the shores of Lake Michigan, but they have spread out into the lush crime fields of Florida and California.

Four years ago Accardo and Guzik, long operating informally as a team, legalized their partnership and notified the government that for the year of 1946 they had earned a total of $130,000.

The source of this profit they listed merely as "other income," which poses an obvious problem for Uncle Sam's tax collectors. Internal Revenue solved it that year by writing the following notation at the bottom of Guzik's and Accardo's tax return:

"The partners refused to divulge the source of this income. Insomuch as the partnership reports a substantial amount, the correctness of which is impossible to check, it is opined that further investigation is impracticable. — (signed) Ned Klein, Revenue Agent."

This was about the best Agent Klein could do under the circumstances. However, if Secretary of the Treasury Snyder wanted to set up a special tax squad to watch the big racketeers, and if Congress wanted to give him the money for this, the effect would be:

1. To bring considerably more revenue into the treasury.
2. To hamper if not drive the hoodlums out of business.

For no hoodlum can operate when he knows that Internal Revenue men are breathing down his neck every minute, not only watching his operations but checking on his so-called business deductions.

Protection Payoffs

The latter is the Achilles' heel of the underworld. For the chief business deductions of the hoodlums arep rotection money paid to police and local politicians. This is not a legal business deduction under the tax laws, and by watching this, Revenue Agents not only can help clean up city politics but help drive the hoodlums out of business.

To illustrate, let's take a closer look at the profits of Jack Guzik. No. 2 inheritor of the old Al Capone rackets. Last year Guzik and Accardo reported an income of $278,667.89 from the Erie and Buffalo Co., which happens to be a policy wheel. This was operated by Caesar and Leo Benvenuti up until 1947, when their home was bombed.

The reason their home was bombed was fairly obvious. They were making too much money. So the Guzik-Accardo crowd decided profits should be shared. They muscled in.

Income-tax returns at this point make it fairly clear as to what happened. After the 1947 bombing, Sam Pardy and Tom Manno took over the policy wheel, leaving only small commissions for the two Benvenuti brothers. The real money went to the two men who muscled in, and the Erie and Buffalo Company's tax return under Pardy and Manno shows $278,667,89 paid as "salaries, fees and commissions for A. J. Accardo."

Profitable Partnership

Accardo then split this with Guzik, giving the latter $134,207.54. Along with this revenue, Guzik listed in his 1949 tax return an additional $25,500 which he attributed simply to "miscellaneous various sources." He also deducted $6,803.32 for contributions though he didn't list them by name, which is against regulations.

In 1948 Guzik simple reported a nice, round income of $100,000 which he attributed to "various sources." This left Internal Revenue Agents with the problem of making a long, exhaustive investigation; and, lacking both time and personnel, nothing further was done.

In 1947, things weren't quite so lush for the Chicago lord of the underworld. He listed a profit of only $51,000, though in 1946 he made $65,000 from his partnership with Accardo plus another $7,500 of "various income."

Guzik's income was somewhat similar in the war years. In 1944, for instance, he claimed a total income of only $16,000, while in 1943 he listed $8,080 from "wagering," $2,500 from "football," $6,000 from "miscellaneous sources," and $4,000 from "Dome." This is the name of a night club licensed in the name of Guzik's brother-in-law. There was no explanation as to how Guzik made his money from "football."

Presumably Guzik ought to be careful about his income tax now, for he was sentenced to five years for tax evasion in 1930. This was in the Hoover Administration, when the treasury was a lot tougher on gangsters than they are today. The treasury at that time claimed that Guzik, then business manager for the Capone Syndicate, netted $1,000,000 during the years 1927-28-29, and owed the government $250,000. He got five years in Leavenworth, plus a fine of $17,500.

Guzik has also served other minor jail sentences for larceny and bootlegging, was arrested in New York in connection with the murder of Jake Ingle, but released. He is not a member of the Mafia, though associated with Mafia leaders.

Rearming The South

The South is getting so many defense projects that northern congressmen have been kidding their colleagues about the danger of a new civil war.

It happened when Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia was delivering a closed-door report on proposed Air Force projects — practically every one of them below the Mason-Dixon line. Finally, Congressmen Gary Clemente of New York interrupted.

"Mr. Chairman," he said, "the list you are reading gives me pause. There is this for Tennessee, that for Alabama, and, of course, Texas is never forgotten.

"In addition, I see by the newspapers that the new H-bomb project is slated for South Carolina, while the Atom-bomb plant is located in North Carolina. Am I to be led to believe that the south is rearming?"

Chairman Vinson of Georgia informed the New Yorker that another civil war is not in the offing.

Each Of Services Needs Additional Specialization

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Unity of the armed services in the field has always been good, but unity in Washington is only now being accomplished.

Unity of spirit and cooperation, however, doesn't mean that "unification" as such has been found practicable. For the exact opposite is true. Much duplication on the transportation and supply side, of course, has been eliminated, but the fact remains that each of the three armed services today needs even more instead of less specialization.

The latest development, not yet publicized very much, reveals that the Army and the U. S. Air Force are coming to a much more sensible understanding of what one needs from the other than they have had since the close of World War II.

Thus, officers of the Air Force in Korea are frankly acknowledging in their written reports that the Marine Corps system of close air support for ground troops is far superior to that which the Air Force has been using. Just as the U. S. Army during World War II learned from Marine Corps officers some of the fine points of amphibious warfare, in which the Marines are specialists, so is the Marine Corps system of directing the fire of airplanes from the ground, as used in Korea, likely to become the accepted method for the U. S. Air Force.

There should be no "I told you so" recrimination now, for the Marines ought to be proud to have helped, though their leaders no doubt will not soon forgive the efforts made a few years ago to take away from the Marine Corps its own special aviation units.

What experience in Korea teaches is that the Army must have an important influence in deciding the best way to handle ground-air units. In fact, its interest is bound to be superior to that of the Air Force. Passage by the House of Representatives the other day of the bill which provides a separate tactical air command in the Air Force, as differentiated from the Strategic Air Command, is a long step forward and in line with what the Navy and subsequently the House Armed Services Committee urged during and after the famous B-36 hearings in 1949.

But there are other steps yet to be taken. The Army must have greater control of the Air Forces that are working closely with ground units. This does not necessarily mean that the Army must have its own air force but it does mean it must have continuous control and close liaison so that, for all practical purposes, the tactical air forces are adjuncts of ground operations.

Another significant development is the passage by the House of Representatives of the bill authorizing a large flush-deck aircraft carrier. This will not be ready for three years, but action anticipates that day when America will be using large floating bases of this kind for strategy threats in all the seven seas. When there were relatively few atom bombs, the U. S. Force demanded the right to be the only service to drop them as a part of strategic warfare. Now, however, there are enough bombs available for more than one service and some are in smaller sizes, permitting the use of atomic energy in the guided-missile program from both ships and land as a form of artillery support. This means that, while the primary role of the Air Force remains strategic bombings, certain supplementary forms of effective bombing of targets are included in the role of the Navy — which, incidentally, is what a broad reading of the Key West agreement between the armed services really contemplated in the first place.

Hence the Navy is developing its aircraft carriers for use in areas where land bases are not available and for the protection of amphibious landings, while the U. S. Air Force is now giving both tactical air and strategic air separate attention, and the three armed services are planning future operations with the A-bomb as a part of their respective tactics. So, while we do not have a single force operationally — which is what some people mistakenly believe "unification" to be — we do have a single force in spirit and each service retains, as it should, the opportunity to specialize and at-

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

Salute To Eisenhower

WASHINGTON

ONE OF THE striking features of this phase of President Truman's national leadership (perhaps resulting from a certain lack of self-confidence) is the immense independent authority the President has recently conferred on chosen individuals.

No single American official in the past has ever wielded such power over the domestic economy as has been given, by formal directive, to Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson. Equally, no other American, even including Secretaries of State, has had quite the power to make or break this country's foreign relations that has been conferred, again by formal directive, on General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower. By Eisenhower, the Western alliance is to stand or fall.

The first thing to note about this bold experiment is its effect on the man himself. It seems a reasonable guess that in the years from the end of the war until his selection as Supreme European Commander, Gen. Eisenhower suffered from a deep, and in some ways a weakening inner conflict.

A Public Figure

On the one hand, he has deeply ingrained in him the old American Army tradition, so often and so firmly expounded by his great model, George C. Marshall, that men in uniform have no place or part in politics. Anyone who knows Eisenhower at all, knows that the notion of exchanging his oak-leaved cap for a campaigner's sombrero inspires him with genuine moral horror. On the other hand, he is a public man, in the best sense of the word, from the soles of his feet to the hair on his head; he is still young and vigorous, and he visibly does not relish the quiet pursuits of a retired officer.

Take these contrary impulses. Note that all sorts of people, to serve their own purposes, engaged in a sort of perpetual cooch dance, to tempt Eisenhower to forget his prejudice against politics and to enter public life. It is easy to see how conflicting feelings must have pulled him in different directions, and how this inner conflict was reflected in a sort of uncertainty of action and expression.

All that ended instantly and automatically, however, the day that Eisenhower was called back into uniform and given the hardest assignment any American general has ever had. A man who knows him well has remarked, "He seemed to grow a foot, overnight."

Faith And Determination

The impact of this altered Eisenhower, determined, self-denying, strengthened by the highest sense of mission, was first felt here in Washington. In this poisonous city, it is too easy to forget the greatness and the promise of America. Without any phony talk, by doing no more than voice his own faith and determination, Eisenhower measurably alter the Washington atmosphere even before his departure for Europe. In that short interval, the mood grew up here that is indicated by the almost disproportionate importance attached to Eisenhower's report on his journey.

Of his journey itself, much has already been written. Even so however, the remarkable character of Gen. Eisenhower's achievement in Europe is still not fully understood. It is hard to believe that any man, traveling at top speed from capital to capital, successively confronted in every capital with a whole series of intensely delicate questions, could have managed to avoid any mistake of emphasis or statement at any time and in any place. But it is the unanimous report that Eisenhower managed to do precisely this.

It is even harder to believe that any American, going out to represent this country in a low ebb of faith in American leadership, could universally inspire new hope and faith and energy of effort among our allies. Yet it is also the unanimous report that Eisenhower accomplished this remarkable and vital feat.

Treads Right Path

There is acute danger, of course, in the tendency, both here and abroad, to transform Gen. Eisenhower into a sort of military father-image. Most of the really disagreeable work is yet to be done. The Congress here must take action on Eisenhower's recommendations. Equally, the allied governments must put into practice their promises to him, to speed up and increase their contributions to Western defense. His influence may help to get these things done; but even he cannot make them any pleasanter to do.

Then too, as the Western defense builds up, he will have to settle all sorts of thorny conflicts of national strategic interest. And all the while, he will be menaced by Soviet moves to forestall and defeat his great but long delayed effort. In short, he has just entered the woods; and it will be a very long time before he is out of them again. Yet it is a cause for hope, and for Americans, a cause for pride, that in his first steps Gen. Eisenhower has marked the right path so clearly and followed it so firmly and well.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Yalta Legend

THE "PHILADELPHIA Bulletin," by entitling an editorial, "The Yalta Legend," got itself into a minor controversy. For Yalta is a fact, not a legend; it has already cost us perhaps as many as 60,000 casualties in Korea, besides forcing upon us preparatory mobilization for a general war.

In a footnote to a reader's protest, the editor clarifies his views, which come down to what might be called "The law of necessity." He says:

". . .The United States was free to suggest what Russia ought to do in this territory; but unless this country was then, before the Nazi war was over, prepared to break with Russia, we could not enforce our idea."

That is a good starting point for a discussion of "The law of necessity," which is an application of a very old rule of thumb that the pleasantest way out of a dilemma is the easiest way. It is a temporary relief from pressure by principles of morality. It eases the conscience somewhat.

Gangster parlance terms it the alibi, in the sense that if an action cannot be explained, it can be explained away. Little boys do it all the time — and generals of losing armies are often like little boys: They do what necessity seems to dictate and then try to wriggle out of it. The successful wriggler is a great strategist; the unsuccessful, a great disappointment.

The Yalta conference met in February, 1945 when the United States was the most powerful nation on earth. At that conference, Mr. Roosevelt handed the baton of power to Soviet Russia, and we have been a diminishing power since. The price we exacted from Soviet Russia was that the Russians should cease to be neutral in our war with Japan.

The moral issue was whether in a global war, in which the United States had come to the aid of Russia to the tune of $11,000,000,000, to mention only money and not lives, Russia had any justification for remaining neutral in any phase of the war. The argument against Russia having a second front was equally good against the United States having a second front.

After concessions had been made at Yalta, where hundreds of millions of human beings were sold into subjection and slavery, Russia did not enter that war until Japan was defeated and pleading for peace. V-J Day was August 15, 1945; Russia entered the Far Eastern War on August 8, 1945. And note that the date of Hiroshima was August 6, 1945. In a word, Russia entered that war two days after the atom bomb was hurled at Japan and seven days before the termination of that war.

To say, as the editor of the "Philadelphia Bulletin" does: ". . . It is now generally conceded that it was the military advisers in this country who pressed Roosevelt to do almost anything to get Russia into that war. They thought it necessary. We now know it wasn't." is insufficient. How many lives have been lost because these generals did not know the facts of life. To say, as this editor does: ". . .But all this is hindsight," is begging the question.

Actually, important persons and unimportant ones, like myself, did call attention to the errors that were being made. Herbert Hoover, Hugh Gibson, William C. Bullitt, Joseph P. Kennedy, Charles Lindbergh and a host of others, from 1938 to this very day, have been calling attention to the dangers of unprincipled conduct, but they were smeared by the very people who now slough off the errors and call wisdom, hindsight.

I do not believe that the general statement that Roosevelt acted as he did at Yalta because of his military advisers is true. I think that he acted as he did because he wanted to act that way and that political generals fell in with his views.

Present at Yalta, as military advisers to President Roosevelt, were: Admiral William D. Leahy, General George C. Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King, Lieutenant General Brenon B. Somervell, Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, Vice Admiral Charles M. Cooke, jr., Major General John R. Deane, Major General John E. Hull, Major General Laurence S. Kuter.

Are they responsible?

Also present were Harry Hopkins and Alger Hiss. Were they as responsible as the generals and admirals? It would be interesting to know the whole truth.

Divide And Conquer

Occasionally some commentator on the international scene observes that the aim of some of the Communist maneuvering appears to be the division of the non-Communist nations. Of course this is so. The "divide and conquer" technique was brought to perfection by Hitler, but he neither invented nor ended the device. It always has been the way of an ambitious nation, faced with an alliance of opposed nations, to attempt to weaken or break the opposing alliance.

That is still the way of an ambitious nation. In the Conference of Foreign Ministers, in the United Nations, and through whatever other means appeared likely to serve, Russia has tirelessly tried to find and magnify differences among the Western powers. From the first moment that Red Chinese leaders could take time off from their conquest of China to think about international politics, they have shown skill at exploiting the points of difference between American and British interests in the Far East. They still show that skill, and now have a more involved set of alliances on which to employ it.

The technique can be used by our side, too. We have already tried it, with some success, in the encouragement given to the Tito regime of Yugoslavia in its quarrel with the Cominform. With the Voice of America and other propaganda instruments we probe for other cracks between Russia and its European satellites.

In the Far East, on the other hand, little visible effort has been made to weaken the Communist alliances. On the contrary our dealings with Red China have generally tended to drive the Peiping regime closer to Moscow. Much effort has been spent in fighting Communists in Indochina, but not much in attempting to split them away from Peiping and Moscow.

We need to pursue our own policies carefully to guard against the exploitation of differences with our allies. We need also to watch more closely for chances to divide our opponents.

What you don't know never hurts you, we have heard. We hope that holds for the spot on the income tax form labeled: "Do not write in these spaces."

Price Of Freedom

The American people can find needed courage to face the present difficult situation by again reviewing the early history of the nation. In December, 1776, Washington's ragged regiments were camped on the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware River, without shelter, some shoeless, with little food. They had retreated across New Jersey in the face of a superior British force. The Army lacked everything needed to win a war, including weapons and disciplined soldiers.

There had been many desertions, the country was demoralized and divided, money was worthless. The British held New York City, Long Island and most of New Jersey. It was a beaten army which stood listening to the words of Thomas Paine, one of its members.

"These are times which try men's souls," he told his comrads. "The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country . . . Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered, yet we have this consolation that the harder the conflict the more glorious the triumph.

"Heaven knows how to set a proper price upon its goods, and it would be strange, indeed, if so celestial an article as freedom should not be highly rated."

The rest is history. Washington led his soldiers across an ice-choked river in that Christmas night in 1776 to victory and a free nation was made secure. It is this same nation which today faces a test to determine whether its people are sunshine patriots, or have retained the courage and patriotism which brought it into being.

Will OPA, with its initials changed, smell less odorous?

Party Peace In England

"England does not love coalitions." This utterance by a veteran observer of the political scene was made in the middle of the nineteenth century, when a coalition tried, not very successfully, to fight the Crimean war against Russia. The saying has been quoted ever since, yet in their two great crises of this century, the two world wars, the British deemed it desirable to associate all the leading parties with the conduct of the war.

In 1915 the Liberal administration of Herbert H. Asquith brought in several prominent Conservatives, including Arthur Balfour who had been prime minister in the last Tory administration. Under Asquith first and later under Lloyd George the coaltion lasted until 1922, when the Conservatives revolted and put in a government entirely from their own party.

Winston Churchill headed a coalition all through his premiership. A prominent member was the present Labor prime minister, Clement Attlee.

Now coalition talk is heard again. The difficulties are partly personal and partly relating to policy. Churchill and Attlee would both be unwilling to occupy the second place. On the political side, coalition would mean shelving of the steel nationalization proposal, dear to Labor's heart. Also Attlee is not free to choose his colleagues as he pleases. He is pledged to consult the party organization, which only in the direst straits would consent to put Conservatives in offices which Labor men might fill.

Probably the time is not yet ripe for another coalition. If war came, coalition would come with it but otherwise it is not likely to be adopted.

Novelists' Good Deeds

The novels of Charles Dickens and their social and economic effects are to be studied in a course, open to the public, at New York University. This may be the first such course in any American higher institution, though naturally the many courses in English literature or the history of the novel have included Dickens and his achievements in their subject matter. The New York study will apparently be more extensive.

The story with a moral is apt to be the least successful form of literary art. Not so with Dickens. Few writers and few statesmen have remedied as many abuses as did he. Imprisonment for debt, the law's delays and the cruel treatment of children at unsupervised boarding schools all received stunning blows from his pen. In many cases these blows were mortal.

Of American writers only Harriett Beecher Stowe in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been as decisively beneficial to an oppressed class. It is still too early to decide the effect of John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath," with its bitter portrayal of the plight of the itinerant farm worker.

Such writers show that the novel may be an act of public service as well as a work of art.

Correction Of Heart Defects

A CHILD who is born with a heart defect should not have his activities restricted unnecessarily. The majority will discover their limitations as soon as they become active. As a result they are likely to refrain from running upstairs or down the hall if it makes them short of breath or fatigued. Nature is kind in this respect.

Some infants who are born with this type of handicap, however, have all they can do to survive because the heart has difficulty pumping blood thru the body. The skin often is blue, hence the term "blue baby." This cyanosis occurs when the venous blood mixes with the arterial blood before it has had a chance to be purified by the lungs. Consequently, all the blood is darker than usual. These youngsters are likely to be short of breath in addition to the change in complexion. Some are comfortable only when they stoop over from a squatting position; others are bothered when lying flat or after exercise. At the other extreme are cases where the defect is so mild it causes little or no trouble; the lesion usually is found accidentally in a routine examination.

Every day more progress is being made in the surgical treatment of these congenital conditions. There is nothing more dramatic than to watch the before and after scenes. Many little ones are helped to such an extent that on leaving the hospital they do not look like the same children who entered. The color is better and they are able to breathe without straining every muscle in the chest and neck. In the few years that surgery has been possible new operations have been devised and now at least six anomalies are amenable to this form of treatment. Furthermore, so many cases have been operated upon that many surgeons are seasoned in this procedure. Most of the hazards have been removed, thus adding to the safety of the maneuver.

Surgery makes the congenital cardiac victim more comfortable but many other measures are available to prolong life. Most children with disorders of this nature are sensible about overexertion and too much restriction is likely to make them unhappy. On the other hand, group activities and competitive games must be omitted if they lead to overfatigue. Infection also is a secret enemy. Colds can be minimized especially thru the winter and spring months. The physician should be called immediately whenever a respiratory infection develops because these attacks demand vigorous treatment with the sulfonamides or antibiotics.

The wonder drugs also are utilized in case of tonsillectomy or tooth extraction. They are given the day before and for two or three days thereafter to eliminate any stray germs that might have been released in the operation. There always is a possibility that these microorganisms will attack the pumping organ because of its weakened condition. In the past this complication (subacute bacterial endocarditis) invariably was fatal but nowadays at least 85 per cent of the sufferers can be saved.

It is wise also to avoid extremes of heat and cold because poor circulation usually co-exists with congenital heart disease. Children should stay indoors in inclement weather or be taken south in the winter months and north in the summer time.

CANCER AND CHICKENS

J. P. R. writes: I have raised several hundred chickens and frequently found cancerous growths on them. This made me wonder whether cancer could be contracted in this way.

REPLY

Studies have shown that cancer does not result from eating animals or poultry that might have harbored malignant growths.

HEAVY JOWLED

N. M. writes: Have you any suggestions to eliminate the jowled or squared of cheek line that comes with middle age?

REPLY

No, but you might try: (1) a low caloric diet; (2) a chin strap at night; (3) plastic surgery, or (4) accept it as most of us are willing to do.

MOUNTAIN VACATION

F. T. writes: I'm going to Colorado on vacation and have heard about Rocky mountain ticks. How can they be avoided?

REPLY

By protecting the lower extremities with slacks or breeches and high shoes. Refrain from sitting on or walking in tall grass. The best plan is to use one of the proved insect repellents. Some can be sprayed or daubed on the shoes or cuffs; others may be applied directly to the skin, especially of the legs. The bite of a tick carrying the Rocky mountain spotted fever organism is not as serious as it was in the past because we have remedies against the disease.

Underworld Partners Refuse To Divulge Source Of Income; Internal Revenue Lacks Time And Personnel To Make Thorough Investigations

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The two men who rule the Chicago underworld today are Tony Accardo and Jack Guzik. Not only have they taken over the vast and profitable domain of Al Capone along the shores of Lake Michigan, but they have spread out into the lush crime fields of Florida and California.

Four years ago Accardo and Guzik, long operating informally as a team, legalized their partnership and notified the government that for the year of 1946 they had earned a total of $130,000.

The source of this profit they listed merely as "other income," which poses an obvious problem for Uncle Sam's tax collectors. Internal Revenue solved it that year by writing the following notation at the bottom of Guzik's and Accardo's tax return:

"The partners refused to divulge the source of this income. Insomuch as the partnership reports a substantial amount, the correctness of which is impossible to check, it is opined that further investigation is impracticable. — (signed) Ned Klein, Revenue Agent."

This was about the best Agent Klein could do under the circumstances. However, if Secretary of the Treasury Snyder wanted to set up a special tax squad to watch the big racketeers, and if Congress wanted to give him the money for this, the effect would be:

1. To bring considerably more revenue into the treasury.
2. To hamper if not drive the hoodlums out of business.

For no hoodlum can operate when he knows that Internal Revenue men are breathing down his neck every minute, not only watching his operations but checking on his so-called business deductions.

Protection Payoffs

The latter is the Achilles' heel of the underworld. For the chief business deductions of the hoodlums arep rotection money paid to police and local politicians. This is not a legal business deduction under the tax laws, and by watching this, Revenue Agents not only can help clean up city politics but help drive the hoodlums out of business.

To illustrate, let's take a closer look at the profits of Jack Guzik. No. 2 inheritor of the old Al Capone rackets. Last year Guzik and Accardo reported an income of $278,667.89 from the Erie and Buffalo Co., which happens to be a policy wheel. This was operated by Caesar and Leo Benvenuti up until 1947, when their home was bombed.

The reason their home was bombed was fairly obvious. They were making too much money. So the Guzik-Accardo crowd decided profits should be shared. They muscled in.

Income-tax returns at this point make it fairly clear as to what happened. After the 1947 bombing, Sam Pardy and Tom Manno took over the policy wheel, leaving only small commissions for the two Benvenuti brothers. The real money went to the two men who muscled in, and the Erie and Buffalo Company's tax return under Pardy and Manno shows $278,667.89 paid as "salaries, fees and commissions for A. J. Accardo."

Profitable Partnership

Accardo then split this with Guzik, giving the latter $134,207.54. Along with this revenue, Guzik listed in his 1949 tax return an additional $25,500 which he attributed simply to "miscellaneous various sources." He also deducted $6,803.32 for contributions though he didn't list them by name, which is against regulations.

In 1948 Guzik simple reported a nice, round income of $100,000 which he attributed to "various sources." This left Internal Revenue Agents with the problem of making a long, exhaustive investigation; and, lacking both time and personnel, nothing further was done.

In 1947, things weren't quite so lush for the Chicago lord of the underworld. He listed a profit of only $51,000, though in 1946 he made $65,000 from his partnership with Accardo plus another $7,500 of "various income."

Guzik's income was somewhat similar in the war years. In 1944, for instance, he claimed a total income of only $16,000, while in 1943 he listed $8,080 from "wagering," $2,500 from "football," $6,000 from "miscellaneous sources," and $4,000 from "Dome." This is the name of a night club licensed in the name of Guzik's brother-in-law. There was no explanation as to how Guzik made his money from "football."

Presumably Guzik ought to be careful about his income tax now, for he was sentenced to five years for tax evasion in 1930. This was in the Hoover Administration, when the treasury was a lot tougher on gangsters than they are today. The treasury at that time claimed that Guzik, then business manager for the Capone Syndicate, netted $1,000,000 during the years 1927-28-29, and owed the government $250,000. He got five years in Leavenworth, plus a fine of $17,500.

Guzik has also served other minor jail sentences for larceny and bootlegging, was arrested in New York in connection with the murder of Jake Ingle, but released. He is not a member of the Mafia, though associated with Mafia leaders.

Rearming The South

The South is getting so many defense projects that northern congressmen have been kidding their colleagues about the danger of a new civil war.

It happened when Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia was delivering a closed-door report on proposed Air Force projects — practically every one of them below the Mason-Dixon line. Finally, Congressmen Gary Clemente of New York interrupted.

"Mr. Chairman," he said, "the list you are reading gives me pause. There is this for Tennessee, that for Alabama, and, of course, Texas is never forgotten.

"In addition, I see by the newspapers that the new H-bomb project is slated for South Carolina, while the Atom-bomb plant is located in North Carolina. Am I to be led to believe that the south is rearming?"

Chairman Vinson of Georgia informed the New Yorker that another civil war is not in the offing.

Each Of Services Needs Additional Specialization

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Unity of the armed services in the field has always been good, but unity in Washington is only now being accomplished.

Unity of spirit and cooperation, however, doesn't mean that "unification" as such has been found practicable. For the exact opposite is true. Much duplication on the transportation and supply side, of course, has been eliminated, but the fact remains that each of the three armed services today needs even more instead of less specialization.

The latest development, not yet publicized very much, reveals that the Army and the U. S. Air Force are coming to a much more sensible understanding of what one needs from the other than they have had since the close of World War II.

Thus, officers of the Air Force in Korea are frankly acknowledging in their written reports that the Marine Corps system of close air support for ground troops is far superior to that which the Air Force has been using. Just as the U. S. Army during World War II learned from Marine Corps officers some of the fine points of amphibious warfare, in which the Marines are specialists, so is the Marine Corps system of directing the fire of airplanes from the ground, as used in Korea, likely to become the accepted method for the U. S. Air Force.

There should be no "I told you so" recrimination now, for the Marines ought to be proud to have helped, though their leaders no doubt will not soon forgive the efforts made a few years ago to take away from the Marine Corps its own special aviation units.

What experience in Korea teaches is that the Army must have an important influence in deciding the best way to handle ground-air units. In fact, its interest is bound to be superior to that of the Air Force. Passage by the House of Representatives the other day of the bill which provides a separate tactical air command in the Air Force, as differentiated from the Strategic Air Command, is a long step forward and in line with what the Navy and subsequently the House Armed Services Committee urged during and after the famous B-36 hearings in 1949.

But there are other steps yet to be taken. The Army must have greater control of the Air Forces that are working closely with ground units. This does not necessarily mean that the Army must have its own air force but it does mean it must have continuous control and close liaison so that, for all practical purposes, the tactical air forces are adjuncts of ground operations.

Another significant development is the passage by the House of Representatives of the bill authorizing a large flush-deck aircraft carrier. This will not be ready for three years, but action anticipates that day when America will be using large floating bases of this kind for strategy threats in all the seven seas. When there were relatively few atom bombs, the U. S. Force demanded the right to be the only service to drop them as a part of strategic warfare. Now, however, there are enough bombs available for more than one service and some are in smaller sizes, permitting the use of atomic energy in the guided-missile program from both ships and land as a form of artillery support. This means that, while the primary role of the Air Force remains strategic bombings, certain supplementary forms of effective bombing of targets are included in the role of the Navy — which, incidentally, is what a broad reading of the Key West agreement between the armed services really contemplated in the first place.

Hence the Navy is developing its aircraft carriers for use in areas where land bases are not available and for the protection of amphibious landings, while the U. S. Air Force is now giving both tactical air and strategic air separate attention, and the three armed services are planning future operations with the A-bomb as a part of their respective tactics. So, while we do not have a single force operationally — which is what some people mistakenly believe "unification" to be — we do have a single force in spirit and each service retains, as it should, the opportunity to specialize and at-

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

Salute To Eisenhower

WASHINGTON

ONE OF THE striking features of this phase of President Truman's national leadership (perhaps resulting from a certain lack of self-confidence) is the immense independent authority the President has recently conferred on chosen individuals.

No single American official in the past has ever wielded such power over the domestic economy as has been given, by formal directive, to Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson. Equally, no other American, even including Secretaries of State, has had quite the power to make or break this country's foreign relations that has been conferred, again by formal directive, on General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower. By Eisenhower, the Western alliance is to stand or fall.

The first thing to note about this bold experiment is its effect on the man himself. It seems a reasonable guess that in the years from the end of the war until his selection as Supreme European Commander, Gen. Eisenhower suffered from a deep, and in some ways a weakening inner conflict.

A Public Figure

On the one hand, he has deeply ingrained in him the old American Army tradition, so often and so firmly expounded by his great model, George C. Marshall, that men in uniform have no place or part in politics. Anyone who knows Eisenhower at all, knows that the notion of exchanging his oak-leaved cap for a campaigner's sombrero inspires him with genuine moral horror. On the other hand, he is a public man, in the best sense of the word, from the soles of his feet to the hair on his head; he is still young and vigorous, and he visibly does not relish the quiet pursuits of a retired officer.

Take these contrary impulses. Note that all sorts of people, to serve their own purposes, engaged in a sort of perpetual cooch dance, to tempt Eisenhower to forget his prejudice against politics and to enter public life. It is easy to see how conflicting feelings must have pulled him in different directions, and how this inner conflict was reflected in a sort of uncertainty of action and expression.

All that ended instantly and automatically, however, the day that Eisenhower was called back into uniform and given the hardest assignment any American general has ever had. A man who knows him well has remarked, "He seemed to grow a foot, overnight."

Faith And Determination

The impact of this altered Eisenhower, determined, self-denying, strengthened by the highest sense of mission, was first felt here in Washington. In this poisonous city, it is too easy to forget the greatness and the promise of America. Without any phony talk, by doing no more than voice his own faith and determination, Eisenhower measurably alter the Washington atmosphere even before his departure for Europe. In that short interval, the mood grew up here that is indicated by the almost disproportionate importance attached to Eisenhower's report on his journey.

Of his journey itself, much has already been written. Even so however, the remarkable character of Gen. Eisenhower's achievement in Europe is still not fully understood. It is hard to believe that any man, traveling at top speed from capital to capital, successively confronted in every capital with a whole series of intensely delicate questions, could have managed to avoid any mistake of emphasis or statement at any time and in any place. But it is the unanimous report that Eisenhower managed to do precisely this.

It is even harder to believe that any American, going out to represent this country in a low ebb of faith in American leadership, could universally inspire new hope and faith and energy of effort among our allies. Yet it is also the unanimous report that Eisenhower accomplished this remarkable and vital feat.

Treads Right Path

There is acute danger, of course, in the tendency, both here and abroad, to transform Gen. Eisenhower into a sort of military father-image. Most of the really disagreeable work is yet to be done. The Congress here must take action on Eisenhower's recommendations. Equally, the allied governments must put into practice their promises to him, to speed up and increase their contributions to Western defense. His influence may help to get these things done; but even he cannot make them any pleasanter to do.

Then too, as the Western defense builds up, he will have to settle all sorts of thorny conflicts of national strategic interest. And all the while, he will be menaced by Soviet moves to forestall and defeat his great but long delayed effort. In short, he has just entered the woods; and it will be a very long time before he is out of them again. Yet it is a cause for hope, and for Americans, a cause for pride, that in his first steps Gen. Eisenhower has marked the right path so clearly and followed it so firmly and well.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Yalta Legend

THE "PHILADELPHIA Bulletin," by entitling an editorial, "The Yalta Legend," got itself into a minor controversy. For Yalta is a fact, not a legend; it has already cost us perhaps as many as 60,000 casualties in Korea, besides forcing upon us preparatory mobilization for a general war.

In a footnote to a reader's protest, the editor clarifies his views, which come down to what might be called "The law of necessity." He says:

". . .The United States was free to suggest what Russia ought to do in this territory; but unless this country was then, before the Nazi war was over, prepared to break with Russia, we could not enforce our idea."

That is a good starting point for a discussion of "The law of necessity," which is an application of a very old rule of thumb that the pleasantest way out of a dilemma is the easiest way. It is a temporary relief from pressure by principles of morality. It eases the conscience somewhat.

Gangster parlance terms it the alibi, in the sense that if an action cannot be explained, it can be explained away. Little boys do it all the time — and generals of losing armies are often like little boys: They do what necessity seems to dictate and then try to wriggle out of it. The successful wriggler is a great strategist; the unsuccessful, a great disappointment.

The Yalta conference met in February, 1945 when the United States was the most powerful nation on earth. At that conference, Mr. Roosevelt handed the baton of power to Soviet Russia, and we have been a diminishing power since. The price we exacted from Soviet Russia was that the Russians should cease to be neutral in our war with Japan.

The moral issue was whether in a global war, in which the United States had come to the aid of Russia to the tune of $11,000,000,000, to mention only money and not lives, Russia had any justification for remaining neutral in any phase of the war. The argument against Russia having a second front was equally good against the United States having a second front.

After concessions had been made at Yalta, where hundreds of millions of human beings were sold into subjection and slavery, Russia did not enter that war until Japan was defeated and pleading for peace. V-J Day was August 15, 1945; Russia entered the Far Eastern War on August 8, 1945. And note that the date of Hiroshima was August 6, 1945. In a word, Russia entered that war two days after the atom bomb was hurled at Japan and seven days before the termination of that war.

To say, as the editor of the "Philadelphia Bulletin" does: ". . . It is now generally conceded that it was the military advisers in this country who pressed Roosevelt to do almost anything to get Russia into that war. They thought it necessary. We now know it wasn't," is insufficient. How many lives have been lost because these generals did not know the facts of life. To say, as this editor does: ". . .But all this is hindsight," is begging the question.

Actually, important persons and unimportant ones, like myself, did call attention to the errors that were being made. Herbert Hoover, Hugh Gibson, William C. Bullitt, Joseph P. Kennedy, Charles Lindbergh and a host of others, from 1938 to this very day, have been calling attention to the dangers of unprincipled conduct, but they were smeared by the very people who now slough off the errors and call wisdom, hindsight.

I do not believe that the general statement that Roosevelt acted as he did at Yalta because of his military advisers is true. I think that he acted as he did because he wanted to act that way and that political generals fell in with his views.

Present at Yalta, as military advisers to President Roosevelt, were: Admiral William D. Leahy, General George C. Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King, Lieutenant General Stephon B. Somervell, Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, Vice Admiral Charles M. Cooke, Jr., Major General John R. Deane, Major General John E. Hull, Major General Laurence S. Kuter.

Are they responsible?

Also present were Harry Hopkins and Alger Hiss. Were they as responsible as the generals and admirals? It would be interesting to know the whole truth.

County Workers Seek Pay Boost; Cite High Costs

Requests for wage increases were made yesterday by several groups of county employes.

Representing the County Roads Department workers this morning at a meeting with the Allegany County Board of Commissioners were Charles Bramble, president of Local 453, Teamsters Union; R. C. Simmons, Laborers Union; and Robert Jones, Operating Engineers.

Jones told the board the road workers did not receive a wage increase last year and this year were asking in plenty of time so the matter could be considered prior to making up the levy for the next fiscal period.

Members of the board said they had no idea what the situation would be on wages but that they would give the request consideration.

A petition was also received from workers at Sylvan Retreat, the county's mental institution, and the County Home asking for a wage adjustment. They cited the rising cost of living and wage hikes in industry and to institutional workers elsewhere.

Over 100 workers are involved in the request at the county institutions and another 50 to 60 men are employed by the County Roads Department.

There are only about two birds to the acre in the United States.

YOU CAN SURVIVE THE ATOM BOMB

KNOW THE BOMB'S TRUE DANGERS. KNOW STEPS YOU CAN TAKE TO ESCAPE THEM.

How Should a House Be Prepared?

"FIREPROOF HOUSEKEEPING" IS IMPORTANT

STARTING right now you should go in for "fireproof housekeeping." Don't let trash pile up around your house and always keep it in covered containers.

WHEN ALERTED, CLOSE ALL WINDOWS AND DOORS AND GUARD AGAINST INJURY BY FLYING GLASS

If you know you have time when an alert sounds, be sure to shut the doors and windows and pull down the shades. This will help keep out fire sparks.

If you have shutters or venetian blinds, or heavy drapes, they will also provide some protection against harm from flying glass.

TO PREVENT HOUSEHOLD EXPLOSIONS, SHUT OFF OIL BURNERS

Several other household precautions should be taken promptly. Atomic bombs set off high above ground seldom cause breaks in underground gas or water mains. However, shaking and twisting of the buildings by the blast wave sometimes snaps off household inlets at the point where they enter the basement. This may allow gas or oil to flow into your cellar.

To lessen the danger of fires and explosions that could result from this leakage, you should throw the electric switch that shuts off your oil burner.

LOCAL UTILITY COMPANIES WILL GIVE YOU DETAILED INSTRUCTIONS ABOUT GAS, ELECTRICITY AND SO ON

Your local utility companies can give you detailed instructions about your gas, pilot lights, and so on.

If you have a coal-burning furnace or wood stove, be sure to close all its fuel and draft doors. In other words, do all you can to prevent sparks and to put out or cover open flames.

KEEP A FLASHLIGHT HANDY

Should attack come without warning, take these same precautions right after the raid. Keep at least one flashlight handy and don't strike a match to light your way down into a darkened basement. Gas or oil fumes may be present and an explosion could result.

What About Lingering Radioactivity?

AIR BURSTS LEAVE NO DANGEROUS LINGERING RADIOACTIVITY

Knowing how to protect yourself from blast, heat, and explosive radioactivity, only one major problem remains: That is how to avoid harm from lingering radioactivity.

Explosive radioactivity bursts from the bomb at the time of explosion and lasts for only little more than a minute.

LINGERING RADIOACTIVITY COMES FROM BOMB "ASHES" OR UNEXPLODED ATOMIC FUEL

Lingering radioactivity remains for a longer time, from a few minutes to weeks or months, depending on the kind of radioactive material.

Lingering radioactivity may become a danger when atomic bombs are exploded on the ground, underground, or in the water. Air bursts leave no dangerous lingering radioactivity.

Most lingering radioactivity comes from leftover bomb wastes, or "ashes," technically called fission products. They consist of countless billions of fragments, or pieces, of atoms split up in the explosion. Smaller, and usually less dangerous, amounts of lingering radioactivity may be thrown off by scattered atoms of uranium or plutonium that fail to split up when the bomb goes off.

LINGERING RADIOACTIVITY ACTS LIKE DUST AND IS HARD TO GET RID OF. AVOID IT WHENEVER YOU CAN

These totally invisible radioactive particles act much the same as ordinary, everyday dust. When present in any real quantity, they are scattered about in patches and contaminate, or pollute, everything they fall on, including people. While they can be removed easily from some surfaces, they stick very tightly to others. It is practically impossible to get absolutely all of them out of household corners and cracks. Most of the time, it is far easier to prevent pollution than it is to remove it.

What About Radioactive Clouds?

IN AIR BURSTS RADIOACTIVE DUSTS ARE SPREAD SO WIDELY THAT THEY ARE UNLIKELY TO HARM PEOPLE

IN SPITE of the huge quantities of lingering radioactivity loosed by atomic explosions, people fortunately are not very likely to be exposed to dangerous amounts of it in most atomic raids.

AIR BURSTS WILL NOT CREATE "AREAS OF DOOM"

Since high-level bursts do the greatest damage, that is the kind we can expect most often. When atomic weapons are exploded in mid-air, the violent, upward surge of super-hot gases and air quickly sweeps practically all the radioactive ashes and unexploded bits of bomb fuel high into the sky. Most of them are carried harmlessly off in the drifting bomb clouds. High-level explosions definitely will not create "areas of doom," where no man dares enter and no plant can grow. In fact, they will leave very little radioactivity on the ground, even near the point of explosion. Firefighters and rescue teams can move promptly toward the center of destruction with little danger of facing harmful radiation.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT HIGH-LEVEL RADIOACTIVE CLOUDS

And regardless of all you may have heard or read concerning the dangers of radioactive clouds, after the first minute and a half there is actually little or nothing to fear from those produced by high-level bursts. While most of the radioactive materials swept up into the sky eventually fall back to earth, they are so widely and so thinly spread that they are very unlikely to offer any real dangers to humans.

IT WOULD TAKE MANY THOUSANDS OF A-BOMBS TO PRODUCE DANGEROUS GROUND CONTAMINATION

Thousands of bombs would have to be set off in the air before serious ground contamination would be found over really large areas. There was no ground-level pollution of any importance following either of the two Japanese atomic bombings.

NONE OF THE JAPANESE AT HIROSHIMA OR NAGASAKI WERE HARMED BY LINGERING RADIOACTIVITY

It was said earlier that 15 per cent of the Japanese A-bomb deaths or injuries were caused by radioactivity. But not one of them was caused by the lingering kind. Explosive radioactivity caused them all.

What About Ground and Water Bursts?

SURFACE BURSTS USUALLY LEAVE A LIMITED AREA RADIOACTIVE

Bursts on or near the ground usually will leave a limited area of rather heavy and often dangerous pollution near the explosion point. In such cases, the possibility of harm from radioactivity falling out of the clouds is greater than in high-level explosions. But even so, a person could escape contamination by simply taking refuge inside a house or even by getting inside a car and rolling up the windows. And even if some of the wastes fell on him, he would lessen his chances of injury if he promptly shed his clothes and took a bath or shower.

UNDERWATER A-BOMBS PRODUCE SERIOUS LINGERING RADIATION

In underwater explosions, large portions of the bomb's radioactive wastes will be "trapped" by the water and then spread over the immediate area. Under these conditions, serious ground pollution is to be expected.

After a water or underground burst a cloud of very radioactive mist or dust might form and spread, particularly downwind, injuring people who weren't well sheltered.

STAY UNDER COVER FOR AT LEAST AN HOUR AFTER GROUND OR UNDERWATER BURSTS

If the explosion has been underground, at ground level, or in the water, stay in your shelter. If caught in the open, get indoors right away. Then stay indoors for at least an hour or until you get instructions. It may be necessary to stay inside for three or four hours. The reason for this is that most lingering radioactivity loses its power very fast. So staying undercover for a while will greatly reduce the danger.

AVOID GETTING WET AFTER UNDERWATER BURSTS

Any rain or mist that comes right after an atomic explosion should be considered dangerous, even though it may not always be radioactive. Keep from getting wet if you possibly can.

And remember that an air burst will leave no lingering radioactivity of importance, so after a few minutes it will be safe to get out and help fight fires or to help people who may need it.

Allocation Of Betting Taxes Announced By County Board

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners authorized Mrs. Johanna Sills, auditor, yesterday morning to allocate funds sent here from taxes received from horse racing in the state.

A total of $53,361.57 was received under the Sherbow Plan provisions last December, but allocation was held up to await the new census figures. Due to the delay in receiving new figures, the funds were ordered distributed today on the old basis.

Each incorporated community receives a proportionate share of the money based on census figures.

Cumberland will receive $24,224.52; Frostburg, $4,699.01; Westernport, $2,189.29; Lonaconing, $1,490.34; Luke, $606.19; Midland, $573.64, and Barton, $479.15.

The county will retain $19,101.28 or its share. Under the 1950 census figures the county in the future will receive a larger amount as the population outside the incorporated towns increased and most of the communities lost population.

County Workers Seek Pay Boost; Cite High Costs

Requests for wage increases were made yesterday by several groups of county employes.

Representing the County Roads Department workers this morning at a meeting with the Allegany County Board of Commissioners were Charles Bramble, president of Local 453, Teamsters Union; R. C. Simmons, Laborers Union; and Robert Jones, Operating Engineers.

Jones told the board the road workers did not receive a wage increase last year and this year were asking in plenty of time so the matter could be considered prior to making up the levy for the next fiscal period.

Members of the board said they had no idea what the situation would be on wages but that they would give the request consideration.

A petition was also received from workers at Sylvan Retreat, the county's mental institution, and the County Home asking for a wage adjustment. They cited the rising cost of living and wage hikes in industry and to institutional workers elsewhere.

Over 100 workers are involved in the request at the county institutions and another 50 to 60 men are employed by the County Roads Department.

YOU CAN SURVIVE THE ATOM BOMB

KNOW THE BOMB'S TRUE DANGERS. KNOW STEPS YOU CAN TAKE TO ESCAPE THEM.

How Should a House Be Prepared?

"FIREPROOF HOUSEKEEPING" IS IMPORTANT

STARTING right now you should go in for "fireproof housekeeping." Don't let trash pile up around your house and always keep it in covered containers.

WHEN ALERTED, CLOSE ALL WINDOWS AND DOORS AND GUARD AGAINST INJURY BY FLYING GLASS

If you know you have time when an alert sounds, be sure to shut the doors and windows and pull down the shades. This will help keep out fire sparks.

If you have shutters or venetian blinds, or heavy drapes, they will also provide some protection against harm from flying glass.

TO PREVENT HOUSEHOLD EXPLOSIONS, SHUT OFF OIL BURNERS

Several other household precautions should be taken promptly. Atomic bombs set off high above ground seldom cause breaks in underground gas or water mains. However, shaking and twisting of the buildings by the blast wave sometimes snaps off household inlets at the point where they enter the basement. This may allow gas or oil to flow into your cellar.

To lessen the danger of fires and explosions that could result from this leakage, you should throw the electric switch that shuts off your oil burner.

LOCAL UTILITY COMPANIES WILL GIVE YOU DETAILED INSTRUCTIONS ABOUT GAS, ELECTRICITY AND SO ON

Your local utility companies can give you detailed instructions about your gas, pilot lights, and so on.

If you have a coal-burning furnace or wood stove, be sure to close all its fuel and draft doors. In other words, do all you can to prevent sparks and to put out or cover open flames.

KEEP A FLASHLIGHT HANDY

Should attack come without warning, take these same precautions right after the raid. Keep at least one flashlight handy and don't strike a match to light your way down into a darkened basement. Gas or oil fumes may be present and an explosion could result.

What About Lingering Radioactivity?

AIR BURSTS LEAVE NO DANGEROUS LINGERING RADIOACTIVITY

Knowing how to protect yourself from blast, heat, and explosive radioactivity, only one major problem remains: That is how to avoid harm from lingering radioactivity.

Explosive radioactivity bursts from the bomb at the time of explosion and lasts for only little more than a minute.

LINGERING RADIOACTIVITY COMES FROM BOMB "ASHES" OR UNEXPLODED ATOMIC FUEL

Lingering radioactivity remains for a longer time, from a few minutes to weeks or months, depending on the kind of radioactive material.

Lingering radioactivity may become a danger when atomic bombs are exploded on the ground, underground, or in the water. Air bursts leave no dangerous lingering radioactivity.

Most lingering radioactivity comes from leftover bomb wastes, or "ashes," technically called fission products. They consist of countless billions of fragments, or pieces, of atoms split up in the explosion. Smaller, and usually less dangerous, amounts of lingering radioactivity may be thrown off by scattered atoms of uranium or plutonium that fail to split up when the bomb goes off.

LINGERING RADIOACTIVITY ACTS LIKE DUST AND IS HARD TO GET RID OF. AVOID IT WHENEVER YOU CAN

These totally invisible radioactive particles act much the same as ordinary, everyday dust. When present in any real quantity, they are scattered about in patches and contaminate, or pollute, everything they fall on, including people. While they can be removed easily from some surfaces, they stick very tightly to others. It is practically impossible to get absolutely all of them out of household corners and cracks. Most of the time, it is far easier to prevent pollution than it is to remove it.

What About Radioactive Clouds?

IN AIR BURSTS RADIOACTIVE DUSTS ARE SPREAD SO WIDELY THAT THEY ARE UNLIKELY TO HARM PEOPLE

IN SPITE of the huge quantities of lingering radioactivity loosed by atomic explosions, people fortunately are not very likely to be exposed to dangerous amounts of it in most atomic raids.

AIR BURSTS WILL NOT CREATE "AREAS OF DOOM"

Since high-level bursts do the greatest damage, that is the kind we can expect most often. When atomic weapons are exploded in mid-air, the violent, upward surge of super-hot gases and air quickly sweeps practically all the radioactive ashes and unexploded bits of bomb fuel high into the sky. Most of them are carried harmlessly off in the drifting bomb clouds. High-level explosions definitely will not create "areas of doom," where no man dares enter and no plant can grow. In fact, they will leave very little radioactivity on the ground, even near the point of explosion. Firefighters and rescue teams can move promptly toward the center of destruction with little danger of facing harmful radiation.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT HIGH-LEVEL RADIOACTIVE CLOUDS

And regardless of all you may have heard or read concerning the dangers of radioactive clouds, after the first minute and a half there is actually little or nothing to fear from those produced by high-level bursts. While most of the radioactive materials swept up into the sky eventually fall back to earth, they are so widely and so thinly spread that they are very unlikely to offer any real dangers to humans.

IT WOULD TAKE MANY THOUSANDS OF A-BOMBS TO PRODUCE DANGEROUS GROUND CONTAMINATION

Thousands of bombs would have to be set off in the air before serious ground contamination would be found over really large areas. There was no ground-level pollution of any importance following either of the two Japanese atomic bombings.

NONE OF THE JAPANESE AT HIROSHIMA OR NAGASAKI WERE HARMED BY LINGERING RADIOACTIVITY

It was said earlier that 15 per cent of the Japanese A-bomb deaths or injuries were caused by radioactivity. But not one of them was caused by the lingering kind. Explosive radioactivity caused them all.

What About Ground and Water Bursts?

SURFACE BURSTS USUALLY LEAVE A LIMITED AREA RADIOACTIVE

Bursts on or near the ground usually will leave a limited area of rather heavy and often dangerous pollution near the explosion point. In such cases, the possibility of harm from radioactivity falling out of the clouds is greater than in high-level explosions. But even so, a person could escape contamination by simply taking refuge inside a house or even by getting inside a car and rolling up the windows. And even if some of the wastes fell on him, he would lessen his chances of injury if he promptly shed his clothes and took a bath or shower.

UNDERWATER A-BOMBS PRODUCE SERIOUS LINGERING RADIATION

In underwater explosions, large portions of the bomb's radioactive wastes will be "trapped" by the water and then spread over the immediate area. Under these conditions, serious ground pollution is to be expected.

After a water or underground burst a cloud of very radioactive mist or dust might form and spread, particularly downwind, injuring people who weren't well sheltered.

STAY UNDER COVER FOR AT LEAST AN HOUR AFTER GROUND OR UNDERWATER BURSTS

If the explosion has been underground, at ground level, or in the water, stay in your shelter. If caught in the open, get indoors right away. Then stay indoors for at least an hour or until you get instructions. It may be necessary to stay inside for three or four hours. The reason for this is that most lingering radioactivity loses its power very fast. So staying undercover for a while will greatly reduce the danger.

AVOID GETTING WET AFTER UNDERWATER BURSTS

Any rain or mist that comes right after an atomic explosion should be considered dangerous, even though it may not always be radioactive. Keep from getting wet if you possibly can.

And remember that an air burst will leave no lingering radioactivity of importance, so after a few minutes it will be safe to get out and help fight fires or to help people who may need it.

A total of $53,361.57 was received under the Sherbow Plan provisions last December, but allocation was held up to await the new census figures. Due to the delay in receiving new figures, the funds were ordered distributed today on the old basis.

Each incorporated community receives a proportionate share of the money based on census figures.

Cumberland will receive $24,224.52; Frostburg, $4,699.01; Westernport, $2,189.29; Lonaconing, $1,490.34; Luke, $606.19; Midland, $373.64 and Barton, $479.15.

The county will retain $19,101.28 or its share. Under the 1950 census figures the county in the future will receive a larger amount as the population outside the incorporated towns increased and most of the communities lost population.

The gingham dog and the calico cat lead a rugged life collecting nearly as much dirt as the toddler who drags them around!

An occasional tubbing cleans these stuffed fabric toys wonderfully. So gather up the whole animal troup and just "tumble" them for five minutes in a rich suds in your washer. Pin up by one ear to dry in the sun.

Whether you loll under real or man-made sun, here's news of how to absorb more vitamin A!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

YOU MAY NOT think today's column is for you, if you can't be numbered among the lucky ones sun-bathing on some sunny shore. But it is if you own, or can beg or borrow a sun lamp.

Research has recently revealed a new way to get more beauty for your skin from sun bathing. In addition to getting a tan, sun worshippers can actually improve the quality of their skin at the same time, if they follow the right procedure.

No After Shower!

As you know, vitamin A, the skin vitamin, is derived from the sun's rays. But did you know that when you shower immediately after a sun bath (whether you take it under a lamp or under the sun itself) you are washing off a good thing?

It has now been proved that at least two or three hours are required for vitamin A to be absorbed by the skin. So from now on, don't wash it right off!

It's a better plan to take a hot shower before you sun bathe. Work up a good lather of mild soap and follow with a thorough hot rinse to cleanse the skin, relax the pores, and facilitate the absorption of the precious skin vitamin.

While your body is exposed to the sun's rays, keep it liberally oiled. Instead of showering immediately after exposure, take a five minute "air" bath in the privacy of your room. You will notice that within a few minutes all stickiness is gone and that within a few weeks the texture of your all-over skin has improved.

Sun-Lamp Bathers

The same procedure is prescribed for sun lamp bathers with this exception: Get in a tub before you expose your body to the lamp's rays. As you draw the water, add a cup full of table salt and the juice of one lemon. Your skin will think you have gone to the beach.

For all sun bathers: If at first you cannot tolerate the thought of not having a shower after a sunbath, take one but make it quick, cool, without soap, and use no towel. Just let the air dry your skin. You'll save more of the vitamin A that way!

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A vivid chapter in the memoirs of that latterday Beau Brummel, Lucius Beebe, occurred when his good friend Collier Young phoned him one evening and said, "You're dressed in white tie and tails," I presume." "Naturally," said the impeccable Lucius. "Well, get 'em off, and find a Confederate uniform. I'm getting married in an hour and a half and we're going to do it in costume."

Beebe flew like a homing pigeon to a costume company, and in ten minutes flat was a reasonable facsimile of General Stonewall Jackson. The wedding ceremony was a great success, but for the fact that Mayor Jimmy Walker refused to enter into the spirit of the occasion and wore a sport suit. Another minor disturbance involved the bride's backing up too close to the family hearth, and catching fire. When the blaze was extinguished, all that remained of her lovely hoop skirt was the wire frame.

It's incidents like that which led Lucius Beebe to foreswear the giddy life of New York, and take up residence in Virginia City, where the window in his living room provides a seven-mile vista down the canyon towards Reno.

New Hampshire Congressman Norris Cotton saying the letters from home are getting savage . . . One begins: "I am a vet. You are a Chump." . . . And the Congressman says he's tempted sometimes to remind these critics of the old bar room sign not to shoot the piano player, he's doing the bes' he can.

But then he realizes the voters are entitled to a better answer than that, and, besides, the piano player is in the White House.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A vivid chapter in the memoirs of that latterday Beau Brummel, Lucius Beebe, occurred when his good friend Collier Young phoned him one evening and said, "You're dressed in white tie and tails," I presume." "Naturally," said the impeccable Lucius. "Well, get 'em off, and find a Confederate uniform. I'm getting married in an hour and a half and we're going to do it in costume."

Beebe flew like a homing pigeon to a costume company, and in ten minutes flat was a reasonable facsimile of General Stonewall Jackson. The wedding ceremony was a great success, but for the fact that Mayor Jimmy Walker refused to enter into the spirit of the occasion and wore a sport suit. Another minor disturbance involved the bride's backing up too close to the family hearth, and catching fire. When the blaze was extinguished, all that remained of her lovely hoop skirt was the wire frame.

It's incidents like that which led Lucius Beebe to foreswear the giddy life of New York, and take up residence in Virginia City, where the window in his living room provides a seven-mile vista down the canyon towards Reno.

Bring Your Problems To Church This Sunday...Millions Leave Them There!

PRAYER and REFLECTION

If you have ever had the idea that prayer was like Aladdin's magic lamp, then the chances are you have stopped praying. When we confuse faith with fortune we are soon disillusioned.

Real prayer always leads to reflection. When we lay our honest needs before God humbly, we cannot help but see our lives in a different light. Often we will comprehend truths which had eluded us, will become aware of a strength we didn't know we had. Gradually a way opens, a plan forms, a new confidence is born.

That isn't the whole story of prayer. But, it's the way God answers many a prayer.

If you really have stopped praying, and yet you believe such a spiritual resource is worth cultivating, try prayer again! And try the Church again! For the Church helps men both to pray and to reflect.

Bring Your Problems To Church This Sunday...Millions Leave Them There!

PRAYER and REFLECTION

If you have ever had the idea that prayer was like Aladdin's magic lamp, then the chances are you have stopped praying. When we confuse faith with fortune we are soon disillusioned.

Real prayer always leads to reflection. When we lay our honest needs before God humbly, we cannot help but see our lives in a different light. Often we will comprehend truths which had eluded us, will become aware of a strength we didn't know we had. Gradually a way opens, a plan forms, a new confidence is born.

That isn't the whole story of prayer. But, it's the way God answers many a prayer.

If you really have stopped praying, and yet you believe such a spiritual resource is worth cultivating, try prayer again! And try the Church again! For the Church helps men both to pray and to reflect.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Campers Even Season Series With LaSalle

Earn Winning Margin At Foul Line, Avenge 35 To 34 Setback

Allegany High School's floormen squared its 1950-51 basketball series with LaSalle High School last night by nosing out the Explorers by the score of 43 to 41 before a capacity crowd at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

In begging win No. 6 against eight losses, Coach Walter L. Bowers' Campers evened accounts for a 35-34 setback suffered at the hands of the Explorers in the series opener at Campobello.

Allegany led at the quarter, 10-9, trailed at the half, 21-17, and regained the lead at the close of the third stanza, 33 to 30.

Each team tossed in 17 field goals but the winning margin came at the foul line where Allegany meshed 9 of 21 throws to LaSalle's 7 out of 15.

Seventeen personal fouls were called on LaSalle and 13 on the Campers.

Marty Mullaney of LaSalle and Frank Phares of Allegany were ejected on personal fouls in the final period.

Turnesa, Bulla And Kroll Tied In Tucson Golf

Three Post 132s At Halfway Mark

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 2 (AP)—Three confident golfers, Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N. Y., John Bulla of Verona, Pa., and Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., led the $10,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament at the end of the second round with a 36-hole totals of 132.

Poised a stroke behind are tourney-wise Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Max Evans, a newcomer who has never won a major tournament.

Grouped at 136 are Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., Skee Reigel of Tulsa, Okla., and Jack Shields, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Turnesa, leader at the end of the first round, got off to a shaky start today, going over par on the second. But he made the most sensational shot of the tourney on the 323-yard fifth hole when he dropped a 40-yard approach shot for an eagle two.

Bulla feared he might mass this tourney when his sacroiliac locked yesterday. After medical treatment he went out and played in two under par. Today he knocked six off par of the 6,402-yard El Rio Country Club course for a sparkling 64.

Kroll has never won a big tournament in his life. Today he didn't go over par on any hole and collected four birdies for his second round of 66.

All three leaders feel that they are on their game and look forward to the final two rounds without fear.

Mangrum became the most feared man in the field when he went five under par for a 65, regardless of a pulled muscle in his back. The veteran was supposed to be off his game because of the back injury.

"It didn't bother me a whit," he said. Mangrum was seven under par for the 35 holes.

The field was cut to the players reaching the half way mark with totals of 147 or less.

Sports Sputterings

By WALTER L. JOHNS

"IF I HAD my way, just for an experiment, I would suggest we eliminate the backboards in basketball and let the boys shoot only for the baskets, with a net all around."

Nat Holman, "Mr. Basketball" himself, was the speaker and it is Nat's way of curing one of the ills of the cage sport—that of the big guy.

"The greatest thrill I ever got in basketball," said the famed coach of the City College of New York team, "was playing in the net in the old days. The net was placed around the court and there was no out-of-bounds. We had backboards but they weren't played the way they are today.

"If I had a little league, for example, I would call the other coaches in and ask them to try it without backboards for a year and see how it worked.

"Even today," Nat continued, "I have several baskets without backboards in our gym where our boys work out."

The C. C. N. Y. mentor, whose team scored the "grand slam" in basketball last winter when it won both the Invitational and the N. C. C. A. tourneys, says he has one pet peeve in the game as played today.

"The big guy," he said, "is getting too much of a play. His operation under the basket has given him an unearned advantage. It's developed into a one-man ball game. So anything we can do to remedy this will help."

* * *

NOW in his 32nd year as coach of the C. C. N. Y. team and one of the all-time greats of basketball as a star with the Original Celtics a quarter of a century ago, Nat said that he was definitely against raising the basket higher because it would penalize the little fellow, cut down scoring which makes the game colorful and probably cause a loss of interest by the spectators.

Nat says that rules should be standardized in other countries, too, and explained that if basketball is going to be included in the 1952 Olympics the rules should be the same everywhere.

* * *

WE ASKED HIM to comment on officiating, particularly the beef raised by fellow coach Clair Bee of Long Island who complained bitterly about the officiating at a recent game in the west which brought the Blackbirds a defeat.

"You can't establish policy when to call a foul or not," explained Nat. "But you can't get away from the fact that when a foul is committed it should be called at once. I would say, however, that an official can use his own judgment a little more in mid-court where too many fouls are called."

* * *

WE ASKED Nat about the center jump and whether he advocated its return.

"Definitely not," he said. "That was the greatest thing that ever happened to basketball. Elimination of the center jump speeded up the game, made it more colorful for the spectator and helped us all.

"I have had teams in the past that had good personnel. And yet some of our opponents had a big guy who controlled that center jump and as a result we would lose many of those games. Now that the big guy has crept into basketball we certainly can't have it.

"That is," he added, "unless they tried my plan of eliminating the backboards and used a net all around."

* * *

NAT was in Florida at the time the Manhattan college basketball scandal broke, so he didn't have too much to say about that. His comments:

"It was shocking. It gave me stomach cramps. Now that we know that it happened we must do something about it. I hope the penalty is great. Unless it is great it will happen again.

"Ever since that Brooklyn college scandal a few years ago, I have talked to my boys about such things. I have warned them of the consequences.

"But this is a problem for the powers that be."

Nat is against moving the games out of the big arenas, unless, he said, "we keep football and other sports on the local campus."

Nat said that television definitely has hurt the gate. And, commenting on the pro basketball field, he said that one of the reasons they are having such a tough time making ends meet is because there is too much basketball in certain cities, with colleges playing every other night and doubleheaders slated weekly at big arenas.

Truman Sends Best Wishes To Senior League

Notables Attend 75th Birthday Exercises

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman sent his enthusiastic best wishes to baseball for "many more years of uninterrupted activity" today as the National League celebrated its 75th birthday.

The president's letter, read by National League President Ford Frick, featured a colorful ceremony at the Broadway Central Hotel where the league was organized, Feb. 2, 1876.

Prominent on the platform among the 14 Hall of Fame members and stars of yesteryear, was Commissioner A. B. Chandler, center of a swirling political battle.

While Mayor Vincent Impellitteri unveiled a plaque to mark the site of the league founding, backstage maneuvering on the Chandler situation continued.

"What do you hear about Chandler?" was the question most frequently asked.

Chandler Makes Rounds

Chandler made the rounds, shaking hands with honored guests and joining impromptu songfests at the buffet luncheon in the hotel ballroom.

Lou Perini of the Boston Braves and Ellis Ryan of Cleveland, two of the four-man committee named to sift candidates for a new commissioner, were present. Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, recovering from an illness, did not make the trip. The New York Yankees' Del Webb was expected.

"We expect to sit down and have a talk tomorrow, Sunday or Monday," said Perini. "But as far as I know no joint meeting will be held.

"I am sure nothing will be accomplished. I have lots of names that people sent in to me. But this is not time for names when we have a commissioner in office.

"Certainly nobody will be presented at this time. In my own opinion I do not think anybody will be presented until the commissioner finishes his term or resigns."

Fred Saigh of the St. Louis Cardinals, one of the opposition leaders, said he did not think any candidate could be elected at the present time.

Saigh Gives Views

"But I do think we should have a meeting within 30 or 40 days," he said. "We might be able to elect a man then."

Saigh refused to name candidates but said he thought only a man "outside baseball" could be elected.

Truman's letter, dated Jan. 11, touched on the troubled international situation when he wrote, "baseball has made great contributions in peace and in war it has asked for no special favors, nor will it in our present preparedness program."

The President's letter ended with the message: "may the sun never set on American baseball."

There was no tendency by baseball men to interpret the President's congratulatory message as any "green light" for baseball.

As for Chandler, rumors had the commissioner now enjoying a 10-6 margin with 12 needed for re-election. At St. Petersburg nine clubs voted for him and seven against.

Chandler said he would "have something to say" on the subject Sunday night in his speech at the baseball writers dinner.

Green Gains Nod In Gruelling Bout

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP) — Harold Green, 27-year-old Brooklyn middleweight continued his latest comeback with a unanimous 10-round decision over Ernie Durando of Bayonne, N. J., tonight in a slugging match at St. Nicholas Arena. Green weighed 158½, Durando 157.

Referee George Walsh gave Green a 6-3-1 margin, Judge Nick Gamboli 5-4-1 and Judge Grant 6-4. All voted for Green although Walsh's card first was erroneously added up in favor of Durando. The AP had it for Green 6-3-1.

There were no knockdowns in the gruelling battle between the swarming, left-hooking Green and Durando's snaky right uppercut.

A crowd of 2,934 paid $7,210.00 to see the bout.

Jimmy Brown, Trainer Of Topnotch Boxers, Now Tutors Skeets Starkey

LaStarza And Jones Work With Local Boy

(Special To The News)

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 2 (AP)—Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Cumberland light-heavyweight boxer, is among the fighters training at Stillman's gymnasium, and has been working out daily with Reuben Jones, Roland LaStarza and others.

"Skeets" came to New York when his manager, "Bunny" Buntag of Pittsburgh, decided the shortage of training facilities in the Smoky City made training a problem. Since coming to New York, three weeks ago, "Skeets" has been under the watchful eye of trainer, Jimmy Brown, who does similar chores for Roland LaStarza, Steve Belloise and other topnotch boxers.

Jimmy took "Skeets" in hand, improved on his fast left jab, had him hold his hands higher and taught him to counter and punch faster. "Skeets" seems like a new, better conditioned fighter in the short time he has been training in New York.

Besides getting in good condition, "Skeets" has made a favorable impression with the New York boxing critics. He engaged in two bouts. His first last Saturday at Brooklyn's Ridgewood Grove ended in the third rounds with "Skeets" Starkey a kayo winner. His opponent, Phil Saxton of Jersey City, hit the deck and was out when "Skeets" landed a hard right cross. Tuesday night in the White Plains Center, "Skeets" scored a one round kayo over John Thomas Brown.

With two knockout wins under his belt, "Skeets" is looking forward to boxing bigger and better names, and knows he will be in good physical condition for all his future matches

Allegany High School's floormen squared its 1950-51 basketball series with LaSalle High School last night by nosing out the Explorers by the score of 43 to 41 before a capacity crowd at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

In begging win No. 6 against eight losses, Coach Walter L. Bowers' Campers evened accounts for a 35-34 setback suffered at the hands of the Explorers in the series opener at Campobello.

Each team tossed in 17 field goals but the winning margin came at the foul line where Allegany meshed 9 of 21 throws to LaSalle's 7 out of 15.

Seventeen personal fouls were called on LaSalle and 13 on the Campers.

Marty Mullaney of LaSalle and Frank Phares of Allegany were ejected on personal fouls in the final period.

Three Post 132s At Halfway Mark

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 2 (AP)—Three confident golfers, Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N. Y., John Bulla of Verona, Pa., and Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., led the $10,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament at the end of the second round with a 36-hole totals of 132.

Poised a stroke behind are tourney-wise Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Max Evans, a newcomer who has never won a major tournament.

Grouped at 136 are Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., Skee Reigel of Tulsa, Okla., and Jack Shields, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Turnesa, leader at the end of the first round, got off to a shaky start today, going over par on the second. But he made the most sensational shot of the tourney on the 323-yard fifth hole when he dropped a 40-yard approach shot for an eagle two.

Bulla feared he might mass this tourney when his sacroiliac locked yesterday. After medical treatment he went out and played in two under par. Today he knocked six off par of the 6,402-yard El Rio Country Club course for a sparkling 64.

Kroll has never won a big tournament in his life. Today he didn't go over par on any hole and collected four birdies for his second round of 66.

All three leaders feel that they are on their game and look forward to the final two rounds without fear.

Mangrum became the most feared man in the field when he went five under par for a 65, regardless of a pulled muscle in his back. The veteran was supposed to be off his game because of the back injury.

"It didn't bother me a whit," he said. Mangrum was seven under par for the 35 holes.

The field was cut to the players reaching the half way mark with totals of 147 or less.

Olmo Dissatisfied

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 2 (AP)—Luis Olmo, Puerto Rican outfielder of the Boston Braves, said today he had returned unsigned a contract calling for a pay cut. He declined to discuss the figures.

The 31-year-old flychaser said the Braves explained he was offered less money because he had a poor season last year.

CLASS BALANCE

HAMILTON, N. Y. — Colgate's starting basketball squad has two seniors, one junior and two sophomores.

VANDERBILT PAIR FAVORED — Bed O'Roses (left) and Next Move (right), the brillant filly team entered in today's Santa Anita Maturity—the world's richest horse race—will be the betting favorite when the field of the 11 horses goes to the post. If either wins, she will earn $134,700 for her owner, Alfred G. Vanderbilt.

"IF I HAD my way, just for an experiment, I would suggest we eliminate the backboards in basketball and let the boys shoot only for the baskets, with a net all around."

Nat Holman, "Mr. Basketball" himself, was the speaker and it is Nat's way of curing one of the ills of the cage sport—that of the big guy.

"The greatest thrill I ever got in basketball," said the famed coach of the City College of New York team, "was playing in the net in the old days. The net was placed around the court and there was no out-of-bounds. We had backboards but they weren't played the way they are today.

"If I had a little league, for example, I would call the other coaches in and ask them to try it without backboards for a year and see how it worked.

"Even today," Nat continued, "I have several baskets without backboards in our gym where our boys work out."

The C. C. N. Y. mentor, whose team scored the "grand slam" in basketball last winter when it won both the Invitational and the N. C. C. A. tourneys, says he has one pet peeve in the game as played today.

"The big guy," he said, "is getting too much of a play. His operation under the basket has given him an unearned advantage. It's developed into a one-man ball game. So anything we can do to remedy this will help."

• • •

NOW in his 32nd year as coach of the C. C. N. Y. team and one of the all-time greats of basketball as a star with the Original Celtics a quarter of a century ago, Nat said that he was definitely against raising the basket higher because it would penalize the little fellow, cut down scoring which makes the game colorful and probably cause a loss of interest by the spectators.

Nat says that rules should be standardized in other countries, too, and explained that if basketball is going to be included in the 1952 Olympics the rules should be the same everywhere.

• • •

WE ASKED HIM to comment on officiating, particularly the beef raised by fellow coach Clair Bee of Long Island who complained bitterly about the officiating at a recent game in the west which brought the Blackbirds a defeat.

"You can't establish policy when to call a foul or not," explained Nat. "But you can't get away from the fact that when a foul is committed it should be called at once. I would say, however, that an official can use his own judgment a little more in mid-court where too many fouls are called."

• • •

WE ASKED Nat about the center jump and whether he advocated its return.

"Definitely not," he said. "That was the greatest thing that ever happened to basketball. Elimination of the center jump speeded up the game, made it more colorful for the spectator and helped us all.

"I have had teams in the past that had good personnel. And yet some of our opponents had a big guy who controlled that center jump and as a result we would lose many of those games. Now that the big guy has crept into basketball we certainly can't have it.

"That is," he added, "unless they tried my plan of eliminating the backboards and used a net all around."

• • •

NAT was in Florida at the time the Manhattan college basketball scandal broke, so he didn't have too much to say about that. His comments:

"It was shocking. It gave me stomach cramps. Now that we know that it happened we must do something about it. I hope the penalty is great. Unless it is great it will happen again.

"Ever since that Brooklyn college scandal a few years ago, I have talked to my boys about such things. I have warned them of the consequences.

"But this is a problem for the powers that be."

Nat is against moving the games out of the big arenas, unless, he said, "we keep football and other sports on the local campus."

Nat said that television definitely has hurt the gate. And, commenting on the pro basketball field, he said that one of the reasons they are having such a tough time making ends meet is because there is too much basketball in certain cities, with colleges playing every other night and doubleheaders slated weekly at big arenas.

Truman Sends Best Wishes To Senior League

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman sent his enthusiastic best wishes to baseball for "many more years of uninterrupted activity" today as the National League celebrated its 75th birthday.

The president's letter, read by National League President Ford Frick, featured a colorful ceremony at the Broadway Central Hotel where the league was organized, Feb. 2, 1876.

Prominent on the platform among the 14 Hall of Fame members and stars of yesteryear, was Commissioner A. B. Chandler, center of a swirling political battle.

While Mayor Vincent Impellitteri unveiled a plaque to mark the site of the league founding, backstage maneuvering on the Chandler situation continued.

"What do you hear about Chandler?" was the question most frequently asked.

Chandler Makes Rounds

Chandler made the rounds, shaking hands with honored guests and joining impromptu songfests at the buffet luncheon in the hotel ballroom.

Lou Perini of the Boston Braves and Ellis Ryan of Cleveland, two of the four-man committee named to sift candidates for a new commissioner, were present. Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, recovering from an illness, did not make the trip. The New York Yankees' Del Webb was expected.

"We expect to sit down and have a talk tomorrow, Sunday or Monday," said Perini. "But as far as I know no joint meeting will be held.

"I am sure nothing will be accomplished. I have lots of names that people sent in to me. But this is not time for names when we have a commissioner in office.

"Certainly nobody will be presented at this time. In my own opinion I do not think anybody will be presented until the commissioner finishes his term or resigns."

Fred Saigh of the St. Louis Cardinals, one of the opposition leaders, said he did not think any candidate could be elected at the present time.

Saigh Gives Views

"But I do think we should have a meeting within 30 or 40 days," he said. "We might be able to elect a man then."

Saigh refused to name candidates but said he thought only a man "outside baseball" could be elected.

Truman's letter, dated Jan. 11, touched on the troubled international situation when he wrote, "baseball has made great contributions in peace and in war it has asked for no special favors, nor will it in our present preparedness program."

The President's letter ended with the message: "may the sun never set on American baseball."

There was no tendency by baseball men to interpret the President's congratulatory message as any "green light" for baseball.

As for Chandler, rumors had the commissioner now enjoying a 10-6 margin with 12 needed for re-election. At St. Petersburg nine clubs voted for him and seven against.

Chandler said he would "have something to say" on the subject Sunday night in his speech at the baseball writers dinner.

Green Gains Nod In Gruelling Bout

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP) — Harold Green, 27-year-old Brooklyn middleweight continued his latest comeback with a unanimous 10-round decision over Ernie Durando of Bayonne, N. J., tonight in a slugging match at St. Nicholas Arena. Green weighed 158½, Durando 157.

Referee George Walsh gave Green a 6-3-1 margin, Judge Nick Gamboli 5-4-1 and Judge Grant 6-4. All voted for Green although Walsh's card first was erroneously added up in favor of Durando. The AP had it for Green 6-3-1.

There were no knockdowns in the gruelling battle between the swarming, left-hooking Green and Durando's snaky right uppercut.

A crowd of 2,934 paid $7,210.00 to see the bout.

Jimmy Brown, Trainer Of Topnotch Boxers, Now Tutors Skeets Starkey

LaStarza And Jones Work With Local Boy

(Special To The News)

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 2 (AP)—Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Cumberland light-heavyweight boxer, is among the fighters training at Stillman's gymnasium, and has been working out daily with Reuben Jones, Roland LaStarza and others.

"Skeets" came to New York when his manager, "Bunny" Buntag of Pittsburgh, decided the shortage of training facilities in the Smoky City made training a problem. Since coming to New York, three weeks ago, "Skeets" has been under the watchful eye of trainer, Jimmy Brown, who does similar chores for Roland LaStarza, Steve Belloise and other topnotch boxers.

Jimmy took "Skeets" in hand, improved on his fast left jab, had him hold his hands higher and taught him to counter and punch faster. "Skeets" seems like a new, better conditioned fighter in the short time he has been training in New York.

Besides getting in good condition, "Skeets" has made a favorable impression with the New York boxing critics. He engaged in two bouts. His first last Saturday at Brooklyn's Ridgewood Grove ended in the third rounds with "Skeets" Starkey a kayo winner. His opponent, Phil Saxton of Jersey City, hit the deck and was out when "Skeets" landed a hard right cross. Tuesday night in the White Plains Center, "Skeets" scored a one round kayo over John Thomas Brown.

With two knockout wins under his belt, "Skeets" is looking forward to boxing bigger and better names, and knows he will be in good physical condition for all his future matches

Allegany High School's floormen squared its 1950-51 basketball series with LaSalle High School last night by nosing out the Explorers by the score of 43 to 41 before a capacity crowd at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

In begging win No. 6 against eight losses, Coach Walter L. Bowers' Campers evened accounts for a 35-34 setback suffered at the hands of the Explorers in the series opener at Campobello.

Allegany led at the quarter, 10-9, trailed at the half, 21-17, and regained the lead at the close of the third stanza, 33 to 30.

Each team tossed in 17 field goals but the winning margin came at the foul line where Allegany meshed 9 of 21 throws to LaSalle's 7 out of 15.

Seventeen personal fouls were called on LaSalle and 13 on the Campers.

Marty Mullaney of LaSalle and Frank Phares of Allegany were ejected on personal fouls in the final period.

Turnesa, Bulla And Kroll Tied In Tucson Golf

Three Post 132s At Halfway Mark

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 2 (AP)—Three confident golfers, Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N. Y., John Bulla of Verona, Pa., and Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., led the $10,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament at the end of the second round with a 36-hole totals of 132.

Poised a stroke behind are tourney-wise Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Max Evans, a newcomer who has never won a major tournament.

Grouped at 136 are Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., Skee Reigel of Tulsa, Okla., and Jack Shields, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Turnesa, leader at the end of the first round, got off to a shaky start today, going over par on the second. But he made the most sensational shot of the tourney on the 323-yard fifth hole when he dropped a 40-yard approach shot for an eagle two.

Bulla feared he might mass this tourney when his sacroiliac locked yesterday. After medical treatment he went out and played in two under par. Today he knocked six off par of the 6,402-yard El Rio Country Club course for a sparkling 64.

Kroll has never won a big tournament in his life. Today he didn't go over par on any hole and collected four birdies for his second round of 66.

All three leaders feel that they are on their game and look forward to the final two rounds without fear.

Mangrum became the most feared man in the field when he went five under par for a 65, regardless of a pulled muscle in his back. The veteran was supposed to be off his game because of the back injury.

"It didn't bother me a whit," he said. Mangrum was seven under par for the 35 holes.

The field was cut to the players reaching the half way mark with totals of 147 or less.

SPORTS SPUTTERINGS

By WALTER L. JOHNS

"IF I HAD my way, just for an experiment, I would suggest we eliminate the backboards in basketball and let the boys shoot only for the baskets, with a net all around."

Nat Holman, "Mr. Basketball" himself, was the speaker and it is Nat's way of curing one of the ills of the cage sport—that of the big guy.

"The greatest thrill I ever got in basketball," said the famed coach of the City College of New York team, "was playing in the net in the old days. The net was placed around the court and there was no out-of-bounds. We had backboards but they weren't played the way they are today.

"If I had a little league, for example, I would call the other coaches in and ask them to try it without backboards for a year and see how it worked.

"Even today," Nat continued, "I have several baskets without backboards in our gym where our boys work out."

The C. C. N. Y. mentor, whose team scored the "grand slam" in basketball last winter when it won both the Invitational and the N. C. C. A. tourneys, says he has one pet peeve in the game as played today.

"The big guy," he said, "is getting too much of a play. His operation under the basket has given him an unearned advantage. It's developed into a one-man ball game. So anything we can do to remedy this will help."

• • •

NOW in his 32nd year as coach of the C. C. N. Y. team and one of the all-time greats of basketball as a star with the Original Celtics a quarter of a century ago, Nat said that he was definitely against raising the basket higher because it would penalize the little fellow, cut down scoring which makes the game colorful and probably cause a loss of interest by the spectators.

Nat says that rules should be standardized in other countries, too, and explained that if basketball is going to be included in the 1952 Olympics the rules should be the same everywhere.

• • •

WE ASKED HIM to comment on officiating, particularly the beef raised by fellow coach Clair Bee of Long Island who complained bitterly about the officiating at a recent game in the west which brought the Blackbirds a defeat.

"You can't establish policy when to call a foul or not," explained Nat. "But you can't get away from the fact that when a foul is committed it should be called at once. I would say, however, that an official can use his own judgment a little more in mid-court where too many fouls are called."

• • •

WE ASKED Nat about the center jump and whether he advocated its return.

"Definitely not," he said. "That was the greatest thing that ever happened to basketball. Elimination of the center jump speeded up the game, made it more colorful for the spectator and helped us all.

"I have had teams in the past that had good personnel. And yet some of our opponents had a big guy who controlled that center jump and as a result we would lose many of those games. Now that the big guy has crept into basketball we certainly can't have it.

"That is," he added, "unless they tried my plan of eliminating the backboards and used a net all around."

• • •

NAT was in Florida at the time the Manhattan college basketball scandal broke, so he didn't have too much to say about that. His comments:

"It was shocking. It gave me stomach cramps. Now that we know that it happened we must do something about it. I hope the penalty is great. Unless it is great it will happen again.

"Ever since that Brooklyn college scandal a few years ago, I have talked to my boys about such things. I have warned them of the consequences.

"But this is a problem for the powers that be."

Nat is against moving the games out of the big arenas, unless, he said, "we keep football and other sports on the local campus."

Nat said that television definitely has hurt the gate. And, commenting on the pro basketball field, he said that one of the reasons they are having such a tough time making ends meet is because there is too much basketball in certain cities, with colleges playing every other night and doubleheaders slated weekly at big arenas.

Truman Sends Best Wishes To Senior League

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman sent his enthusiastic best wishes to baseball for "many more years of uninterrupted activity" today as the National League celebrated its 75th birthday.

The president's letter, read by National League President Ford Frick, featured a colorful ceremony at the Broadway Central Hotel where the league was organized, Feb. 2, 1876.

Prominent on the platform among the 14 Hall of Fame members and stars of yesteryear, was Commissioner A. B. Chandler, center of a swirling political battle.

While Mayor Vincent Impellitteri unveiled a plaque to mark the site of the league founding, backstage maneuvering on the Chandler situation continued.

"What do you hear about Chandler?" was the question most frequently asked.

Chandler Makes Rounds

Chandler made the rounds, shaking hands with honored guests and joining impromptu songfests at the buffet luncheon in the hotel ballroom.

Lou Perini of the Boston Braves and Ellis Ryan of Cleveland, two of the four-man committee named to sift candidates for a new commissioner, were present. Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, recovering from an illness, did not make the trip. The New York Yankees' Del Webb was expected.

"We expect to sit down and have a talk tomorrow, Sunday or Monday," said Perini. "But as far as I know no joint meeting will be held.

"I am sure nothing will be accomplished. I have lots of names that people sent in to me. But this is not time for names when we have a commissioner in office.

"Certainly nobody will be presented at this time. In my own opinion I do not think anybody will be presented until the commissioner finishes his term or resigns."

Fred Saigh of the St. Louis Cardinals, one of the opposition leaders, said he did not think any candidate could be elected at the present time.

Saigh Gives Views

"But I do think we should have a meeting within 30 or 40 days," he said. "We might be able to elect a man then."

Saigh refused to name candidates but said he thought only a man "outside baseball" could be elected.

Truman's letter, dated Jan. 11, touched on the troubled international situation when he wrote, "baseball has made great contributions in peace and in war it has asked for no special favors, nor will it in our present preparedness program."

The President's letter ended with the message: "may the sun never set on American baseball."

There was no tendency by baseball men to interpret the President's congratulatory message as any "green light" for baseball.

As for Chandler, rumors had the commissioner now enjoying a 10-6 margin with 12 needed for re-election. At St. Petersburg nine clubs voted for him and seven against.

Chandler said he would "have something to say" on the subject Sunday night in his speech at the baseball writers dinner.

Green Gains Nod In Gruelling Bout

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP) — Harold Green, 27-year-old Brooklyn middleweight continued his latest comeback with a unanimous 10-round decision over Ernie Durando of Bayonne, N. J., tonight in a slugging match at St. Nicholas Arena. Green weighed 158½, Durando 157.

Referee George Walsh gave Green a 6-3-1 margin, Judge Nick Gamboli 5-4-1 and Judge Grant 6-4. All voted for Green although Walsh's card first was erroneously added up in favor of Durando. The AP had it for Green 6-3-1.

There were no knockdowns in the gruelling battle between the swarming, left-hooking Green and Durando's snaky right uppercut.

A crowd of 2,934 paid $7,210.00 to see the bout.

Jimmy Brown, Trainer Of Topnotch Boxers, Now Tutors Skeets Starkey

LaStarza And Jones Work With Local Boy

(Special To The News)

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 2 (AP)—Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Cumberland light-heavyweight boxer, is among the fighters training at Stillman's gymnasium, and has been working out daily with Reuben Jones, Roland LaStarza and others.

"Skeets" came to New York when his manager, "Bunny" Buntag of Pittsburgh, decided the shortage of training facilities in the Smoky City made training a problem. Since coming to New York, three weeks ago, "Skeets" has been under the watchful eye of trainer, Jimmy Brown, who does similar chores for Roland LaStarza, Steve Belloise and other topnotch boxers.

Jimmy took "Skeets" in hand, improved on his fast left jab, had him hold his hands higher and taught him to counter and punch faster. "Skeets" seems like a new, better conditioned fighter in the short time he has been training in New York.

Besides getting in good condition, "Skeets" has made a favorable impression with the New York boxing critics. He engaged in two bouts. His first last Saturday at Brooklyn's Ridgewood Grove ended in the third rounds with "Skeets" Starkey a kayo winner. His opponent, Phil Saxton of Jersey City, hit the deck and was out when "Skeets" landed a hard right cross. Tuesday night in the White Plains Center, "Skeets" scored a one round kayo over John Thomas Brown.

With two knockout wins under his belt, "Skeets" is looking forward to boxing bigger and better names, and knows he will be in good physical condition for all his future matches

Eleven Vie In Richest Horse Race

Santa Anita Maturity Is Valued At $205,700

By BOB MYERS

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 2 (AP) — Alfred G. Vanderbilt's brilliant filly team of Next Move and Bed O'Roses topped a field of 11 four-year-olds entered today for the richest horse race of all time — the Santa Anita Maturity tomorrow with its gross purse of $205,700.

Named in addition to the Vanderbilt pair were:

Post Time Is 7:35

Clear skies and a fast track were promised and some 50,000 or more fans are expected to watch this supper-extravaganza of the turf. Post time is tentatively set for 7:35 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The betting favorite will be the Vanderbilt entry. Next Move, with Eric Guerin in the saddle, will carry high weight at 121 pounds, and Bed O'Roses, ridden by Earl Combest, gets in at 110.

If either wins, the net prize for multi-millionaire Vanderbilt will be a record $134,700. The same goes for the Crofton filly, Special Touch, or Last Round. These four were supplemental nominees and their $10,000 supplemental fees are deducted from the big pot to make up the net.

A win by Beau Max, Lotowhite or any of the others will be worth $144,325 net. They are paid-up members of the "Maturity Club", whose fees, dating from foaling time in 1947 up to today's $500 entry fees and tomorrow's $1500 starting fees, go make up this gigantic gross purse.

Money Flows Like Wine

The previous money records for a single race were the gross purse of $146,320 distributed by the Los Angeles Turf Club for the 1946 Santa Anita Handicap, and the net prize of $108,400 awarded Azucar for winning the inaugural Santa Anita 'Cap in 1935.

Tomorrow's gross purse, in fact, will be upped $14,670 — making a total of $220,370 — if a California bred horse wins. This goes to the breeder of the horse.

Money, it seems, will flow like wine. The second, third and fourth finishers get $20,000, $15,000 and $10,000. The nominators of the first four will receive $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000.

Five Men Involved In Basketball Fix Indicted By Jury

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (INS) — All five men arrested in the Manhattan College basketball fixing scandal, including the two co-captains of the 1949-50 Manhattan team, were indicted by the Bronx County Grand Jury today for bribery and conspiracy.

Assistant district attorney Edward Breslin announced that the January grand jury will be held over indefinitely, and that "further indictments may be forthcoming."

The indictments were delivered against ex-players Jack Byrnes and Henry Poppe and against a trio described as gamblers—Cornelius Kelleher and Benjamin and Irving Schwartzberg. All are accused of conspiracy to "throw" games last year.

Before handing down the indictments, the grand jury spent an hour questioning ex-player Poppe, who had signed a waiver of immunity.

STRONG CLUBS TOUGH

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (AP)—Don Newcombe may have won 19 games for the Brooklyn Dodgers last season but against first division clubs he had a tough time. He had a 5-9 record against first division teams and a 14-2 record against those in the second division.

The Pincher Cops Hialeah Feature Race

15,356 See Favorite Score On Wet Track

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP) — A crowd of 15,356 braved rain and chilly weather to see The Pincher, odds-on at $3.10, romp to victory in the Ground Hog Purse at Hialeah Park today.

Outclassing five others, including two candidates for the Widener Handicap, the son of Heliopolis scored by six lengths in the fine time of 1:11 4-5 on a wet track.

J. A. Kinard's Johns Joy, which set the pace for about three furlongs, was second, finishing three lengths before Keystone Stable's Cervantes, which in turn was a head before D. Shaer's High Bracket. Luchador and Bonaventure completed the field. Lone Withdrawal was the Belgium-bred Layeux.

The Pincher was the first favorite of the drab day to make the grade. Aboard him was Ken Church, top booter here, who stretched his meeting total to 18 winners. Church had four winners Thursday.

Owned by Henry H. Hecht, of Baltimore, Md., The Pincher was making his second start over the track. He finished eighth in a section of the Inaugural Handicap, won by All At Once. He was winner of the Philadelphia Handicap, Rowe Memorial, W. P. Burch Memorial and three other races in 1950, when he gleaned $33,145.

The second largest daily double of the current meeting materialized when Brookridge and Pauline Gross combined to form a payoff of $404.70.

FONDY IS CHIEF THIEF

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Dee Fondy, first base candidate for the Chicago Cubs this spring, led the Texas League in stolen bases in 1950. The six-foot-three inch Fondy pilfered 39 bags. Big Dee is 26 years old and was formerly the property of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Eleven Vie In Richest Horse Race

Santa Anita Maturity Is Valued At $205,700

By BOB MYERS

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 2 (AP) — Alfred G. Vanderbilt's brilliant filly team of Next Move and Bed O'Roses topped a field of 11 four-year-olds entered today for the richest horse race of all time — the Santa Anita Maturity tomorrow with its gross purse of $205,700.

Named in addition to the Vanderbilt pair were:

Post Time Is 7:35

Clear skies and a fast track were promised and some 50,000 or more fans are expected to watch this super-extravaganza of the turf. Post time is tentatively set for 7:35 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The betting favorite will be the Vanderbilt entry. Next Move, with Eric Guerin in the saddle, will carry high weight at 121 pounds, and Bed O'Roses, ridden by Earl Combest, gets in at 110.

If either wins, the net prize for multi-millionaire Vanderbilt will be a record $134,700. The same goes for the Crofton filly, Special Touch, or Last Round. These four were supplemental nominees and their $10,000 supplemental fees are deducted from the big pot to make up the net.

A win by Beau Max, Lotowhite or any of the others will be worth $144,325 net. They are paid-up members of the "Maturity Club", whose fees, dating from foaling time in 1947 up to today's $500 entry fees and tomorrow's $1500 starting fees, go make up this gigantic gross purse.

Money Flows Like Wine

The previous money records for a single race were the gross purse of $146,320 distributed by the Los Angeles Turf Club for the 1946 Santa Anita Handicap, and the net prize of $108,400 awarded Azucar for winning the inaugural Santa Anita 'Cap in 1935.

Tomorrow's gross purse, in fact, will be upped $14,670 — making a total of $220,370 — if a California bred horse wins. This goes to the breeder of the horse.

Money, it seems, will flow like wine. The second, third and fourth finishers get $20,000, $15,000 and $10,000. The nominators of the first four will receive $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000.

Five Men Involved In Basketball Fix Indicted By Jury

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (INS) — All five men arrested in the Manhattan College basketball fixing scandal, including the two co-captains of the 1949-50 Manhattan team, were indicted by the Bronx County Grand Jury today for bribery and conspiracy.

Assistant district attorney Edward Breslin announced that the January grand jury will be held over indefinitely, and that "further indictments may be forthcoming."

The indictments were delivered against ex-players Jack Byrnes and Henry Poppe and against a trio described as gamblers—Cornelius Kelleher and Benjamin and Irving Schwartzberg. All are accused of conspiracy to "throw" games last year.

Before handing down the indictments, the grand jury spent an hour questioning ex-player Poppe, who had signed a waiver of immunity.

The Pincher Cops Hialeah Feature Race

15,356 See Favorite Score On Wet Track

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP) — A crowd of 15,356 braved rain and chilly weather to see The Pincher, odds-on at $3.10, romp to victory in the Ground Hog Purse at Hialeah Park today.

Outclassing five others, including two candidates for the Widener Handicap, the son of Heliopolis scored by six lengths in the fine time of 1:11 4-5 on a wet track.

J. A. Kinard's Johns Joy, which set the pace for about three furlongs, was second, finishing three lengths before Keystone Stable's Cervantes, which in turn was a head before D. Shaer's High Bracket. Luchador and Bonaventure completed the field. Lone Withdrawal was the Belgium-bred Layeux.

The Pincher was the first favorite of the drab day to make the grade. Aboard him was Ken Church, top booter here, who stretched his meeting total to 18 winners. Church had four winners Thursday.

Owned by Henry H. Hecht, of Baltimore, Md., The Pincher was making his second start over the track. He finished eighth in a section of the Inaugural Handicap, won by All At Once. He was winner of the Philadelphia Handicap, Rowe Memorial, W. P. Burch Memorial and three other races in 1950, when he gleaned $33,145.

The second largest daily double of the current meeting materialized when Brookridge and Pauline Gross combined to form a payoff of $404.70.

FONDY IS CHIEF THIEF

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Dee Fondy, first base candidate for the Chicago Cubs this spring, led the Texas League in stolen bases in 1950. The six-foot-three inch Fondy pilfered 39 bags. Big Dee is 26 years old and was formerly the property of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Eleven Vie In Richest Horse Race

Santa Anita Maturity Is Valued At $205,700

By BOB MYERS

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 2 (AP) — Alfred G. Vanderbilt's brilliant filly team of Next Move and Bed O'Roses topped a field of 11 four-year-olds entered today for the richest horse race of all time — the Santa Anita Maturity tomorrow with its gross purse of $205,700.

Named in addition to the Vanderbilt pair were:

Post Time Is 7:35

Clear skies and a fast track were promised and some 50,000 or more fans are expected to watch this supper-extravaganza of the turf. Post time is tentatively set for 7:35 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The betting favorite will be the Vanderbilt entry. Next Move, with Eric Guerin in the saddle, will carry high weight at 121 pounds, and Bed O'Roses, ridden by Earl Combest, gets in at 110.

If either wins, the net prize for multi-millionaire Vanderbilt will be a record $134,700. The same goes for the Crofton filly, Special Touch, or Last Round. These four were supplemental nominees and their $10,000 supplemental fees are deducted from the big pot to make up the net.

A win by Beau Max, Lotowhite or any of the others will be worth $144,325 net. They are paid-up members of the "Maturity Club", whose fees, dating from foaling time in 1947 up to today's $500 entry fees and tomorrow's $1500 starting fees, go make up this gigantic gross purse.

Money Flows Like Wine

The previous money records for a single race were the gross purse of $146,320 distributed by the Los Angeles Turf Club for the 1946 Santa Anita Handicap, and the net prize of $108,400 awarded Azucar for winning the inaugural Santa Anita Cap in 1935.

Tomorrow's gross purse, in fact, will be upped $14,670 — making a total of $220,370 — if a California bred horse wins. This goes to the breeder of the horse.

Money, it seems, will flow like wine. The second, third and fourth finishers get $20,000, $15,000 and $10,000. The nominators of the first four will receive $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 2 (AP)—Cliff Chambers has returned his unsigned contract to the Pittsburgh Pirates because he wasn't given a raise.

The southpaw pitcher who won 12 games last season—more than any other Pirate hurler—insisted he should get more than the reported $16,000 received last year.

Five Men Involved In Basketball Fix Indicted By Jury

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (INS) — All five men arrested in the Manhattan College basketball fixing scandal, including the two co-captains of the 1949-50 Manhattan team, were indicted by the Bronx County Grand Jury today for bribery and conspiracy.

Assistant district attorney Edward Breslin announced that the January grand jury will be held over indefinitely, and that "further indictments may be forthcoming."

The indictments were delivered against ex-players Jack Byrnes and Henry Poppe and against a trio described as gamblers—Cornelius Kelleher and Benjamin and Irving Schwartzberg. All are accused of conspiracy to "throw" games last year.

Before handing down the indictments, the grand jury spent an hour questioning ex-player Poppe, who had signed a waiver of immunity.

STRONG CLUBS TOUGH

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (AP)—Don Newcombe may have won 19 games for the Brooklyn Dodgers last season but against first division clubs he had a tough time. He had a 5-9 record against first division teams and a 14-2 record against those in the second division.

The Pincher Cops Hialeah Feature Race

15,356 See Favorite Score On Wet Track

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP) — A crowd of 15,356 braved rain and chilly weather to see The Pincher, odds-on at $3.10, romp to victory in the Ground Hog Purse at Hialeah Park today.

Outclassing five others, including two candidates for the Widener Handicap, the son of Heliopolis scored by six lengths in the fine time of 1:11 4-5 on a wet track.

J. A. Kinard's Johns Joy, which set the pace for about three furlongs, was second, finishing three lengths before Keystone Stable's Cervantes, which in turn was a head before D. Shaer's High Bracket. Luchador and Bonaventure completed the field. Lone Withdrawal was the Belgium-bred Layeux.

The Pincher was the first favorite of the drab day to make the grade. Aboard him was Ken Church, top booter here, who stretched his meeting total to 18 winners. Church had four winners Thursday.

Owned by Henry H. Hecht, of Baltimore, Md., The Pincher was making his second start over the track. He finished eighth in a section of the Inaugural Handicap, won by All At Once. He was winner of the Philadelphia Handicap, Rowe Memorial, W. P. Burch Memorial and three other races in 1950, when he gleaned $33,145.

The second largest daily double of the current meeting materialized when Brookridge and Pauline Gross combined to form a payoff of $404.70.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.— (INS) — The very English James Mason has been chosen by Darryl Zanuck to play the very German Gen. Erwin Rommel. But Mason, a good actor, will probably give the Rommel character the dash and nerve Rommel is supposed to have had when he led Hitler's army against our own allies.

James Mason

Desmond Young's book, "The Desert Fox," on which the 20th movie is based, describes Rommel as a man who, at the end, tried to get away from Hitler, but, too late, was poisoned.

Nunnally Johnson, with whom I talked at arecent dinner, is fascinated with the character of the Nazi soldier, especially since he talked with Frau Rommel. But there will be plenty of criticism of the Hitler ideas Rommel stood for at the beginning of the war. I should hope so.

Director Henry Hathaway is already in Bavaria, filming location scenes.

That pretty Monica Lewis, who looks like a doll and sings like one too, gets the full "A" treatment from M-G-M from now on. What singer wouldn't be thrilled over playing opposite Mario Lanza in "Be My Love," based on the tune of the same name.

"Be My Love," from "Toast Of New Orleans," already has hit No. 5 spot on the Hit Parade and has sold a half million sheet copies. On the strength of this showing, Joe Pasternak has recalled Composers Nick Brodsky and Sammy Cahn to write a new score for an original story.

Getting back to Monica, is all this dating with good looking Mike Nidroff (Jo Stafford's manager) a serious romance? Could be.

Bing Crosby told me that when Judy Garland sang on his radio show she was so good everyone spontaneously applauded her at rehearsal.

Bing has had Judy, whose voice is God-given, on many of his shows and each time she has done a really wonderful job.

She's going to the London Palladium for four weeks and we are all hoping she'll do the same terrific job she's done on Bing's shows. There's nobody in Judy's class when it comes to putting over a song.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

J. Arthur Warner, the eastern millionaire who married Kay Buckley in Juarez, had to leave unexpectedly for New York on business. Hear his ex-wife is going to fight their divorce and his marriage unless she gets a sizeable alimony.

Virginia Hill, the girl in whose house Bugsy Siegel was living when he was killed, is now in New York. She's living there quietly with her husband waiting to testify before the Kefauver committee which is investigating organized crime.

Barbara Stanwyck is putting her Holmby Hills house up for sale. Now that she's alone it's too big. Barbara, by the way, is seeing her friends again I'm happy to say.

After eleven years on radio and in pictures Dennis Day will make his first night club appearance at the Last Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas starting the 9th of this month. Mrs. Day is expecting her third child any edition.

Had a chance to congratulate Rupert Hughes on his birthday. I was having dinner with June Allyson and Dick Powell at the Hollywood Brown Derby. He certainly doesn't look 79.

After radio rehearsal dropped by Larue for a cup of coffee. Rosalind Russell and Freddie Brisson were just having dinner. She had been on the Screen Directors' Guild radio show for the eighth time.

Steve Hannagan flew in from New York to advise Ann Sheridan in her suit against RKO.

Alice Faye and Phil Harris are building a new house in Palm Springs.

Robert Stevenson and a French speaking secretary will accompany the Ballet De Paris on tour for two months. That's to get the true story of the ballet which Howard Hughes is putting on the screen.

That's all today. See you Monday.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Are most people basically kindly?

Answer: Yes. We all want to be loved, and the average person who is not afraid of you will treat you with kindness because he wants you to like him, and, if he is healthy-minded, assumes you will do so. Beyond that we all have a natural tendency to identify ourselves with others or "put ourselves in their place" so that if you are in trouble, the majority of people will be surprisingly kind and generous because they unconsciously are treating you as they themselves would like to be treated, under the same circumstances.

May a sense of guilt cause war neurosis?

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. Irving N. Berlin in the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases. Basically no one can help wishing that if someone must be killed in combat, it should be anyone but himself. And since we unconsciously feel that when any of our secret wishes come true, we are responsible for the fact, the death of a comrade in arms may unconsciously create the feeling that it is we who have killed him. Psychiatric study of victims of war neurosis has shown that this pattern is perhaps their most frequent immediate basis.

May deafness make you a recluse?

Answer: Yes. The more you are predisposed to doubt your neighbors' good will, the more likely you will be to use the fact that you cannot hear what they say as an excuse for imagining that they are saying unkind things about you, with the result that you will tend more and more to "draw into your shell" and have as little contact with them as you can. This is the greatest emotional danger deafness involves. But conversely, a desire to withdraw from human contacts may increase your deafness.

The resourceful competitor, endowed with the right kind of fibre, views such happenings as a challenge. He goes to work then to see if he can find some way to make up for his slip. When East heard that 3-Hearts powerhouse bid from North, he decided to lay in ambush for the probable slam contract that seemed to be impending. When his ambitious opponents finally quit at a level just below the slam, he decided to double anyway—as who wouldn't? South's redouble was merely in the spirit of the group.

West led the spade 3. The A of course won, and South immediately tackled the job of shutting out East's marked trumps. He led the heart Q and, when East played low, neglectfully put the 4 on it, which prevented him from next finessing the 8 and leaving the lead in dummy. But he made up for that carelessness.

To the third trick South finessed the heart J, then led the club K. East won with the A and returned the club 5, which was allowed to run to dummy's 6. The diamond Q was led to the A and the diamond 4 came back, ruffed by the heart 10. Now the spade 6 was ruffed by the heart 8 and the heart 5 led, the 9 being finessed. The heart A felled the K and the last three tricks were taken by the club Q, J and 10.

County Commissioners File Protest Over Autopsy Cost

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners made public yesterday a letter which they have sent to Dr. Russell S. Fisher, chief medical examiner for the Department of Post Mortem Examiners, in which they outline their protest over the cost of autopsies and deputy medical examiner services here.

The letter, prepared by Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, listed four main points in the board's argument against the high cost of such services.

Unnecessary Autopsies

After comparing the system in use in Washington county with that used in Allegany county the board stated the figures indicate:

1. There are a great many unnecessary investigations being conducted by the deputy medical examiner.

2. Unnecessary autopsies are being ordered by the deputy medical examiner.

3. The local pathologist approved by the state board has set a flat fee of $50 for autopsies, which in many types of cases is disproportionate to the services rendered. (The cost of autopsies in Washington county is $25).

4. The per capita cost of the medical examiner system in Allegany county is disproportionate to that of other counties of comparable population and economic development.

For example, last year there were 976 deaths in this county and 204 investigations and 75 autopsies. Washington county at the same time had 814 deaths with 86 investigations and 16 autopsies.

The board's letter stated that the budget item for the medical examiner system in this county is greater than all the county constables, more than the county's share of group insurance on all of its employes, twice as much as the county's legal service, and as much as the Juvenile Court.

Can Not Support

"When considered in the light of the services rendered under the medical examiner system the county can not reasonably support the same."

"The guarded expenditure of public funds is a primary duty for the county commissioners and the matter is being called to your attention and appropriate action by your department is requested to help correct the situation."

The letter asked the state board to inform the commissioners as to the extent of the authority of the deputy medical examiner so that such information may be made available to interested members of the medical profession and funeral directors.

What are medical examiner cases the cost of which under the law or in the public interest should be borne by the county board, was also asked.

It was also requested that the state board give its opinion on a schedule of fees for autopsies on a sliding scale so as to compensate the pathologist performing them for his services in direct proportion thereto.

Great Increase

The letter listed the cost of autopsies and deputy medical examiner investigations since 1941-42. The cost in that period was $1,000 while current budget has $7,500 set aside for this work.

It was also pointed out in the letter that for the first six months of the 1950-51 fiscal year there have been 104 investigations and 35 autopsies resulting in the expenditure of $3,310, indicating that the major portion of this levy item will be expended by the end of the fiscal year.

The board also stated it realized that the elimination of unexplained deaths and the public health service rendered under the present system are of vital public interest, but feels that on a comparative cost basis the expense of this system in Allegany county is excessive.

Getty explained that he had conferred with Dr. Fisher while in Baltimore last week and the letter made public today was a formal report on the board's stand in the matter.

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners made public yesterday a letter which they have sent to Dr. Russell S. Fisher, chief medical examiner for the Department of Post Mortem Examiners, in which they outline their protest over the cost of autopsies and deputy medical examiner services here.

The resourceful competitor, endowed with the right kind of fibre, views such happenings as a challenge. He goes to work then to see if he can find some way to make up for his slip. You will go far to find a more highly competitive foursome than engaged in battle on this deal. When East heard that 3-Hearts powerhouse bid from North, he decided to lay in ambush for the probable slam contract that seemed to be impending. When his ambitious opponents finally quit at a level just below the slam, he decided to double anyway—as who wouldn't? South's redouble was merely in the spirit of the group.

West led the spade 3. The A of course won, and South immediately tackled the job of shutting out East's marked trumps. He led the heart Q and, when East played low, neglectfully put the 4 on it, which prevented him from next finessing the 8 and leaving the lead in dummy. But he made up for that carelessness.

To the third trick South finessed the heart J, then led the club K. East won with the A and returned the club 5, which was allowed to run to dummy's 6. The diamond Q was led to the A and the diamond 4 came back, ruffed by the heart 10. Now the spade 6 was ruffed by the heart 8 and the heart 5 led, the 9 being finessed. The heart A felled the K and the last three tricks were taken by the club Q, J and 10.

KEEPING UP WITH

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—(INS)—The very English James Mason has been chosen by Darryl Zanuck to play the very German Gen. Erwin Rommel. But Mason, a good actor, will probably give the Rommel character the dash and nerve Rommel is supposed to have had when he led Hitler's army against our own allies.

James Mason

Desmond Young's book, "The Desert Fox," on which the 20th movie is based, describes Rommel as a man who, at the end, tried to get away from Hitler, but, too late, was poisoned.

Nunnally Johnson, with whom I talked at arecent dinner, is fascinated with the character of the Nazi soldier, especially since he talked with Frau Rommel. But there will be plenty of criticism of the Hitler ideas Rommel stood for at the beginning of the war. I should hope so.

Director Henry Hathaway is already in Bavaria, filming location scenes.

That pretty Monica Lewis, who looks like a doll and sings like one too, gets the full "A" treatment from M-G-M from now on. What singer wouldn't be thrilled over playing opposite Mario Lanza in "Be My Love," based on the tune of the same name.

"Be My Love," from "Toast Of New Orleans," already has hit No. 5 spot on the Hit Parade and has sold a half million sheet copies. On the strength of this showing, Joe Pasternak has recalled Composers Nick Brodsky and Sammy Cahn to write a new score for an original story.

Getting back to Monica, is all this dating with good looking Mike Nidroff (Jo Stafford's manager) a serious romance? Could be.

Bing Crosby told me that when Judy Garland sang on his radio show she was so good everyone spontaneously applauded her at rehearsal.

Bing has had Judy, whose voice is God-given, on many of his shows and each time she has done a really wonderful job.

She's going to the London Palladium for four weeks and we are all hoping she'll do the same terrific job she's done on Bing's shows. There's nobody in Judy's class when it comes to putting over a song.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

J. Arthur Warner, the eastern millionaire who married Kay Buckley in Juarez, had to leave unexpectedly for New York on business. Hear his ex-wife is going to fight their divorce and his marriage unless she gets a sizeable alimony.

Virginia Hill, the girl in whose house Buzsy Siegel was living when he was killed, is now in New York. She's living there quietly with her husband waiting to testify before the Kefauver committee which is investigating organized crime.

Barbara Stanwyck is putting her Holmby Hills house up for sale. Now that she's alone it's too big. Barbara, by the way, is seeing her friends again I'm happy to say.

After eleven years on radio and in pictures Dennis Day will make his first night club appearance at the Last Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas starting the 9th of this month. Mrs. Day is expecting her third child any edition.

Had a chance to congratulate Rupert Hughes on his birthday. I was having dinner with June Allyson and Dick Powell at the Hollywood Brown Derby. He certainly doesn't look 79.

After radio rehearsal dropped by Larue for a cup of coffee. Rosalind Russell and Freddie Brisson were just having dinner. She had been on the Screen Directors' Guild radio show for the eighth time.

Steve Hannagan flew in from New York to advise Ann Sheridan in her suit against RKO.

Alice Faye and Phil Harris are building a new house in Palm Springs.

Robert Stevenson and a French speaking secretary will accompany the Ballet De Paris on tour for two months. That's to get the true story of the ballet which Howard Hughes is putting on the screen.

That's all today. See you Monday.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Are most people basically kindly?

Answer: Yes. We all want to be loved, and the average person who is not afraid of you will treat you with kindness because he wants you to like him, and, if he is healthy-minded, assumes you will do so. Beyond that we all have a natural tendency to identify ourselves with others or "put ourselves in their place" so that if you are in trouble, the majority of people will be surprisingly kind and generous because they unconsciously are treating you as they themselves would like to be treated, under the same circumstances.

May a sense of guilt cause war neurosis?

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. Irving N. Berlin in the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases. Basically no one can help wishing that if someone must be killed in combat, it should be anyone but himself. And since we unconsciously feel that when any of our secret wishes come true, we are responsible for the fact, the death of a comrade in arms may unconsciously create the feeling that it is we who have killed him. Psychiatric study of victims of war neurosis has shown that this pattern is perhaps their most frequent immediate basis.

May deafness make you a recluse?

Answer: Yes. The more you are predisposed to doubt your neighbors' good will, the more likely you will be to use the fact that you cannot hear what they say as an excuse for imagining that they are saying unkind things about you, with the result that you will tend more and more to "draw into your shell" and have as little contact with them as you can. This is the greatest emotional danger deafness involves. But conversely, a desire to withdraw from human contacts may increase your deafness.

County Commissioners File Protest Over Autopsy Cost

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners made public yesterday a letter which they have sent to Dr. Russell S. Fisher, chief medical examiner for the Department of Post Mortem Examiners, in which they outline their protest over the cost of autopsies and deputy medical examiner services here.

The letter, prepared by Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, listed four main points in the board's argument against the high cost of such services.

Unnecessary Autopsies

After comparing the system in use in Washington county with that used in Allegany county the board stated the figures indicate:

1. There are a great many unnecessary investigations being conducted by the deputy medical examiner.

2. Unnecessary autopsies are being ordered by the deputy medical examiner.

3. The local pathologist approved by the state board has set a flat fee of $50 for autopsies, which in many types of cases is disproportionate to the services rendered. (The cost of autopsies in Washington county is $25).

4. The per capita cost of the medical examiner system in Allegany county is disproportionate to that of other counties of comparable population and economic development.

For example, last year there were 976 deaths in this county and 204 investigations and 75 autopsies. Washington county at the same time had 814 deaths with 86 investigations and 16 autopsies.

The board's letter stated that the budget item for the medical examiner system in this county is greater than all the county constables, more than the county's share of group insurance on all of its employes, twice as much as the county's legal service, and as much as the Juvenile Court.

Can Not Support

"When considered in the light of the services rendered under the medical examiner system the county can not reasonably support the same."

"The guarded expenditure of public funds is a primary duty for the county commissioners and the matter is being called to your attention and appropriate action by your department is requested to help correct the situation."

The letter asked the state board to inform the commissioners as to the extent of the authority of the deputy medical examiner so that such information may be made available to interested members of the medical profession and funeral directors.

What are medical examiner cases the cost of which under the law or in the public interest should be borne by the county board, was also asked.

It was also requested that the state board give its opinion on a schedule of fees for autopsies on a sliding scale so as to compensate the pathologist performing them for his services in direct proportion thereto.

Great Increase

The letter listed the cost of autopsies and deputy medical examiner investigations since 1941-42. The cost in that period was $1,000 while current budget has $7,500 set aside for this work.

It was also pointed out in the letter that for the first six months of the 1950-51 fiscal year there have been 104 investigations and 35 autopsies resulting in the expenditure of $3,310, indicating that the major portion of this levy item will be expended by the end of the fiscal year.

The board also stated it realized that the elimination of unexplained deaths and the public health service rendered under the present system are of vital public interest, but feels that on a comparative cost basis the expense of this system in Allegany county is excessive.

Getty explained that he had conferred with Dr. Fisher while in Baltimore last week and the letter made public today was a formal report on the board's stand in the matter.

Mother Of Dead Children Remains In Critical Condition In Oakland

Two Infants Die From Blast Burns

Two Garrett county children are dead and their mother was still in critical condition last night in an Oakland hospital from an explosion in the kitchen of their small cabin. Spilled gasoline was blamed for the blast.

The mother, Mrs. Bernice Dean Slaubaugh, 26, of Gnegy Church, near Red House, is a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, where her two children died earlier yesterday.

The dead are Charles Roy Slaubaugh, 4, who expired at 3:35 a. m., and Marsha Dean Slaubaugh, 2, who died at 7:28 a. m. today.

One-year-old Bradley, the third child of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Slaubaugh, was treated by Dr. H. C. Miller, of Eglon, W. Va., for burns of the face.

Faces And Throats Burned

The two older children suffered first, second and third degree burns of the body and face while the mother has face and back burns.

Dr. Miller, who arrived at the scene of the blaze in the small, three-room cottage shortly after the explosion at 1 p. m., said oddly enough the clothing of the mother was only slightly burned. She was burned severely through a jacket and shirt, which was only scorched.

He added that not all the children's clothing was burned from them. The faces and throats of all three were very badly burned, the doctor reported.

Mrs. Slaubaugh, who was conscious yesterday, told the doctor the details of the accident.

She said she had a can of gasoline on the floor of the kitchen getting ready to pour it in the gas-powered washing machine.

Boy Upsets Can

The young mother was preparing to do the family wash for her three small children and her husband, a farmer. The two older children were playing on the kitchen floor and the baby was in his bed in the adjacent bedroom.

Mrs. Slaubaugh told the doctor the four-year-old boy upset the gas can while playing and it trickled toward the kitchen coal stove in which a fire burned.

She said the fumes filled the room and the fire in the stove ignited them, causing a terrific blast.

The boy fled to the bedroom after spilling the gasoline, she said, but when the explosion occurred, blowing out all the window glass, he became frightened and ran screaming to his mother in the flaming kitchen.

The grandfather, of the children, Elmer Slaubaugh, who lives 20 feet from his son's cabin, and a neighbor boy, Edward Lipscomb, carried the mother and her children from the room.

The baby was taken from his bed through the bedroom window, Dr. Miller related. Mr. Slaubaugh and the Lipscomb boy with the help of neighbors, succeeded in putting the fire out by using a bucket brigade.

Although the structure was not burned to the ground, the interior was badly gutted.

Dr. Miller was called at his Eglon home which is three miles away. He said he gave emergency treatment at the grandfather's home and then took the mother to the hospital. The children were taken in another car owned by a neighbor, George Wolfe.

Husband In Deer Park

The husband of the critically burned woman had been in Deer Park yesterday purchasing junk and arrived just as the doctor and Wolfe were leaving for the Oakland hospital.

The three burn victims were admitted to the hospital at 3 p.m., according to Francis Gallagher, superintendent.

The home is located about eight miles from Oakland in the southwest corner of Garrett County, just near the Preston county, W. Va., line.

Dr. Miller said all of the family's clothing was destroyed in the fire as it was placed in the kitchen preparatory to washing.

The bodies of Charles Roy Slaubaugh and Marsha Dean Slaubaugh have been taken to Spiggle's Funeral Home in Davis, W. Va., where they will remain until Sunday morning. A double funeral service will be conducted at Gnegy Church at 10 a. m. with Rev. Daniel Spaid, pastor of Eglon Church of the Brethren, officiating. Burial will be in Gnegy Church Cemetery.

Feature of the local observance will be a fun night program Wednesday evening in the Potomac State School gymnasium. In this affair, starting at 7 o'clock, Scouts and leaders will provide wholesome fun for all attending.

In this and other events during the celebration week, Grace Methodist Church troop No. 39, Rotary Troop, No. 27, both of Keyser, and Kitzmiller troop No. 29, and Elk Garden Troop No. 40, will take part. Friday evening all will go to Cumberland for a swim night in the pool at Central YMCA in that city. The Scouts will gather at the Grace church in Keyser and leave at 6 p. m. for Cumberland.

On Sunday, all Scouts and their leaders and district officers are to attend church. They will be permitted to attend services at the church of their choice.

Then on Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock, the annual Father and son banquet will be served in the Firemen's Hall, Corner of North Mineral and Centre Streets, in Keyser. Others interested in Scouting may attend and probably there will be some adults who will want to attend and escort a Scout whose father may not be able to attend. They may come and bring a Scout.

Chester Bishop, scout commissioner for New Creek District, and officers of the district body, have been very busy for sometime making preparations for this annual celebration and will find very little leisure time until the week's festivities are ended.

Another section of the Boy Scouts takes care of the Cubs Scouts who are organized into dens and work separately as a unit. In Keyser there are three packs with approximately 70 members, under direction of Oren Brown, leader. In the packs are den mothers who give a helping hand in the work of guidance. In the packs are the younger boys who expect to become Scouts just as soon as they reach the entrance age to Scouting.

The District Planning Committee has arranged a program for the anniversary week, which will not be so formal as the Scouts will have, but it promises to be of interest to each Cub.

One evening will be devoted to preparing window displays in windows of business houses in Keyser. Then on Sunday night the Cubs will attend a church service with leaders, officials and others interested in the work and a party will be held on Tuesday night, at the close of the week, this party to be held in Grace Methodist Church, where refreshments will be served and a lively program will be a feature in which the Cubs will participate. Refreshments will be served in cafeteria style. There will be one night during the celebration set aside as open house night.

Mother Of Dead Children Remains In Critical Condition In Oakland

Two Infants Die From Blast Burns

Two Garrett county children are dead and their mother was still in critical condition last night in an Oakland hospital from an explosion in the kitchen of their small cabin. Spilled gasoline was blamed for the blast.

The mother, Mrs. Bernice Dean Slaubaugh, 26, of Gnegy Church, near Red House, is a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, where her two children died earlier yesterday.

The dead are Charles Roy Slaubaugh, 4, who expired at 3:35 a. m., and Marsha Dean Slaubaugh, 2, who died at 7:28 a. m. today.

One-year-old Bradley, the third child of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Slaubaugh, was treated by Dr. H. C. Miller, of Eglon, W. Va., for burns of the face.

Faces And Throats Burned

The two older children suffered first, second and third degree burns of the body and face while the mother has face and back burns.

Dr. Miller, who arrived at the scene of the blaze in the small, three-room cottage shortly after the explosion at 1 p. m., said oddly enough the clothing of the mother was only slightly burned. She was burned severely through a jacket and shirt, which was only scorched.

He added that not all the children's clothing was burned from them. The faces and throats of all three were very badly burned, the doctor reported.

Mrs. Slaubaugh, who was conscious yesterday, told the doctor the details of the accident.

She said she had a can of gasoline on the floor of the kitchen getting ready to pour it in the gas-powered washing machine.

Boy Upsets Can

The young mother was preparing to do the family wash for her three small children and her husband, a farmer. The two older children were playing on the kitchen floor and the baby was in his bed in the adjacent bedroom.

Mrs. Slaubaugh told the doctor the four-year-old boy upset the gas can while playing and it trickled toward the kitchen coal stove in which a fire burned.

She said the fumes filled the room and the fire in the stove ignited them, causing a terrific blast.

The boy fled to the bedroom after spilling the gasoline, she said, but when the explosion occurred, blowing out all the window glass, he became frightened and ran screaming to his mother in the flaming kitchen.

The grandfather, of the children, Elmer Slaubaugh, who lives 20 feet from his son's cabin, and a neighbor boy, Edward Lipscomb, carried the mother and her children from the room.

The baby was taken from his bed through the bedroom window, Dr. Miller related. Mr. Slaubaugh and the Lipscomb boy with the help of neighbors, succeeded in putting the fire out by using a bucket brigade.

Although the structure was not burned to the ground, the interior was badly gutted.

Dr. Miller was called at his Eglon home which is three miles away. He said he gave emergency treatment at the grandfather's home and then took the mother to the hospital. The children were taken in another car owned by a neighbor, George Wolfe.

Husband In Deer Park

The husband of the critically burned woman had been in Deer Park yesterday purchasing junk and arrived just as the doctor and Wolfe were leaving for the Oakland hospital.

The three burn victims were admitted to the hospital at 3 p.m., according to Francis Gallagher, superintendent.

The home is located about eight miles from Oakland in the southwest corner of Garrett County, just near the Preston county, W. Va., line.

Dr. Miller said all of the family's clothing was destroyed in the fire as it was placed in the kitchen preparatory to washing.

Mother Of Dead Children Remains In Critical Condition In Oakland

Two Infants Die From Blast Burns

Two Garrett county children are dead and their mother was still in critical condition last night in an Oakland hospital from an explosion in the kitchen of their small cabin. Spilled gasoline was blamed for the blast.

The mother, Mrs. Bernice Dean Slaubaugh, 26, of Gnegy Church, near Red House, is a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, where her two children died earlier yesterday.

The dead are Charles Roy Slaubaugh, 4, who expired at 3:35 a. m., and Marsha Dean Slaubaugh, 2, who died at 7:28 a. m. today.

One-year-old Bradley, the third child of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Slaubaugh, was treated by Dr. H. C. Miller, of Eglon, W. Va., for burns of the face.

Faces And Throats Burned

The two older children suffered first, second and third degree burns of the body and face while the mother has face and back burns.

Dr. Miller, who arrived at the scene of the blaze in the small, three-room cottage shortly after the explosion at 1 p. m., said oddly enough the clothing of the mother was only slightly burned. She was burned severely through a jacket and shirt, which was only scorched.

He added that not all the children's clothing was burned from them. The faces and throats of all three were very badly burned, the doctor reported.

Mrs. Slaubaugh, who was conscious yesterday, told the doctor the details of the accident.

She said she had a can of gasoline on the floor of the kitchen getting ready to pour it in the gas-powered washing machine.

Boy Upsets Can

The young mother was preparing to do the family wash for her three small children and her husband, a farmer. The two older children were playing on the kitchen floor and the baby was in his bed in the adjacent bedroom.

Mrs. Slaubaugh told the doctor the four-year-old boy upset the gas can while playing and it trickled toward the kitchen coal stove in which a fire burned.

She said the fumes filled the room and the fire in the stove ignited them, causing a terrific blast.

The boy fled to the bedroom after spilling the gasoline, she said, but when the explosion occurred, blowing out all the window glass, he became frightened and ran screaming to his mother in the flaming kitchen.

The grandfather, of the children, Elmer Slaubaugh, who lives 20 feet from his son's cabin, and a neighbor boy, Edward Lipscomb, carried the mother and her children from the room.

The baby was taken from his bed through the bedroom window, Dr. Miller related. Mr. Slaubaugh and the Lipscomb boy with the help of neighbors, succeeded in putting the fire out by using a bucket brigade.

Although the structure was not burned to the ground, the interior was badly gutted.

Dr. Miller was called at his Eglon home which is three miles away. He said he gave emergency treatment at the grandfather's home and then took the mother to the hospital. The children were taken in another car owned by a neighbor, George Wolfe.

Husband In Deer Park

The husband of the critically burned woman had been in Deer Park yesterday purchasing junk and arrived just as the doctor and Wolfe were leaving for the Oakland hospital.

The three burn victims were admitted to the hospital at 3 p.m., according to Francis Gallagher, superintendent.

The home is located about eight miles from Oakland in the southwest corner of Garrett County, just near the Preston county, W. Va., line.

Dr. Miller said all of the family's clothing was destroyed in the fire as it was placed in the kitchen preparatory to washing.

The bodies of Charles Roy Slaubaugh and Marsha Dean Slaubaugh have been taken to Spiggle's Funeral Home in Davis, W. Va., where they will remain until Sunday morning. A double funeral service will be conducted at Gnegy Church at 10 a. m. with Rev. Daniel Spaid, pastor of Eglon Church of the Brethren, officiating. Burial will be in Gnegy Church Cemetery.

Keyser Scouts To Observe Organization's Anniversary

KEYSER, W. Va.—Three Scout troops, one Explorer post in Keyser and two other troops in the New Creek Boy Scout District will join next week in observance of Boy Scout Week, marking the 41st anniversary of the youth organization.

Feature of the local observance will be a fun night program Wednesday evening in the Potomac State School gymnasium. In this affair, starting at 7 o'clock, Scouts and leaders will provide wholesome fun for all attending.

In this and other events during the celebration week, Grace Methodist Church troop No. 39, Rotary Troop, No. 27, both of Keyser, and Kitzmiller troop No. 29, and Elk Garden Troop No. 40, will take part. The four troops as well as the Explorer Post, also of Grace Methodist Church, will join in all of the features during the week. All are affiliated with New Creek District Scouting.

Friday evening all will go to Cumberland for a swim night in the pool at Central YMCA in that city. The Scouts will gather at the Grace church in Keyser and leave at 6 p. m. for Cumberland.

On Sunday, all Scouts and their leaders and district officers are to attend church. They will be permitted to attend services at the church of their choice.

Then on Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock, the annual Father and son banquet will be served in the Firemen's Hall, Corner of North Mineral and Centre Streets, in Keyser. Others interested in Scouting may attend and probably there will be some adults who will want to attend and escort a Scout whose father may not be able to attend. They may come and bring a Scout.

Chester Bishop, scout commissioner for New Creek District, and officers of the district body, have been very busy for sometime making preparations for this annual celebration and will find very little lejsure time until the week's festivities are ended.

Another section of the Boy Scouts takes care of the Cubs Scouts who are organized into dens and work separately as a unit. In Keyser there are three packs with approximately 70 members, under direction of Oren Brown, leader. In the packs are den mothers who give a helping hand in the work of guidance. In the packs are the younger boys who expect to become Scouts just as soon as they reach the entrance age to Scouting.

The District Planning Committee has arranged a program for the anniversary week, which will not be so formal as the Scouts will have, but it promises to be of interest to each Cub.

One evening will be devoted to preparing window displays in windows of business houses in Keyser. Then on Sunday night the Cubs will attend a church service with leaders, officials and others interested in the work and a party will be held on Tuesday night, at the close of the week, this party to be held in Grace Methodist Church, where refreshments will be served and a lively program will be a feature in which the Cubs will participate. Refreshments will be served in cafeteria style. There will be one night during the celebration set aside as open house night.

Sponsored Matrimony

THE DEAFENING roar coming out of your radio loudspeaker these days is the accumulated sound of husbands billing and cooing to their own wives. Sociologically speaking, it's an altogether splended uproar and you're likely to hear quite a lot of it this winter. The husband-and-wife radio teams include—let's see now—Ronald and Binita Colman in "Halls of Ivy," the Phil Harrises, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, the Cary Grants in "Mr. and Mrs. Blandings" and—coming soon, as they say in the movies—the Humphrey Bogarts.

John Crosby

Never in my memory has matrimony got such excellent notices from so many glamorous people all at once. And every loving couple has got a sponsor, too. As Dorothy Dix would be the first to tell you, there's nothing like a sponsor to hold a marriage together. "Just Mary and me. And the sponsor makes three..." There's a song in there somewhere, Mannie, if we can just straighten it out.

Let's stop woolgathering. The newest husband-and-wife team is that of Cary Grant and his wife Betsy Drake in "Mr. and Mrs. Blandings" (N.B.C. 5:30 p.m. E. S. T. Sundays) which is billed as the first radio show of 1951. Big as it is—Cary Grant is quite a plum for N.B.C. — and socially commendable as its message is, there's quite a lot wrong with it.

The story is derived from Eric Hodgins' two books, "Blandings Builds His Dream House" and "Blandings Way." The radio program picks up where the first book left off. The dream house is built, though nothing in it works very well. The trials and expense and disillusionment of getting the house up are out of the way, which may be one of the reasons why the show doesn't seem to be going anyyhere. On the opening installment, the Blandings got a bad fright when the State Highway Commission decided to run a road right through their living room. On the second one, the Blandings' two girls, Susan and Joan, are sent home from school suffering from what turned out not to be measles after all.

Those two situations should have offered enough plot complication for a half hour show. But they didn't. The trouble lies, I should say, in the rather lofty, though puzzling, exchanges between Mr. and Mrs. Blandings, a type of dialogue which, I expect, is meant to represent the utmost in suburban sophistication. Mostly, the listener is left wondering just what the hell the Blandings are talking about.

Since I'm one of the six people left in America who has neither read the books nor seen the movie, I have no way of knowing whether Mr. Grant and Miss Drake are faithful reproductions of the Hodgins, characters. Miss Drake, who has a wispy voice and a personality that seems to be obscured in fog, plays the part of one of those females who tells a story backwards. Wives, I must admit, do this sort of thing, but it's a difficult character to project over the radio without confusing the listeners as much as the husbands. Grant's distinctive music-bound voice is very much in evidence and should be a very great asset in radio comedy. But it hasn't yet had much to say.

In addition to the Blandings, characters include a lawyer named Bill, the Blanding's best friend who passes most of his time insulting both of them; and a couple of salty old country folk who don't make much sense either. The dream house is almost a character in itself. The door bell sets the washing machine in motion; the front hall light switch rings the doorbell; and communications between the master bedroom and the kitchen are carried on by means of two tin cans connected by a string. It ought to be funny, allright. It just isn't. I'm still rooting for the Grants, though, since Cary Grant has proved on numerous guest appearances that he is a very expert radio comedian when given a chance. About Miss Drake I have grave reservations.

The Grant show is sponsored, incidentally, by TWA, the air-line people, and bless my soul, if they haven't got a singing commercial:

"You'll love to fly
"High up in the sky.
"You ride the airways'
"Starry staircase..."

There's a serious aerodynamic flaw in rhyming "airways" with "staircase," TWA. You'll never get it off the ground.

Sponsored Matrimony

THE DEAFENING roar coming out of your radio loudspeaker these days is the accumulated sound of husbands billing and cooing to their own wives. Sociologically speaking, it's an altogether splended uproar and you're likely to hear quite a lot of it this winter. The husband-and-wife radio teams include—let's see now—Ronald and Binita Colman in "Halls of Ivy," the Phil Harrises, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, the Cary Grants in "Mr. and Mrs. Blandings" and—coming soon, as they say in the movies—the Humphrey Bogarts.

John Crosby

Never in my memory has matrimony got such excellent notices from so many glamorous people all at once. And every loving couple has got a sponsor, too. As Dorothy Dix would be the first to tell you, there's nothing like a sponsor to hold a marriage together. "Just Mary and me. And the sponsor makes three..." There's a song in there somewhere, Mannie, if we can just straighten it out.

Let's stop woolgathering. The newest husband-and-wife team is that of Cary Grant and his wife Betsy Drake in "Mr. and Mrs. Blandings" (N.B.C. 5:30 p.m. E. S. T. Sundays) which is billed as the first radio show of 1951. Big as it is—Cary Grant is quite a plum for N.B.C. — and socially commendable as its message is, there's quite a lot wrong with it.

The story is derived from Eric Hodgins' two books, "Blandings Builds His Dream House" and "Blandings Way." The radio program picks up where the first book left off. The dream house is built, though nothing in it works very well. The trials and expense and disillusionment of getting the house up are out of the way, which may be one of the reasons why the show doesn't seem to be going anyyhere. On the opening installment, the Blandings got a bad fright when the State Highway Commission decided to run a road right through their living room. On the second one, the Blandings' two girls, Susan and Joan, are sent home from school suffering from what turned out not to be measles after all.

Those two situations should have offered enough plot complication for a half hour show. But they didn't. The trouble lies, I should say, in the rather lofty, though puzzling, exchanges between Mr. and Mrs. Blandings, a type of dialogue which, I expect, is meant to represent the utmost in suburban sophistication. Mostly, the listener is left wondering just what the hell the Blandings are talking about.

Since I'm one of the six people left in America who has neither read the books nor seen the movie, I have no way of knowing whether Mr. Grant and Miss Drake are faithful reproductions of the Hodgins, characters. Miss Drake, who has a wispy voice and a personality that seems to be obscured in fog, plays the part of one of those females who tells a story backwards. Wives, I must admit, do this sort of thing, but it's a difficult character to project over the radio without confusing the listeners as much as the husbands. Grant's distinctive music-bound voice is very much in evidence and should be a very great asset in radio comedy. But it hasn't yet had much to say.

In addition to the Blandings, characters include a lawyer named Bill, the Blanding's best friend who passes most of his time insulting both of them; and a couple of salty old country folk who don't make much sense either. The dream house is almost a character in itself. The door bell sets the washing machine in motion; the front hall light switch rings the doorbell; and communications between the master bedroom and the kitchen are carried on by means of two tin cans connected by a string. It ought to be funny, allright. It just isn't. I'm still rooting for the Grants, though, since Cary Grant has proved on numerous guest appearances that he is a very expert radio comedian when given a chance. About Miss Drake I have grave reservations.

The Grant show is sponsored, incidentally, by TWA, the air-line people, and bless my soul, if they haven't got a singing commercial:

"You'll love to fly
"High up in the sky.
"You ride the airways'
"Starry staircase..."

There's a serious aerodynamic flaw in rhyming "airways" with "staircase," TWA. You'll never get it off the ground.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

T B! N I A D J U Q U I A Z B M J Y N W S P Z
S L Z B M I T; I B J B X I Z B M J Y N Q O U J L
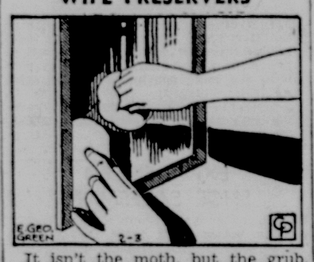
O N C U G U U I X J B I T L B P B I T — D B D U.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: AND THE BEST AND THE WORST OF THIS IS THAT NEITHER IS MOST TO BLAME—SWINBURNE.

WIFE PRESERVERS



It isn't the moth, but the grub, that works havoc with your stored clothes, and the grub just loves soiled or stained clothing. Have your garments dry cleaned and then store them properly.

The word delirium means literally being off the straight line or furrow.

Cards of Thanks

We all wish to express our sincere thanks to the volunteer Fire Companies of Bowling Green, Cresaptown, LaVale and Corriganville, members of the Evangelical United Brethren Church and Saint Matthews Reformed Church and employees of the Kelly Springfield Tire Company as well as all of our friends, relatives and neighbors who have helped us so very much since our home was struck by fire last week.

THE GROVE FAMILY

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my friends, neighbors and relatives for the kindness extended me during the recent bereavement, the death of my wife, Hilda Hill. Especially do I thank Rev. James E. Dorsey, the pallbearers, those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their cars for the funeral.

BOB HILL

We all wish to express our sincere thanks to the volunteer Fire Companies of Bowling Green, Cresaptown, LaVale and Corriganville, members of the Evangelical United Brethren Church and Saint Matthews Reformed Church and employees of the Kelly Springfield Tire Company as well as all of our friends, relatives and neighbors who have helped us so very much since our home was struck by fire last week.

THE GROVE FAMILY

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my friends, neighbors and relatives for the kindness extended me during the recent bereavement, the death of my wife, Hilda Hill. Especially do I thank Rev. Cards of Thanks

We all wish to express our sincere thanks to the volunteer Fire Companies of Bowling Green, Cresaptown, LaVale and Corriganville, members of the Evangelical United Brethren Church and Saint Matthews Reformed Church and employees of the Kelly Springfield Tire Company as well as all of our friends, relatives and neighbors who have helped us so very much since our home was struck by fire last week.

THE GROVE FAMILY

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my friends, neighbors and relatives for the kindness extended me during the recent bereavement, the death of my wife, Hilda Hill. Especially do I thank Rev. James E. Dorsey, the pallbearers, those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their cars for the funeral.

The weekly newspaper representatives attended a morning meeting of the Maryland Press Association which included tips on increasing national advertising by Gordon A. Grant of the Evening Capital in Annapolis.

The two groups held a joint luncheon and business meeting which included talks by Arnold Dane of Cambridge and outgoing chairman of the Chesapeake Association, and Elmer M. Jackson, Jr., of Annapolis, president of the MPA.

Tony Vaccaro, White House correspondent of the AP, addressed a joint banquet at which Governor McKeldin was an invited guest.

The MPA awarded Gordon Beard of Baltimore its first prize as the outstanding journalism major at the University of Maryland. The Chesapeake Association earlier had given top prizes in its first writing contest to James J. Cullinane of the Washington Star and Mike Meise of the Salisbury Times.

The MPA meeting is to conclude tomorrow with election of officers and a tour of the Baltimore Sunpapers building.

Federal Reserve Reports District Business Loans Up

Business loans of Federal Reserve System member banks of the Fifth District, which includes Cumberland, continued to rise in the week ended January 24, but consumer and real estate loans declined, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday.

The reserve bank's weekly report on bank conditions in 51 leading commercial banks of the district showed a rise of $2,533,000 in loans to commerce, industry, and agriculture, bringing the total of these banks' business loans to $552,989,000, a record high.

Consumer loans, which the week before had moved upward by $1,794,000, fell by $466,000 during the week, to a level of $301,960,000. Real estate loans dropped $910,000, and at week's end stood at $245,063,000.

The Fifth Federal Reserve District includes Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and the District of Columbia. Fifty-one of the 477 commercial banks of the are which are members of the Federal Reserve System make weekly reports to the Richmond reserve bank, and their figures serve as a guide to the region's business conditions.

Treasury Bills Sell

Banks sold Treasury bills heavily during the week, presumably in order to replace reserves that had been depleted by a loss of deposits. Declining by $25,312,000, holdings of Treasury bills stood at $92,942,000. Banks' portfolios of Governments fell by $25,901,000 to a level of $1,506,197,000.

Decreases were noted in balances with other banks, which fell $13,740,000 to a level of $172,354,000, and in balances with the Federal Reserve Bank, which dropped $14,174,000 and stood at $500,494,000.

Demand Deposits Drop

Total demand deposits registered a substantial drop of $85,587,000 (about three per cent). Deposits of individuals, partnerships, and corporations, down $57,385,000, and interbank deposits, which decreased by $40,257,000, accounted for most of the drop in total demand deposits.

Total time deposits declined counter-seasonally by $967,000 to a level of $609,500,000. Checking accounts of individuals and businesses showed a seasonal drop of eight per cent during the week, but were still 21 per cent more active than in the same period last year.

Damage Suits End In Draw In Keyser

Mineral Jury Refuses Awards

KEYSER, W. Va. — A jury in Mineral County Circuit Court Friday returned a "draw" verdict in the twin suits for car damages the result of an automobile accident in Piedmont last July.

Miss Marie Duckworth, Westernport, and Wanzel Jones and Carl Fisher, Piedmont, faced each other as plaintiff and defendant, but the jury refused to give damages to either party.

Miss Duckworth, who claimed she had parked at a parking meter on the main street of Piedmont, charged that Wanzel Jones, driving the car owned by Carl Fisher, collided with her auto while she was parked, and she asked for $47.52 for cost of repairs to her car.

Fisher, the owner of the car, asked for damages amounting to $75.38, as cost of repairs to the Fisher car. Jones and Fisher claimed that their car was travelling in the west traffic lane on the street, and that Miss Duckworth, after parking, moved the front of her car out into the traffic lane and struck the Fisher car at the rear door and on the rear fender.

There were seven witnesses in addition to the three principals, and the testimony occupied the court's time from the 10 o'clock opening until near 3 o'clock, soon after which the jury received the case following closing arguments by the four attorneys, as each side had two attorneys. Attorney James H. Swadley, Jr., and N. Howard Rogers appeared for Miss Duckworth, and H. G. Shores, Keyser, and Arthur Arnold, Piedmont, represented Jones and Fisher.

It is the first time such a decision has been reached by a jury in the Mineral County Circuit Court and it was a costly matter for the County, as 40 jurors in the panel were called to report to court today after a two-day layoff, to be ready for action of the attorneys in selecting jurors to try the case. This cost the county $200 for the day.

Traders Push Stock Prices Up To New High For 1950-51

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Inflationary minded stock market traders today pushed prices up to another new 1950-51 average high.

It was the fourth new high established this week, and in the past seven trading days an estimated $4,500,000,000 has been added to the value of all listed securities on the stock exchange.

Inflation has been the key to the advance which has been fed by proposed stock splits, increased dividends, high earnings, and expansion plans.

Today the Associated Press average of 60 stocks reached the new high of $95.90 with an advance of 80 cents. That is the best level since Sept. 24, 1930. Industrials were up $1.30, rails 60 cents, and utilities 20 cents.

The volume of business was the heaviest in two weeks at 3,030,000 shares as compared with yesterday's total of 2,380,000 shares.

Goodrich was ahead 2¼ at 46¾, American Smelting 2 at 79, and Standard Oil (NJ) 1⅞ at 102⅞, and all had considerable periods of high activity.

May Department Stores closed on a block of 1,600 shares up eight at 72 after directors declared a quarterly dividend of 90 cents, as compared with 75 cents previously paid, and proposed a 100 per cent common dividend.

Santa Fe jumped 4¾ to 174¾ while other rails were moderately higher. St. Louis & San Francisco was up⅝ at 29¾. Directors declared a dividend of 62½ cents as compared with 50 cents in June and 50 cents and a 50-cent extra in December.

Missouri Pacific preferred fell 1 at 23⅝. The trustee for the road, which is bankrupt, rejected the $20,000,000 offer of Allegany Corp. to set aside the MP reorganization plan. Allegany common was off ⅛ at 4⅛.

Federal Reserve Reports District Business Loans Up

Business loans of Federal Reserve System member banks of the Fifth District, which includes Cumberland, continued to rise in the week ended January 24, but consumer and real estate loans declined, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday.

The reserve bank's weekly report on bank conditions in 51 leading commercial banks of the district showed a rise of $2,533,000 in loans to commerce, industry, and agriculture, bringing the total of these banks' business loans to $552,989,000, a record high.

Consumer loans, which the week before had moved upward by $1,794,000, fell by $466,000 during the week, to a level of $301,960,000. Real estate loans dropped $910,000, and at week's end stood at $245,063,000.

The Fifth Federal Reserve District includes Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and the District of Columbia. Fifty-one of the 477 commercial banks of the are which are members of the Federal Reserve System make weekly reports to the Richmond reserve bank, and their figures serve as a guide to the region's business conditions.

Treasury Bills Sell

Banks sold Treasury bills heavily during the week, presumably in order to replace reserves that had been depleted by a loss of deposits. Declining by $25,312,000, holdings of Treasury bills stood at $92,942,000. Banks' portfolios of Governments fell by $25,901,000 to a level of $1,506,197,000.

Decreases were noted in balances with other banks, which fell $13,740,000 to a level of $172,354,000, and in balances with the Federal Reserve Bank, which dropped $14,174,000 and stood at $500,494,000.

Demand Deposits Drop

Total demand deposits registered a substantial drop of $85,587,000 (about three per cent). Deposits of individuals, partnerships, and corporations, down $57,385,000, and interbank deposits, which decreased by $40,257,000, accounted for most of the drop in total demand deposits.

Total time deposits declined counter-seasonally by $967,000 to a level of $609,500,000. Checking accounts of individuals and businesses showed a seasonal drop of eight per cent during the week, but were still 21 per cent more active than in the same period last year.

Damage Suits End In Draw In Keyser

Mineral Jury Refuses Awards

KEYSER, W. Va. — A jury in Mineral County Circuit Court Friday returned a "draw" verdict in the twin suits for car damages the result of an automobile accident in Piedmont last July.

Miss Marie Duckworth, Westernport, and Wanzel Jones and Carl Fisher, Piedmont, faced each other as plaintiff and defendant, but the jury refused to give damages to either party.

Miss Duckworth, who claimed she had parked at a parking meter on the main street of Piedmont, charged that Wanzel Jones, driving the car owned by Carl Fisher, collided with her auto while she was parked, and she asked for $47.52 for cost of repairs to her car.

Fisher, the owner of the car, asked for damages amounting to $75.38, as cost of repairs to the Fisher car. Jones and Fisher claimed that their car was travelling in the west traffic lane on the street, and that Miss Duckworth, after parking, moved the front of her car out into the traffic lane and struck the Fisher car at the rear door and on the rear fender.

There were seven witnesses in addition to the three principals, and the testimony occupied the court's time from the 10 o'clock opening until near 3 o'clock, soon after which the jury received the case following closing arguments by the four attorneys, as each side had two attorneys. Attorney James H. Swadley, Jr., and N. Howard Rogers appeared for Miss Duckworth, and H. G. Shores, Keyser, and Arthur Arnold, Piedmont, represented Jones and Fisher.

It is the first time such a decision has been reached by a jury in the Mineral County Circuit Court and it was a costly matter for the County, as 40 jurors in the panel were called to report to court today after a two-day layoff, to be ready for action of the attorneys in selecting jurors to try the case. This cost the county $200 for the day.

Traders Push Stock Prices Up To New High For 1950-51

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Inflationary minded stock market traders today pushed prices up to another new 1950-51 average high.

It was the fourth new high established this week, and in the past seven trading days an estimated $4,500,000,000 has been added to the value of all listed securities on the stock exchange.

Inflation has been the key to the advance which has been fed by proposed stock splits, increased dividends, high earnings, and expansion plans.

Today the Associated Press average of 60 stocks reached the new high of $95.90 with an advance of 80 cents. That is the best level since Sept. 24, 1930. Industrials were up $1.30, rails 60 cents, and utilities 20 cents.

The volume of business was the heaviest in two weeks at 3,030,000 shares as compared with yesterday's total of 2,380,000 shares.

Goodrich was ahead 2¼ at 46¾, American Smelting 2 at 79, and Standard Oil (NJ) 1⅞ at 102⅞, and all had considerable periods of high activity.

May Department Stores closed on a block of 1,600 shares up eight at 72 after directors declared a quarterly dividend of 90 cents, as compared with 75 cents previously paid, and proposed a 100 per cent common dividend.

Santa Fe jumped 4¾ to 174¾ while other rails were moderately higher. St. Louis & San Francisco was up⅝ at 29¾. Directors declared a dividend of 62½ cents as compared with 50 cents in June and 50 cents and a 50-cent extra in December.

Missouri Pacific preferred fell 1 at 23⅝. The trustee for the road, which is bankrupt, rejected the $20,000,000 offer of Allegany Corp. to set aside the MP reorganization plan. Allegany common was off ¼ at 4⅛.

Local Publisher Gets Vice Chairman Post

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2 (AP) — Weekly and daily newspapermen and women listened this afternoon and tonight to talks on common matters of interest after meeting separately to discuss their particular work.

Representatives of the dailies elected W. T. Delaplaine published of the Frederick News and Post, as chairman of the Chesapeake Association of the Associated Press at their morning session.

John J. McMullen, president of the publishing company of the Cumberland Times and News, was named vice chairman, Henry Decker, of Frederick, treasurer and Max Fullerton, AP bureau chief in Baltimore, secretary.

Edwin Young of the Baltimore Sun reported as chairman of the continuing study committee and Robert Bunnelle, an AP general executive, discussed methods of operating teletypesetter news circuits.

The weekly newspaper representatives attended a morning meeting of the Maryland Press Association which included tips on increasing national advertising by Gordon A. Grant of the Evening Capital in Annapolis.

The two groups held a joint luncheon and business meeting which included talks by Arnold Dane of Cambridge and outgoing chairman of the Chesapeake Association, and Elmer M. Jackson, Jr., of Annapolis, president of the MPA.

Tony Vaccaro, White House correspondent of the AP, addressed a joint banquet at which Governor McKeldin was an invited guest.

The MPA awarded Gordon Beard of Baltimore its first prize as the outstanding journalism major at the University of Maryland. The Chesapeake Association earlier had given top prizes in its first writing contest to James J. Cullinane of the Washington Star and Mike Meise of the Salisbury Times.

The MPA meeting is to conclude tomorrow with election of officers and a tour of the Baltimore Sunpapers building.

Business loans of Federal Reserve System member banks of the Fifth District, which includes Cumberland, continued to rise in the week ended January 24, but consumer and real estate loans declined, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday.

The reserve bank's weekly report on bank conditions in 51 leading commercial banks of the district showed a rise of $2,533,000 in loans to commerce, industry, and agriculture, bringing the total of these banks' business loans to $552,989,000, a record high.

Consumer loans, which the week before had moved upward by $1,794,000, fell by $466,000 during the week, to a level of $301,960,000. Real estate loans dropped $910,000, and at week's end stood at $245,063,000.

The Fifth Federal Reserve District includes Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and the District of Columbia. Fifty-one of the 477 commercial banks of the are which are members of the Federal Reserve System make weekly reports to the Richmond reserve bank, and their figures serve as a guide to the region's business conditions.

Treasury Bills Sell

Banks sold Treasury bills heavily during the week, presumably in order to replace reserves that had been depleted by a loss of deposits. Declining by $25,312,000, holdings of Treasury bills stood at $92,942,000. Banks' portfolios of Governments fell by $25,901,000 to a level of $1,506,197,000.

Decreases were noted in balances with other banks, which fell $13,740,000 to a level of $172,354,000, and in balances with the Federal Reserve Bank, which dropped $14,174,000 and stood at $500,494,000.

Demand Deposits Drop

Total demand deposits registered a substantial drop of $85,587,000 (about three per cent). Deposits of individuals, partnerships, and corporations, down $57,385,000, and interbank deposits, which decreased by $40,257,000, accounted for most of the drop in total demand deposits.

Total time deposits declined counter-seasonally by $967,000 to a level of $609,500,000. Checking accounts of individuals and businesses showed a seasonal drop of eight per cent during the week, but were still 21 per cent more active than in the same period last year.

Damage Suits End In Draw In Keyser

Mineral Jury Refuses Awards

KEYSER, W. Va. — A jury in Mineral County Circuit Court Friday returned a "draw" verdict in the twin suits for car damages the result of an automobile accident in Piedmont last July.

Miss Marie Duckworth, Westernport, and Wanzel Jones and Carl Fisher, Piedmont, faced each other as plaintiff and defendant, but the jury refused to give damages to either party.

Miss Duckworth, who claimed she had parked at a parking meter on the main street of Piedmont, charged that Wanzel Jones, driving the car owned by Carl Fisher, collided with her auto while she was parked, and she asked for $47.52 for cost of repairs to her car.

Fisher, the owner of the car, asked for damages amounting to $75.38, as cost of repairs to the Fisher car. Jones and Fisher claimed that their car was travelling in the west traffic lane on the street, and that Miss Duckworth, after parking, moved the front of her car out into the traffic lane and struck the Fisher car at the rear door and on the rear fender.

There were seven witnesses in addition to the three principals, and the testimony occupied the court's time from the 10 o'clock opening until near 3 o'clock, soon after which the jury received the case following closing arguments by the four attorneys, as each side had two attorneys. Attorney James H. Swadley, Jr., and N. Howard Rogers appeared for Miss Duckworth, and H. G. Shores, Keyser, and Arthur Arnold, Piedmont, represented Jones and Fisher.

It is the first time such a decision has been reached by a jury in the Mineral County Circuit Court and it was a costly matter for the County, as 40 jurors in the panel were called to report to court today after a two-day layoff, to be ready for action of the attorneys in selecting jurors to try the case. This cost the county $200 for the day.

Traders Push Stock Prices Up To New High For 1950-51

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Inflationary minded stock market traders today pushed prices up to another new 1950-51 average high.

It was the fourth new high established this week, and in the past seven trading days an estimated $4,500,000,000 has been added to the value of all listed securities on the stock exchange.

Inflation has been the key to the advance which has been fed by proposed stock splits, increased dividends, high earnings, and expansion plans.

Today the Associated Press average of 60 stocks reached the new high of $95.90 with an advance of 80 cents. That is the best level since Sept. 24, 1930. Industrials were up $1.30, rails 60 cents, and utilities 20 cents.

The volume of business was the heaviest in two weeks at 3,030,000 shares as compared with yesterday's total of 2,380,000 shares.

Goodrich was ahead 2¼ at 46¾, American Smelting 2 at 79, and Standard Oil (NJ) 1⅞ at 102⅞, and all had considerable periods of high activity.

May Department Stores closed on a block of 1,600 shares up eight at 72 after directors declared a quarterly dividend of 90 cents, as compared with 75 cents previously paid, and proposed a 100 per cent common dividend.

Santa Fe jumped 4¾ to 174¾ while other rails were moderately higher. St. Louis & San Francisco was up⅝ at 29¾. Directors declared a dividend of 62½ cents as compared with 50 cents in June and 50 cents and a 50-cent extra in December.

Missouri Pacific preferred fell 1 at 23⅝. The trustee for the road, which is bankrupt, rejected the $20,000,000 offer of Allegany Corp. to set aside the MP reorganization plan. Allegany common was off ¼ at 4⅛.

Workers Get Holiday During Plant Repairs

MOOREFIELD, W. Va. — One hundred and twenty five employees of the Rockingham Poultry Marketing Cooperative, Inc., are on paid vacation here this week while the coop is replacing its old chain that holds the chickens and redesigning its picking room to meet the requirements set by the United States Department of Agriculture.

This will complete a program of building which was started at the plant last summer when a new storage room was added, increasing the capacity for holding live chickens by ten thousand.

Thus the controversy of 1949 comes to a constructive result, through men like Admiral Denfeld, Captain Crommelin and others who risked public condemnation cannot be forgotten for the courage they showed in carrying the case to Congress.

Cold Snap Here Threatens To Break Records

Forecasters Predict 8 Below Zero Today

Cumberland is in the throes of one of the coldest winters on record as the thermometers dipped closer to zero with each passing hour last night.

The bitter cold spell moved in all over the state and the celebrated ground hog saw his shadow — a traditional harbinger of six more weeks of winter.

Nine Above Recorded

Robert R. Golden, local weather observer, reported the mercury slipped to nine above yesterday at Constitution Park and gave every indication last night of going even further down.

Golden said in 39 years of recording temperatures here the thermometers have read zero or less only nine times in February with the coldest day being February 9, 1934, with six below recorded.

Five times in the first 10 days of February the mercury dropped below zero, twice in the second 10 days, and twice in the latter part of the month, Golden reported.

Groundhog day in 1950 saw a maximum temperature of 48 degrees recorded and a minimum of 31. Yesterday's maximum was 17 above.

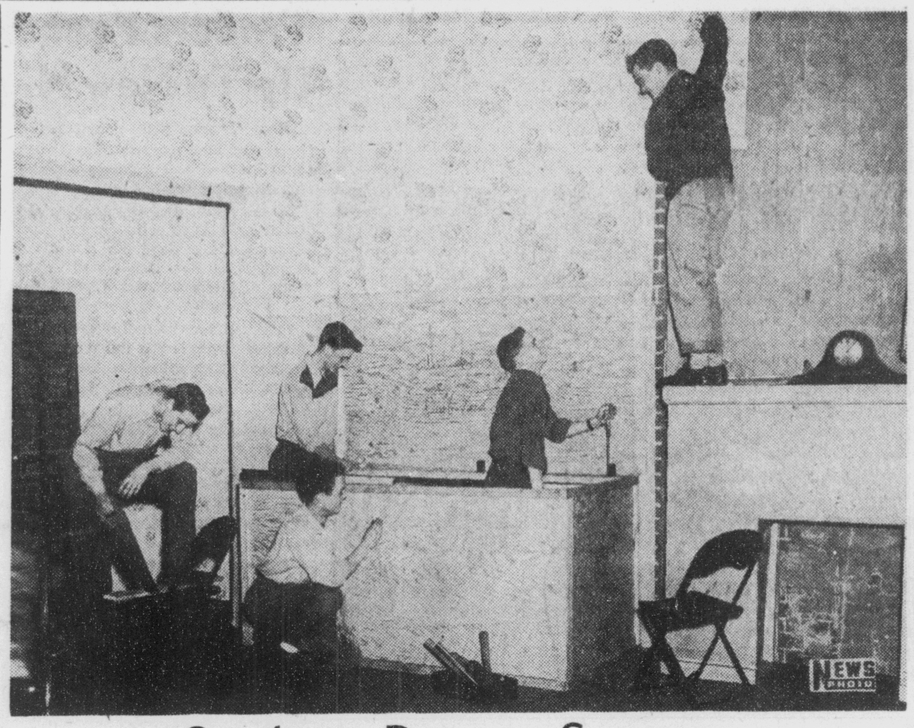
Golden said the coldest day ever recorded in Cumberland in 39 years was 11 below while the coldest temperature in Maryland was 40 below in January, 1912, in Oakland, Garrett County.

Coldest In Garrett

The state's coldest region again was Garrett County yesterday with a reading of 6 degrees below zero being recorded at Guntertown at 9 p. m.

Forecasters were predicting a low of 7 or 8 degrees below zero here by early today. It was 18 above in Baltimore, 15 in Frederick and 20 in Salisbury.

State Police reported that most of Maryland's roads had been cleared of snow, sleet and slush that covered them earlier in the week, but added, drivers still should be careful because highways remained icy in spots.



Students Prepare Scenery

Five Allegany High School boys are building the scenery for Alpha Delta Kappa's stage production. "The Gorilla," which will be shown at the school auditorium Thursday and Friday, February 8 and 9. The play is a mystery comedy in three acts with a cast of 11 players. Preparing the scenery are Lee Chenowith, William Buchholtz (kneeling), Ronald Tase, Murray Buckley and Thomas Kelso. The production is under the direction of Harold C. Wickard.

Auxiliary Police To Reorganize For Defense

Section Captains To Be Named For City

Reorganization of the Cumberland Auxiliary Police Department to meet civil defense needs of this city will near completion when captains will be named for sections of the city.

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn said the appointments will be made at the meeting slated February 13 at 7:30 p. m. in City Hall Auditorium.

A member of the Federal Bureau of Investigation will be present at the meeting to speak on some phase of civil defense.

Chief Flynn said the city will be laid out in districts, with a member of the auxiliary police force named as captain of each area.

The captain will then select assistants and complete plans for round the clock protection.

The present organization, which has been kept active since it was formed here during World War II, now has a membership of about 180 men.

Each member will be asked, at next week's meeting, to recruit one member, to bring membership rolls up to the 300 mark.

The Auxiliary Police, headed by Harold Armbruster, president, and Joseph Harrison, chief, have moved swiftly to meet Civil Defense needs here.

All members recently agreed to take standard advance or refresher Red Cross first aid courses and other training classes needed to bring the organization to top efficiency.

Lonaconing Girl Wins First Prize In State-Wide Contest

Miss Margaret Ann Dilfer, senior in Central High School, Lonaconing, has been awarded the first prize in a state-wide essay contest sponsored by the Governor's Committee to Promote Employment of the Physically Handicapped.

Information of Miss Dilfer's success was contained in a letter received yesterday by Miss Daisy Cline, member of the Central High School faculty, from D. L. B. Fringer and R. C. Thompson, co-chairmen, State Department of Education.

They wrote:

"We are happy to advise you that the essay of Miss Margaret Ann Dilfer was awarded First Prize. She will receive a $100 Savings Bond at the luncheon on March 15 and a Certificate of Merit from the President of the United States.

"We shall arrange for a television appearance and for a visit to points of interest in the city. She will be expected to read her essay at the luncheon. It will be transcribed and then broadcast over various radio stations throughout the state."

Miss Dilfer is an academic student. She has been on the scholastic Honor Roll for her four years of high school. She has earned an athletic "C" for being on the girls basketball team. In the ninth grade she won a scholarship medal.

She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Dilfer, of 85 Douglas Avenue, Lonaconing.

Local Bus Line Drivers Granted Slight Increase

C & W Transit And Union Sign Pact

Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company employees went on a flat daily pay rate scale when company officials signed a new contract with the bus drivers' union.

The agreement between the bus company and the unon, Local 1110, Amalgamated Association of Railroad and Street Car Operators, was completed last week after long negotiations between company and union heads.

The new contract, termed one of the very few of its kind, by company officials, meant a slight increase for each of the 20 bus drivers and four mechanics employed by the C. & W. lines, negotiators said. Amount of the increase was not revealed.

The new pact runs until October 1, 1951 and will continue in force unless changes are made, company heads related.

Employees of the company will receive a flat daily rate based on a six - day week with two weeks vacation after three years' service. Vacation pay was also increased, company officials said.

Members of the union negotiating committee were Edward Bean, president, Jesse Jacobs, mayor of Frostburg, Paul C. Haberlein and Ralph Brain. The bus company negotiators were William B. Ludman, vice president and treasurer and John P. Mackey.

Settlement Ends Suit In Hagerstown Court

An out-of-court settlement in the neighborhood of $5,000 brought an end yesterday in Washington County Circuit Court, Hagerstown, to a $50,000 damage in which both sides were Cumberlanders.

The trial had been in progress since Thursday morning and the settlement came during the noon recess yesterday. Earlier an additional $1,000 suit had been dismissed. Some 22 Cumberland residents had been summoned to Hagerstown to testify in the case which originally was docketed here.

Mrs. Mildred Naomi Coakley, widow of Edwin Russell Coakley, 31, who died February 4, 1949, from sledding injuries, had filed the suit against John J. Hafer. Also named as plaintiffs were the Coakley's three children, Darlene Mildred, Joe Donald and Virginia Rae Coakley.

Annual Report Of Conservation District Shows Steady Progress

67,369 Acres Reported Improved

The annual report of the Allegany County Conservation District was issued yesterday by district headquarters in the Post Office building listing activities of the past year and reporting on affiliated agencies.

Ninety three new cooperative agreements were signed during the year totaling 9,672 acres for which plans for conservation were prepared.

Due to change of ownership 15 plans were cancelled, leaving a balance of 385 active conservation plans totaling 67,369 acres now in the county.

Extension service through the County Agent continued to supply information and education concerning the district.

The Maryland Department of State Forests and Parks gave technical aid to farmers on woodland management and proper handling of their wooded areas.

Maryland State Game and Inland Fish Commission established wildlife refuges throughout the district including the 358 acre turkey farm at Belle Grove, which has adopted a complete soil conservation plan.

Jury Awards Boy $3,500

An Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday afternoon awarded $3,500 damages for injuries sustained by a 7-year old North End boy when he was struck by a taxi near his home.

The jury verdict, returned after 45 minutes' deliberation, marked the end of a day-long trial at which Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris presided. Thomas B. Cumiskey was jury foreman.

Thomas Miller, the boy, had filed a $15,000 suit by his father and next friend, Merlyn F. Miller, 15 Independence Street, against Johnny's Cabs, Inc., and Albert A. Doub, Jr., receiver for Johnny's Cabs, Inc. The suit was filed by Attorney Harold E. Naughton.

In the declaration, it was contended that the Miller boy was struck by one of the defendant's taxis about 4 p. m. December 4, 1949, while crossing Walnut Street. It was charged that the accident was caused because the driver was operating at an excessive and dangerous rate of speed and not properly observing pedestrian traffic.

The Miller boy reportedly sustained a fractured skull and permanent injuries to his legs as a result of the accident.

Allegany PMA 1951 Program Being Organized

Allegany county farmers were reminded yesterday by Albert O'Neal, County Production and Marketing Administration chairman, that the 1951 PMA agriculture conservation program is now being organized.

This program will include lime, fertilizer, open drainage ditches, tile drainage ditches, contour strip cropping, terracing, forest tree planting, improving stands of forest trees, constructing permanent fences to protect farm woods from grazing, winter cover crops and removing stone walls and hedgerows to permit terracing and contour farming.

Approximately half of the cost of the materials for these various programs is borne by PMA while the farmer pays the rest and supplies all of the labor.

Farmers interested in this program must enroll with Miss Elizabeth A. Hoover, PMA treasurer, who operates the PMA office at 37 Washington Street, opposite the Court House, by April 15.

About 400 Allegany county farmers participated in the 1950 program. Almost as many are expected this year. However, some part-time farmers may have to work longer hours in their regular jobs and will be unable to carry on the PMA programs.

Local Group Will Be Convention Host

The Independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland will be host to the Independent Food Distributors of Maryland at the state group's annual convention, which will be held at Bedford Springs Hotel, May 20 and 21.

Those from here who met with the state group were Lynn Beightol, Carl A. Winfield, Lewis Q. Cowherd, Francis A. Warnick and J. G. Jackson.

When the convention decision was reached, the state directors named a 15-member convention committee from the Western Maryland association, which includes Allegany and Garrett counties. Ralph W. Rice is chairman of that committee. Other members are Lynn Beightol, Harry K. Poling, Albert E. Windish, George F. Garlitz, Ralph Frantz, Carl A. Winfield, Gordon L. Leatherman, Alfred E. Howe, J. Milton McIntyre, Harry C. Ort, Lewis Q. Cowherd, Martin L. Johnson, F. Lee Fresh and Roy C. Lottig. This group will be augmented by two additional members from each local association.

Officers of the Independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland, all reelected, were installed at a recent meeting at LaVale Fire Hall.

Radio Amateurs Will Cooperate In Civil Defense

Hams Plan To Set Up Emergency System

Radio hams of this area will participate in the Civil Defense program in Cumberland and Allegany County.

Officials of the Mountain Radio Club this week promised full cooperation in the city Civil Defense set up at a meeting with Assistant Fire Chief R. Paul Reid.

Two officials of the, F. R. Himmelwright and K. G. Lease, told local officials that all of the facilities of the club will be available in any emergency.

The club, with its experienced operators and mobile transmitters, can provide vital communications if some disaster should disrupt normal telephone, telegraph or commercial radio communications.

The value of radio was dramatically proved recently when some 1,600 telephones were put out of communications.

A portable radio mounted in a police cruiser car was stationed at the telephone building and provided communications with the police and fire department and with other radio equipped cruisers.

The emergency set up, quickly arranged by the telephone company, police and firemen, worked like a charm throughtout the night as phone communications were restored.

Further details of the club's participation in the city's defense activities will be worked out at a meeting planned next Wednesday night in the Public Safety Building, Chief Reid said.

Fort Hill Holds Special Assembly For Inductees

Nine Seniors To Leave Next Week

Thursday morning, February 1 marked an assembly at Fort Hill High School in honor of the nine senior boys who are leaving with the Marine Reserves next week.

Victor D. Heisey, principal, led the opening exercises in the absence of Jack Corrick, Student Council president. Joyce Shanski read the Scripture and Homer Schaidt played organ selections.

The first part of the program was under the direction of Jack Platt and Aden Lewis, who directed the student body in group singing.

Following this, "Andante" from George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" was presented with Aden Lewis at the piano, and Jack Platt at the Hammond organ.

At this point in the program, Mr. Philip Kester, vice principal, asked the students' full support of the coming light opera, "H. M. S. Pinafore," to be presented February 15, by the A Capella Choir and Glee Clubs.

He expressed the hope that the production would be a success because it will be the first time for some time that all the departments in the school are co-operating on a project.

Next on the program was an interpretation of the modern dance by Miss Dorothy Gasper, a music and physical education instructor at Penn Avenue School. She was accompanied by Aden Lewis, who played "Prelude No. 2" by Gershwin.

Miss Lois Stine, music director at Cresaptown, sang "My Hero" from the "Chocolate Soldier," also accompanied by Mr. Lewis.

Jack Platt and Miss Stine next sang a duet, "Song of Love" from Blossom Time. This concluded the musical division of the program.

Mr. Heisey spoke briefly about the diplomas of the boys who are leaving next week and requested their parents to receive the honors for their sons at the regular graduation exercises which will be held in June.

The Marines-elect, Don Ridenbaugh, Melvin Durst, Leo Reynolds, Robert Mullanex, Leonard Glenn, Allen Shaffer, Edward Malone, Clyde Mackerith, and Charles Mellon, were called on stage by the principal while the student body sang the Marines Hymn.

In speaking to the boys, Mr. Heisey said that the government wants men with as much education as possible and that any boy who is contemplating leaving school to enlist should stay in school and receive his diploma. He invited any boy who may be drafted before June to talk over his plans with him before coming to a definite decision.

Leo Reynolds, in speaking for the group to leave, said that although they don't want to leave high school, they all realize that duty comes first. He expressed appreciation to his class, faculty and everyone who has helped the boys.

The program concluded with Jack Platt playing the Marines Hymn on the organ.

Tar Burns Boy; $1,000 Sought

A $1,000 suit, which alleges that a 6-year old Columbia Street boy severely burned his right hand when he placed it in a kettle filled with hot and burning tar, was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The suit was filed for Robert Saveleski, an infant, by John Saveleski and Margaret Saveleski, his parents, 57 Columbia Street, against the George and Lynch Construction Company.

Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, who filed the declaration, cited that the defendant company on September 5, 1950, was engaged in the construction of a flood control project in Cumberland.

Workmen for the company were engaged in the project at or near the intersection of Columbia and Valley Streets. In their work they were using hot pitch or tar, the declaration says. Half kettles of tar or pitch were set up over fires and were heated to change the tar or pitch to a molten state for use.

Finally, the declaration charges that at a point on Valley Street at or near Columbia Street, at the close of the day's work last September 5, employes of the defendant left the place without securing the kettle with its contents. Later, the plaintiff placed his right hand in the kettle and suffered third degree burns.

Many Wage And Overtime Violations Listed In Area

Despite record high levels in prices, employment and earnings in Maryland, Pennsylvania and Delaware during the latter part of 1950, investigations in the last quarter showed a high percentage of violations of wage and overtime provisions of the Federal Wage-Hour Law, William Hargadine, Jr., regional director of the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contract Divisions, reported yesterday.

In 964 investigations conducted in the October-December period, 441 disclosed violations of the basic monetary provisions of the law. Of the latter, 47 percent were cases of failure to pay the 75-cents an hour minimum wage. Accordingly, minimum wage violations were disclosed in 21 percent of the total number of investigations.

"The Bureau of Labor Statistics' Consumer Price Index reached the highest point of its history November 15, and it continued to rise in December," Hargadine said. "Consequently those workers who earned under 75-cents an hour in December reached an all-time low in purchasing power. Both these marginal workers and the communities in which they live need the protection of the Wage-Hour Law."

Hargadine's report shows that in his region, which covers Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware, employers paid back wages in the amount of $103,268 to 1631 employees, as a result of investigations made under Federal Wage and Hour Laws, during the same quarterly period.

The payments were for failure to comply, principally, with overtime provisions of the Wage and Hour Law, which apply to employees engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for commerce, and the Public Contracts Act, which applies to government contracts for more than $10,000.

Regional Attorney Ernest N. Votaw reported that during December three criminal and two civil actions were instituted against employers under the Fair Labor Standards Act in the Pennsylvania-Maryland-Delaware region.

Ask Dog Owners To Control Pets

City Destroyed 117 Strays In January

Allegany County Health Department had 117 dogs which were caught running loose inside city limits destroyed during the month of January, department officials said yesterday.

The dogs were among 127 which were impounded by the city dog catcher last month. Ten of the animals were reclaimed by their owners.

The local health department urgently requests dog owners in Cumberland and vicinity to refrain from allowing the animals to run loose, destroying public property and generally creating a nuisance.

City ordinance requires owners to purchase a license to keep a dog within the city limits but the license does not permit the animal unlimited freedom and the pets' owners should guard against allowing the animals to run loose, department heads noted.

Approximately 56 complaints were received by the health department from local citizens during the past month because of the large numbers of stray dogs within the city.

Cold Snap Here Threatens To Break Records

Forecasters Predict 8 Below Zero Today

Cumberland is in the throes of one of the coldest winters on record as the thermometers dipped closer to zero with each passing hour last night.

The bitter cold spell moved in all over the state and the celebrated ground hog saw his shadow — a traditional harbinger of six more weeks of winter.

Robert R. Golden, local weather observer, reported the mercury slipped to nine above yesterday at Constitution Park and gave every indication last night of going even further down.

Golden said in 39 years of recording temperatures here the thermometers have read zero or less only nine times in February with the coldest day being February 9, 1934, with six below recorded.

Five times in the first 10 days of February the mercury dropped below zero, twice in the second 10 days, and twice in the latter part of the month, Golden reported.

Groundhog day in 1950 saw a maximum temperature of 48 degrees recorded and a minimum of 31. Yesterday's maximum was 17 above.

Golden said the coldest day ever recorded in Cumberland in 39 years was 11 below while the coldest temperature in Maryland was 40 below in January, 1912, in Oakland, Garrett County.

Coldest In Garrett

The state's coldest region again was Garrett County yesterday with a reading of 6 degrees below zero being recorded at Guntertown at 9 p. m.

Forecasters were predicting a low of 7 or 8 degrees below zero here by early today. It was 18 above in Baltimore, 15 in Frederick and 20 in Salisbury.

State Police reported that most of Maryland's roads had been cleared of snow, sleet and slush that covered them earlier in the week, but added, drivers still should be careful because highways remained icy in spots.

Mrs. Mildred Naomi Coakley, widow of Edwin Russell Coakley, 31, who died February 4, 1949, from sledding injuries, had filed the suit against John J. Hafer. Also named as plaintiffs were the Coakley's three children, Darlene Mildred, Joe Donald and Virginia Rae Coakley.

Allegany PMA 1951 Program Being Organized

Allegany county farmers were reminded yesterday by Albert O'Neal, County Production and Marketing Administration chairman, that the 1951 PMA agriculture conservation program is now being organized.

This program will include lime, fertilizer, open drainage ditches, tile drainage ditches, contour strip cropping, terracing, forest tree planting, improving stands of forest trees, constructing permanent fences to protect farm woods from grazing, winter cover crops and removing stone walls and hedgerows to permit terracing and contour farming.

Approximately half of the cost of the materials for these various programs is borne by PMA while the farmer pays the rest and supplies all of the labor.

Farmers interested in this program must enroll with Miss Elizabeth A. Hoover, PMA treasurer, who operates the PMA office at 37 Washington Street, opposite the Court House, by April 15.

About 400 Allegany county farmers participated in the 1950 program. Almost as many are expected this year. However, some part-time farmers may have to work longer hours in their regular jobs and will be unable to carry on the PMA programs

Many Wage And Overtime Violations Listed In Area

Despite record high levels in prices, employment and earnings in Maryland, Pennsylvania and Delaware during the latter part of 1950, investigations in the last quarter showed a high percentage of violations of wage and overtime provisions of the Federal Wage-Hour Law, William Hargadine, Jr., regional director of the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contract Divisions, reported yesterday.

In 964 investigations conducted in the October-December period, 441 disclosed violations of the basic monetary provisions of the law. Of the latter, 47 percent were cases of failure to pay the 75-cents an hour minimum wage. Accordingly, minimum wage violations were disclosed in 21 percent of the total number of investigations.

"The Bureau of Labor Statistics' Consumer Price Index reached the highest point of its history November 15, and it continued to rise in December," Hargadine said. "Consequently those workers who earned under 75-cents an hour in December reached an all-time low in purchasing power. Both these marginal workers and the communities in which they live need the protection of the Wage-Hour Law."

Hargadine's report shows that in his region, which covers Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware, employers paid back wages in the amount of $103,268 to 1631 employees, as a result of investigations made under Federal Wage and Hour Laws, during the same quarterly period.

The payments were for failure to comply, principally, with overtime provisions of the Wage and Hour Law, which apply to employees engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for commerce, and the Public Contracts Act, which applies to government contracts for more than $10,000.

Regional Attorney Ernest N. Votaw reported that during December three criminal and two civil actions were instituted against employers under the Fair Labor Standards Act in the Pennsylvania-Maryland-Delaware region.

The value of radio was dramatically proved recently when some 1,600 telephones were put out of communications.

A portable radio mounted in a police cruiser car was stationed at the telephone building and provided communications with the police and fire department and with other radio equipped cruisers.

Ask Dog Owners To Control Pets

City Destroyed 117 Strays In January

Allegany County Health Department had 117 dogs which were caught running loose inside city limits destroyed during the month of January, department officials said yesterday.

The dogs were among 127 which were impounded by the city dog catcher last month. Ten of the animals were reclaimed by their owners.

The local health department urgently requests dog owners in Cumberland and vicinity to refrain from allowing the animals to run loose, destroying public property and generally creating a nuisance.

City ordinance requires owners to purchase a license to keep a dog within the city limits but the license does not permit the animal unlimited freedom and the pets' owners should guard against allowing the animals to run loose, department heads noted.

Approximately 56 complaints were received by the health department from local citizens during the past month because of the large numbers of stray dogs within the city.

The program concluded with Jack Platt playing the Marines Hymn on the organ.

Cold Snap Here Threatens To Break Records

Forecasters Predict 8 Below Zero Today

Cumberland is in the throes of one of the coldest winters on record as the thermometers dipped closer to zero with each passing hour last night.

The bitter cold spell moved in all over the state and the celebrated ground hog saw his shadow — a traditional harbinger of six more weeks of winter.

Robert R. Golden, local weather observer, reported the mercury slipped to nine above yesterday at Constitution Park and gave every indication last night of going even further down.

Golden said in 39 years of recording temperatures here the thermometers have read zero or less only nine times in February with the coldest day being February 9, 1934, with six below recorded.

Five times in the first 10 days of February the mercury dropped below zero, twice in the second 10 days, and twice in the latter part of the month, Golden reported.

Groundhog day in 1950 saw a maximum temperature of 48 degrees recorded and a minimum of 31. Yesterday's maximum was 17 above.

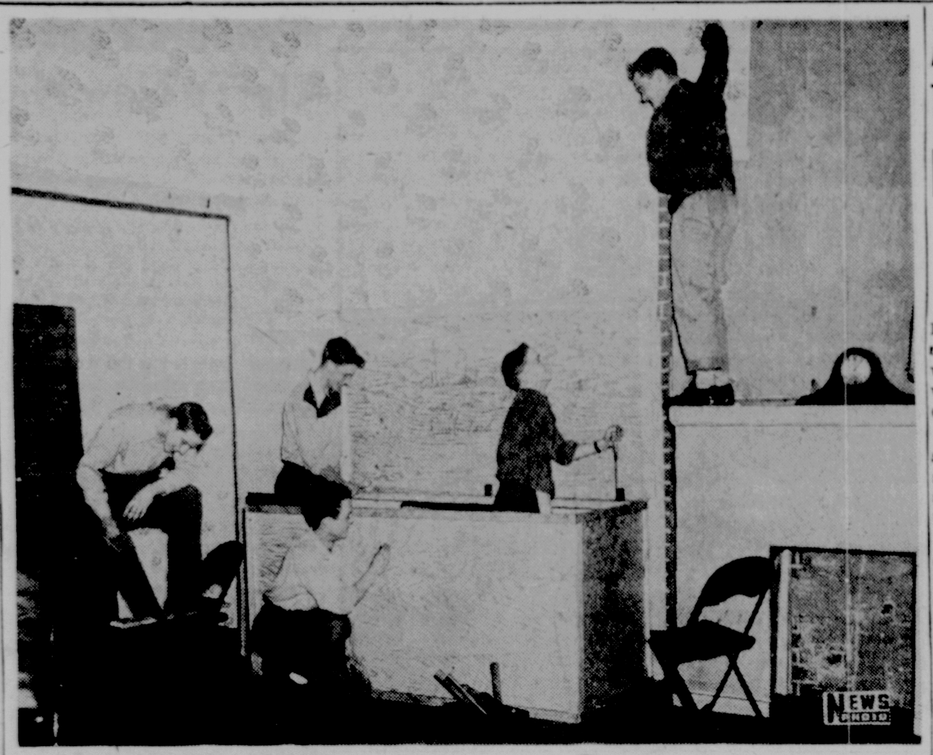
Golden said the coldest day ever recorded in Cumberland in 39 years was 11 below while the coldest temperature in Maryland was 40 below in January, 1912, in Oakland, Garrett County.

Coldest In Garrett

The state's coldest region again was Garrett County yesterday with a reading of 6 degrees below zero being recorded at Guntertown at 9 p. m.

Forecasters were predicting a low of 7 or 8 degrees below zero here by early today. It was 18 above in Baltimore, 15 in Frederick and 20 in Salisbury.

State Police reported that most of Maryland's roads had been cleared of snow, sleet and slush that covered them earlier in the week, but added, drivers still should be careful because highways remained icy in spots.



Students Prepare Scenery

Five Allegany High School boys are building the scenery for Alpha Delta Kappa's stage production. "The Gorilla," which will be shown at the school auditorium Thursday and Friday, February 8 and 9. The production is under the direction of Harold C. Wickard.

Auxiliary Police To Reorganize For Defense

Section Captains To Be Named For City

Reorganization of the Cumberland Auxiliary Police Department to meet civil defense needs of this city will near completion when captains will be named for sections of the city.

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn said the appointments will be made at the meeting slated February 13 at 7:30 p. m. in City Hall Auditorium.

A member of the Federal Bureau of Investigation will be present at the meeting to speak on some phase of civil defense.

Chief Flynn said the city will be laid out in districts, with a member of the auxiliary police force named as captain of each area.

The captain will then select assistants and complete plans for round the clock protection.

The present organization, which has been kept active since it was formed here during World War II, now has a membership of about 180 men.

Each member will be asked, at next week's meeting, to recruit one member, to bring membership rolls up to the 300 mark.

The Auxiliary Police, headed by Harold Armbruster, president, and Joseph Harrison, chief, have moved swiftly to meet Civil Defense needs here.

All members recently agreed to take standard advance or refresher Red Cross first aid courses and other training classes needed to bring the organization to top efficiency.

Jury Awards Boy $3,500

An Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday afternoon awarded $3,500 damages for injuries sustained by a 7-year old North End boy when he was struck by a taxi near his home.

The jury verdict, returned after 45 minutes' deliberation, marked the end of a day-long trial at which Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris presided. Thomas B. Cumiskey was jury foreman.

Thomas Miller, the boy, had filed a $15,000 suit by his father and next friend, Merlyn F. Miller, 15 Independence Street, against Johnny's Cabs, Inc., and Albert A. Doub, Jr., receiver for Johnny's Cabs, Inc. The suit was filed by Attorney Harold E. Naughton.

In the declaration, it was contended that the Miller boy was struck by one of the defendant's taxis about 4 p. m. December 4, 1949, while crossing Walnut Street. It was charged that the accident was caused because the driver was operating at an excessive and dangerous rate of speed and not properly observing pedestrian traffic.

The Miller boy reportedly sustained a fractured skull and permanent injuries to his legs as a result of the accident.

Allegany PMA 1951 Program Being Organized

Allegany county farmers were reminded yesterday by Albert O'Neal, County Production and Marketing Administration chairman, that the 1951 PMA agriculture conservation program is now being organized.

This program will include lime, fertilizer, open drainage ditches, tile drainage ditches, contour strip cropping, terracing, forest tree planting, improving stands of forest trees, constructing permanent fences to protect farm woods from grazing, winter cover crops and removing stone walls and hedgerows to permit terracing and contour farming.

Approximately half of the cost of the materials for these various programs is borne by PMA while the farmer pays the rest and supplies all of the labor.

Farmers interested in this program must enroll with Miss Elizabeth A. Hoover, PMA treasurer, who operates the PMA office at 37 Washington Street, opposite the Court House, by April 15.

About 400 Allegany county farmers participated in the 1950 program. Almost as many are expected this year. However, some part-time farmers may have to work longer hours in their regular jobs and will be unable to carry on the PMA programs

Fractional shares were not issued but stockholders received in lieu thereof Scrip Certificates of Participation in elevenths denominations, altogether the certificates totaled 583 elevenths at a market value of $4.50 per eleventh, but by agreement the certificates expired January 31. At that time all but 25 elevenths had been subscribed for by stockholders.

Tar Burns Boy; $1,000 Sought

A $1,000 suit, which alleges that a 6-year old Columbia Street boy severely burned his right hand when he placed it in a kettle filled with hot and burning tar, was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The suit was filed for Robert Saveleski, an infant, by John Saveleski and Margaret Saveleski, his parents, 57 Columbia Street, against the George and Lynch Construction Company.

Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, who filed the declaration, cited that the defendant company on September 5, 1950, was engaged in the construction of a flood control project in Cumberland.

Workmen for the company were engaged in the project at or near the intersection of Columbia and Valley Streets. In their work they were using hot pitch or tar, the declaration says. Half kettles of tar or pitch were set up over fires and were heated to change the tar or pitch to a molten state for use.

Finally, the declaration charges that at a point on Valley Street at or near Columbia Street, at the close of the day's work last September 5, employes of the defendant left the place without securing the kettle with its contents. Later, the plaintiff placed his right hand in the kettle and suffered third degree burns.

Many Wage And Overtime Violations Listed In Area

Despite record high levels in prices, employment and earnings in Maryland, Pennsylvania and Delaware during the latter part of 1950, investigations in the last quarter showed a high percentage of violations of wage and overtime provisions of the Federal Wage-Hour Law, William Hargadine, Jr., regional director of the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contract Divisions, reported yesterday.

In 964 investigations conducted in the October-December period, 441 disclosed violations of the basic monetary provisions of the law. Of the latter, 47 percent were cases of failure to pay the 75-cents an hour minimum wage. Accordingly, minimum wage violations were disclosed in 21 percent of the total number of investigations.

"The Bureau of Labor Statistics' Consumer Price Index reached the highest point of its history November 15, and it continued to rise in December," Hargadine said. "Consequently those workers who earned under 75-cents an hour in December reached an all-time low in purchasing power. Both these marginal workers and the communities in which they live need the protection of the Wage-Hour Law."

Hargadine's report shows that in his region, which covers Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware, employers paid back wages in the amount of $103,268 to 1631 employees, as a result of investigations made under Federal Wage and Hour Laws, during the same quarterly period.

The payments were for failure to comply, principally, with overtime provisions of the Wage and Hour Law, which apply to employees engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for commerce, and the Public Contracts Act, which applies to government contracts for more than $10,000.

Regional Attorney Ernest N. Votaw reported that during December three criminal and two civil actions were instituted against employers under the Fair Labor Standards Act in the Pennsylvania-Maryland-Delaware region.

Ask Dog Owners To Control Pets

City Destroyed 117 Strays In January

Allegany County Health Department had 117 dogs which were caught running loose inside city limits destroyed during the month of January, department officials said yesterday.

The dogs were among 127 which were impounded by the city dog catcher last month. Ten of the animals were reclaimed by their owners.

The local health department urgently requests dog owners in Cumberland and vicinity to refrain from allowing the animals to run loose, destroying public property and generally creating a nuisance.

City ordinance requires owners to purchase a license to keep a dog within the city limits but the license does not permit the animal unlimited freedom and the pets' owners should guard against allowing the animals to run loose, department heads noted.

Approximately 56 complaints were received by the health department from local citizens during the past month because of the large numbers of stray dogs within the city.
